San Antonio City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. San Antonio City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. San Antonio City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, San Antonio City's motion should be denied due to futility, as San Antonio City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. San Antonio City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, San Antonio City amended its complaint on December 19, 2019, after transfer to the MDL on October 2, 2019. See City of San Antonio, Texas v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45833-DAP, ECF No. 4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, San Antonio City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. San Antonio City’s deadline to amend was in 2019. San Antonio City waited five years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. San Antonio City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. San Antonio City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro, PLLC; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. San Antonio City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. San Antonio City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to San Antonio City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.15% market share for San Antonio City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for San Antonio City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to San Antonio City's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.30% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for San Antonio City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. San Antonio City filed its original complaint on September 10, 2019. See City of San Antonio, Texas v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45833-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, San Antonio City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating San Antonio City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of San Antonio City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by San Antonio City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and San Antonio City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Texas law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But San Antonio City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Texas law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. San Antonio City, a municipality in Texas, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for San Antonio City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. San Antonio City filed its original complaint on September 10, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of San Antonio, Texas v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45833-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that San Antonio City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. San Antonio City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. San Antonio City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. San Antonio City, a municipality in Texas, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1346. City of Ocala, Florida v. Purdue Pharma L.P., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45834-DAP: Plaintiff Ocala City, Florida

Ocala City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ocala City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ocala City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Ocala City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Ocala City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Ocala City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Ocala City filed its original complaint on September 5, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on October 2, 2019. See City of Ocala, Florida v. Purdue Pharma L.P., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45834-DAP, ECF No. 5. Ocala City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2019. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Ocala City elected not to do so. Instead, Ocala City waited five years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Ocala City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Ocala City filed its original complaint on September 5, 2019. See City of Ocala, Florida v. Purdue Pharma L.P., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45834-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Ocala City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Ocala City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Ocala City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Ocala City’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Ocala City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Ocala City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Ocala City, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Ocala City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Ocala City filed its original complaint on September 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Ocala, Florida v. Purdue Pharma L.P., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45834-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Ocala City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Ocala City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13

(holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Ocala City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. Ocala City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Ocala City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on September 5, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Ocala City, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1347. Brighton Health Plan Solutions, llc d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45837-DAP: Plaintiff Brighton Health Plan Solutions, llc d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services, New York

MagnaCare Administrative Services’ untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. MagnaCare Administrative Services failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. MagnaCare Administrative Services also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, MagnaCare Administrative Services’ motion should be denied due to futility, as MagnaCare Administrative Services does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. MagnaCare Administrative Services was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, MagnaCare Administrative Services filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on September 27, 2019. See Brighton Health Plan Solutions, llc d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45837-DAP, ECF No. 1. MagnaCare Administrative Services could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2019. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, MagnaCare Administrative Services elected not to do so. MagnaCare Administrative Services waited five years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. MagnaCare Administrative Services’ lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But MagnaCare Administrative Services’ delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. MagnaCare Administrative Services, a hospital in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. MagnaCare Administrative Services seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services v. McKesson Corporation, et al., No. 1:19-op-45837-DAP; and Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services & MagnaCare, LLC v. McKesson Corporation, et al., No. 1:19-op-45838-DAP. MagnaCare Administrative Services' impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for MagnaCare Administrative Services' proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. MagnaCare Administrative Services filed its original complaint on September 27, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Brighton Health Plan Solutions, llc d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45837-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that MagnaCare Administrative Services knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. MagnaCare Administrative Services' RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. MagnaCare Administrative Services' request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. MagnaCare Administrative Services, a hospital in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. MagnaCare Administrative Services' request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1348. Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45838-DAP: Plaintiff Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC, New York

MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC's motion should be denied due to futility, as MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC amended its complaint on November 1, 2019, after directly filing in the MDL. See Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45838-DAP, ECF No. 12. Unlike many other plaintiffs, MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC’s deadline to amend was in 2019. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC waited five years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC, previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC, of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC, began receiving those services on January 3, 2006. See id. Inasmuch as Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC, seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC, a hospital in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services v. McKesson Corporation, et al., No. 1:19-op-45837-DAP; and Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services & MagnaCare, LLC v. McKesson Corporation, et al., No. 1:19-op-45838-DAP.

MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC filed its original complaint on September 27, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Brighton Health Plan Solutions, LLC d/b/a MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45838-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC, a hospital in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. MagnaCare Administrative Services and MagnaCare, LLC's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1349. Loudoun County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45842-DAP: Plaintiff Loudoun County, Virginia

Loudoun County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Loudoun County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Loudoun County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Loudoun County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Loudoun County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Loudoun County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 6, 2019. See Loudoun County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45842-DAP, ECF No. 1-1 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Loudoun County also amended its complaint on December 20, 2019 to add claims against additional PBM-related entities. See id., at ECF No. 28 (adding claims against Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc., and ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.). Now, Loudoun County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants in its original or amended complaints. Loudoun County's deadline to amend was in 2020, but it waited four years after its deadline to seek leave to assert claims against the remaining PBMs. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Loudoun County's complaint, Loudoun County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its prior complaints against the PBMs. See Section II.A, above. Loudoun County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Loudoun County previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Loudoun County of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Loudoun County began receiving those services on January 2, 2011. See id. Inasmuch as Loudoun County seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl.

¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Loudoun County knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Loudoun County’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Loudoun County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Loudoun County filed its original complaint on June 6, 2019, but waited until August 8, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—more than five years later. See Loudoun County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45842-DAP, ECF No. 1-1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: August 8, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Loudoun County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Loudoun County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Loudoun County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Loudoun County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Loudoun County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Loudoun County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period.

The PBMs notified Loudoun County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Loudoun County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Loudoun County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Loudoun County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Loudoun County’s potential claims against them. Loudoun County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Loudoun County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Loudoun County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Loudoun County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Loudoun County filed its original complaint on June 6, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Loudoun County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45842-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Even assuming arguendo that Loudoun County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on June 6, 2023. Loudoun County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Loudoun County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Loudoun County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1350. City of Auburn v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45843-DAP: Plaintiff Auburn City, New York

Auburn City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Auburn City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Auburn City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Auburn City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Auburn City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Auburn City previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 7, 2019. See City of Auburn v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45843-DAP, ECF No. 1-4 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx Inc.). Auburn City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against other PBM-related entities in 2019, but elected not to do so. See Section II.A.1, above. Now, Auburn City seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants five years ago. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Auburn City's complaint, Auburn City already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its original complaint against the PBMs in 2019. See Section II.A, above. Auburn City was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Auburn City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.02% market share for Auburn City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Auburn City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

a finding of good cause for Auburn City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Auburn City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Auburn City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Auburn City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Auburn City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Auburn City's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Auburn City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Auburn City's potential claims against them. Auburn City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Auburn City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Auburn City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Auburn City filed its original complaint on June 7, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Auburn v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45843-DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Even assuming arguendo that Auburn City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on June 7, 2023. Auburn City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Auburn City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Auburn City, a city in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Auburn City’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1351. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) v. Mallinckrodt Brand Pharmaceuticals, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45844-DAP: Plaintiff Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah), Massachusetts

Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs.

Moreover, Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)'s motion should be denied due to futility, as Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) filed its original complaint on April 19, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on October 8, 2019. See Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) v. Mallinckrodt Brand Pharmaceuticals, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45844-DAP, ECF No. 21. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) elected not to do so. Instead, Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)'s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) filed its original complaint on April 19, 2019. See Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) v. Mallinckrodt Brand Pharmaceuticals, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45844-DAP, ECF No. 4.

Despite filing its case years ago, Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)'s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)'s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)'s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Massachusetts law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)'s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Massachusetts law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah), a native tribe in Massachusetts, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) filed its original complaint on April 19, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) v. Mallinckrodt Brand Pharmaceuticals, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45844-DAP, ECF No. 4. Even assuming arguendo that Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on April 19, 2023. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Massachusetts, public-nuisance claims are subject to a three-year limitations period. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah)’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah) sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on April 19, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Wampanoag Tribe of Gay Head (Aquinnah), a native tribe in Massachusetts, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1352. Greensville County, VA v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45848-DAP: Plaintiff Greensville County, Virginia

Greensville County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Greensville County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Greensville County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Greensville County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Greensville County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Greensville County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 14, 2019. See Greensville County, VA v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45848-DAP, ECF No. 1-1 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Greensville County also amended its complaint on December 20, 2019 to add claims against additional PBM-related entities. See id., at ECF No. 22 (adding claims against Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc., and ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.). Now, Greensville County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants in its original or amended complaints. Greensville County's deadline to amend was in 2020, but it waited four years after its deadline to seek leave to assert claims against the remaining PBMs. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Greenville County's complaint, Greenville County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its prior complaints against the PBMs. See Section II.A, above. Greenville County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Greenville County's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Greenville County cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Greenville County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Greenville County filed its original complaint on June 14, 2019, but waited until July 10, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—five years later. See Greenville County, VA v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45848-DAP, ECF No. 1-

1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: July 10, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Greenville County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Greenville County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Greenville County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Greenville County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Greenville County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Greenville County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Greenville County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Greenville County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Greenville County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Greenville County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Greenville County’s potential claims against them. Greenville County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017

WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Greensville County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Greensville County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Greensville County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Greensville County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1353. Culpeper County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45849-DAP: Plaintiff Culpeper County, Virginia

Culpeper County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Culpeper County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Culpeper County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Culpeper County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Culpeper County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Culpeper County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 20, 2019. See Culpeper County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45849-DAP, ECF No. 1-2 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Culpeper County also amended its complaint on December 20, 2019 to add claims against additional PBM-related entities. See id., at ECF No. 36 (adding claims against Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc., and ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.). Now, Culpeper County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants in its original or amended complaints. Culpeper County's deadline to amend was in 2020, but it waited four years after its deadline to seek leave to assert claims against the remaining PBMs. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. Culpeper County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Culpeper County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Litigating Culpeper County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Culpeper County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Culpeper County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Culpeper County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Culpeper County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Culpeper County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Culpeper County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Culpeper County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Culpeper County's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Culpeper County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Culpeper County's potential claims against them. Culpeper County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Culpeper County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Culpeper County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Culpeper County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Culpeper County filed its original complaint on June 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Culpeper County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45849-DAP, ECF No. 1-2. Even assuming arguendo that Culpeper County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on June 20, 2023. Culpeper County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Culpeper County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Culpeper County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

Charlotte County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Charlotte County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Charlotte County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Charlotte County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Charlotte County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Charlotte County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 14, 2019. See Charlotte County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45851-DAP, ECF No. 1-1 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Charlotte County also amended its complaint on December 20, 2019 to add claims against additional PBM-related entities. See id., at ECF No. 34 (adding claims against Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc., and ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.). Now, Charlotte County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants in its original or amended complaints. Charlotte County's deadline to amend was in 2020, but it waited four years after its deadline to seek leave to assert claims against the remaining PBMs. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Charlotte County's complaint, Charlotte County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its prior complaints against the PBMs. See Section II.A, above. Charlotte County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Charlotte County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Charlotte County filed its original complaint on June 14, 2019, but waited until July 10, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—five years later. See Charlotte County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45851-DAP, ECF No. 1-1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: July 10, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Charlotte County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Charlotte County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Charlotte County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Charlotte County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Charlotte County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Charlotte County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Charlotte County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Charlotte County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Charlotte County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Charlotte County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Charlotte County’s potential claims against them. Charlotte County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Charlotte County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Charlotte County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Charlotte County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Charlotte County filed its original complaint on June 14, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Charlotte County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45851-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Even assuming arguendo that Charlotte County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on June 14, 2023. Charlotte County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Charlotte County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1355. City of Ogdensburg v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45852-DAP: Plaintiff Ogdensburg City, New York

Ogdensburg City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ogdensburg City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ogdensburg City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs.<sup>2</sup>

Lack of Diligence. Ogdensburg City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Ogdensburg City previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 7, 2019. See City of Ogdensburg v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45852-DAP, ECF No. 1-4 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; and UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Ogdensburg City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against other PBM-related entities in 2020 after transfer to the MDL, but elected not to do so. See Section II.A.1, above. Now, Ogdensburg City seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants five years ago.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Ogdensburg City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Ogdensburg City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time

<sup>2</sup> Ogdensburg City has been selected as the replacement PBM bellwether case. See ECF No. 5834. But even with that bellwether selection, the omnibus motions for leave to amend remain Ogdensburg City’s “last chance” to amend its complaint to add defendants. See ECF No. 5656 at 2 (“The Court now clarifies that, in fact, the Final Amendment Order did set forth the ‘last chance’ procedures for any MDL plaintiff to amend a complaint to add a defendant. . . . [The Court] will not allow any further amendment by any MDL plaintiff to add a new defendant.”). Ogdensburg City cannot establish good cause to add any additional PBM-related entities when it previously alleged claims against some of the PBM entities in its original complaint, so its motion for leave to amend should be denied. But at this time, the PBMs take no position on whether Ogdensburg City should be allowed to amend its complaint “to update allegations or to add claims” against existing defendants because those issues should be addressed during the separate amendment process established by the CMO for Track 22. See id. at 2–3 (“The Court may later allow amendment of complaints by a newly-chosen bellwether plaintiff to update allegations or to add claims, but it will not allow any further amendment by any MDL plaintiff to add a new defendant.”).

period. The PBMs notified Ogdensburg City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Ogdensburg City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Ogdensburg City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Ogdensburg City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Ogdensburg City’s potential claims against them. Ogdensburg City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Ogdensburg City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

1356. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45855-DAP: Plaintiff Jamaica Hospital Medical Center, New York

Jamaica Hospital Medical Center’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Jamaica Hospital Medical Center’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Jamaica Hospital Medical Center does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Jamaica Hospital Medical Center filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 10, 2019. See Jamaica Hospital Medical Center v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45855-DAP, ECF No. 1. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Jamaica Hospital Medical Center elected not to do so. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Jamaica Hospital Medical Center’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center, a hospital in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Jamaica Hospital Medical Center's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1357. County of Kauai v. CVS Health Corporation, et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45862-DAP: Plaintiff Kauai County, Hawaii

Kauai County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Kauai County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Kauai County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Kauai County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Kauai County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Moreover, Kauai County filed its original complaint on May 17, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on October 18, 2019. See County of Kauai v. CVS Health Corporation, et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45862-DAP, ECF No. 39. Kauai County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Kauai County elected not to do so. OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Kauai County’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.02% market share for Kauai County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Kauai County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Kauai County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Kauai County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. 1358. Flushing Hospital Medical Center v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45866-DAP: Plaintiff Flushing Hospital Medical Center, New York

Flushing Hospital Medical Center’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Flushing Hospital Medical Center failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Flushing Hospital Medical Center also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Flushing Hospital Medical Center’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Flushing Hospital Medical Center does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

III.B.4, above. Flushing Hospital Medical Center's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Flushing Hospital Medical Center, a hospital in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Flushing Hospital Medical Center's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1359. City of Apopka, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45883-DAP: Plaintiff Apopka City, Florida

Apopka City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Apopka City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Apopka City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Apopka City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Apopka City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Apopka City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Apopka City filed its original complaint on September 25, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on October 23, 2019. See City of Apopka, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45883-DAP, ECF No. 9. Apopka City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Apopka City elected not to do so. Instead, Apopka City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Apopka City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Apopka City’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.35% market share for Apopka City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Apopka City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Apopka City filed its original complaint on September 25, 2019. See City of Apopka, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No.

1:19-op-45883-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Apopka City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Apopka City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Apopka City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Apopka City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Apopka City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Apopka City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Apopka City, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Apopka City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Apopka City filed its original complaint on September 25, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Apopka, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45883-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Apopka City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Apopka City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Apopka City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. Apopka City's public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Apopka City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on September 25, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 ("This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations." (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Apopka City, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1360. City of Dothan, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45886-DAP: Plaintiff Dothan City, Alabama

Dothan City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Dothan City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Dothan City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Dothan City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Dothan City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Dothan City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Dothan City filed its original complaint on September 27, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on October 23, 2019. See City of Dothan, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45886-DAP, ECF No. 33. Dothan City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Dothan City elected not to do so. Instead, Dothan City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Dothan City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Dothan City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Dothan City filed its original complaint on September 27, 2019. See City of Dothan, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45886-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Dothan City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Dothan City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Dothan City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Dothan City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Dothan City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Dothan City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Dothan City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Dothan City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Dothan City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Dothan City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Dothan City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Dothan City’s potential claims against them. Dothan City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Dothan City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Dothan City, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Dothan City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Dothan City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1361. The Fiscal Court of Casey County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45887-DAP: Plaintiff Casey County, Kentucky

Casey County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Casey County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Casey County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Casey County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Casey County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Casey County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. 1362. The Fiscal Court of Lewis County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45889-DAP: Plaintiff Lewis County, Kentucky

Lewis County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Lewis County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Lewis County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Lewis County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Lewis County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

1363. The Fiscal Court of Gallatin County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45891-DAP: Plaintiff Gallatin County, Kentucky

Gallatin County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Gallatin County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Gallatin County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Gallatin County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Gallatin County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Gallatin County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Gallatin County filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 18, 2019. See The Fiscal Court of Gallatin County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45891-DAP, ECF No. 1. Gallatin County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Gallatin County elected not to do so. Gallatin County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Gallatin County’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459

(affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Gallatin County filed its original complaint on October 18, 2019. See The Fiscal Court of Gallatin County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45891-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Gallatin County never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Gallatin County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Gallatin County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Gallatin County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Gallatin County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Kentucky law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Gallatin County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Kentucky law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Gallatin County, a municipality in Kentucky, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Gallatin County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Gallatin County filed its original complaint on October 18, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See The Fiscal Court of Gallatin County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45891-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Gallatin County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Gallatin County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Gallatin County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Gallatin County, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1364. Okaloosa County, FL v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45894-DAP: Plaintiff Okaloosa County, Florida

Okaloosa County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Okaloosa County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Okaloosa County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Okaloosa County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Okaloosa County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Okaloosa County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Okaloosa County filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 18, 2019. See Okaloosa County, FL v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45894-DAP, ECF No. 1. Okaloosa County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Okaloosa County elected not to do so. Okaloosa County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Okaloosa County’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459

(affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Okaloosa County cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Okaloosa County—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Okaloosa County fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

units shipped to Okaloosa County's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.33% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Okaloosa County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Okaloosa County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Okaloosa County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Okaloosa County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Okaloosa County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Okaloosa County's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Okaloosa County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Okaloosa County's potential claims against them. Okaloosa County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Okaloosa County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Okaloosa County, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Plaintiff Filed a Separate PBM Case. Okaloosa County previously filed an opioid case outside the MDL against the PBMs on March 17, 2023. See Palm Beach County et al. v. Mylan Pharms., Inc. et al., Case No. 9:23-cv-80431 (S.D. Fla.), ECF No. 1. Okaloosa County also voluntarily dismissed its claims against the PBMs in that case. Id., ECF Nos. 199, 200, 202, 203. By suing the PBMs outside the MDL in 2023, Okaloosa County shows that it possessed facts to assert claims against the PBMs before it moved to amend in the MDL, precluding a showing of good cause here. See Profitt, 2024 WL 3622448, at *4 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff previously possessed documents showing underlying factual basis for proposed claim).

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Okaloosa County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Okaloosa County filed its original complaint on October 18, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Okaloosa County, FL v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45894-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Okaloosa County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Okaloosa County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Okaloosa County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. Okaloosa County’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Okaloosa County sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 18, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Okaloosa County, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1365. Mayflower Municipal Health Group et al. v. Johnson & Johnson et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45897-DAP: Plaintiff Mayflower Municipal Health Group, Massachusetts

Mayflower Municipal Health Group’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Mayflower Municipal Health Group failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Mayflower Municipal Health Group also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Mayflower Municipal Health Group’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Mayflower Municipal Health Group does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Mayflower Municipal Health Group was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Mayflower Municipal Health Group filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 20, 2019. See Mayflower Municipal Health Group et al. v. Johnson & Johnson et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45897-DAP, ECF No. 1. Mayflower Municipal Health Group could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Mayflower Municipal Health Group elected not to do so. Mayflower Municipal Health Group waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Mayflower Municipal Health Group’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Mayflower Municipal Health Group cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Mayflower Municipal Health Group—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Mayflower Municipal Health Group fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195

F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Massachusetts law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Mayflower Municipal Health Group’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Massachusetts law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Mayflower Municipal Health Group, a hospital in Massachusetts, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Mayflower Municipal Health Group’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Mayflower Municipal Health Group filed its original complaint on October 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Mayflower Municipal Health Group et al. v. Johnson & Johnson et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45897-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Mayflower Municipal Health Group knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Mayflower Municipal Health Group’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Mayflower Municipal Health Group’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Massachusetts, public-nuisance claims are subject to a three-year limitations period. Mayflower Municipal Health Group’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Mayflower Municipal Health Group sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 20, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Mayflower Municipal Health Group, a hospital in Massachusetts, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1366. City of Fredericksburg, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45898-DAP: Plaintiff Fredericksburg City, Virginia

Fredericksburg City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Fredericksburg City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Fredericksburg City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Fredericksburg City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Fredericksburg City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Fredericksburg City previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 14, 2019. See City of Fredericksburg, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45898-DAP, ECF No. 1-1 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Fredericksburg City also amended its complaint on December 20, 2019 to add claims against additional PBM-related entities. See id., at ECF No. 33 (adding claims against Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc., and ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.). Now, Fredericksburg City seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants in its original or amended complaints. Fredericksburg City's deadline to amend was in 2020, but it waited four years after its deadline to seek leave to assert claims against the remaining PBMs. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Fredericksburg City's complaint, Fredericksburg City already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its prior complaints against the PBMs. See Section II.A, above. Fredericksburg City was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Fredericksburg City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Fredericksburg City violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Fredericksburg City filed its original complaint on June 14, 2019, but waited until July 5, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—five years later. See City of Fredericksburg, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45898-DAP, ECF No. 1-1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: July 5, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Fredericksburg City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Fredericksburg City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Fredericksburg City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Fredericksburg City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Fredericksburg City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Fredericksburg City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Fredericksburg City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Fredericksburg City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Fredericksburg City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Fredericksburg City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Fredericksburg City’s potential claims against them. Fredericksburg City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Fredericksburg City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Fredericksburg City, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Fredericksburg City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Fredericksburg City filed its original complaint on June 14, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Fredericksburg, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45898-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Even assuming arguendo that Fredericksburg City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on June 14, 2023. Fredericksburg City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Fredericksburg City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Fredericksburg City, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1367. Incorporated Village of Garden City, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45902-DAP: Plaintiff Garden City Village, New Yor

Garden City Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Garden City Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Garden City Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Garden City Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Garden City Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Garden City Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Garden City Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 22, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Garden City, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45902-DAP, ECF No. 1. Garden City Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Garden City Village elected not to do so. Garden City Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Garden City Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Garden City Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Garden City Village's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Garden City Village filed its original complaint on October 22, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Garden City, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45902-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Garden City Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on October 22, 2023. Garden City Village's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Garden City Village's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Garden City Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Garden City Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1368. Incorporated Village of Island Park, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45903-DAP: Plaintiff Island Park Village, New York

Island Park Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Island Park Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Island Park Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Island Park Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Island Park Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Island Park Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Island Park Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 22, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Island Park, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45903-DAP, ECF No. 1. Island Park Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Island Park Village elected not to do so. Island Park Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Island Park Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Island Park Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Island Park Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Island Park Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Island Park Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Island Park Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Island Park Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Island Park Village’s potential claims against them. Island Park Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Island Park Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Island Park Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Island Park Village filed its original complaint on October 22, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Island Park, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45903-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Island Park Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on October 22, 2023. Island Park Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Island Park Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Island Park Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Island Park Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1369. Wise County Board of Supervisors v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45907-DAP: Plaintiff Wise County, Virginia

Wise County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Wise County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Wise County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Wise County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Wise County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Wise County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Wise County amended its complaint on January 21, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on October 23, 2019. See Wise County Board of Supervisors v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45907-DAP, ECF No. 6. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Wise County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Wise County's deadline to amend was in 2020. Wise County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Wise County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Wise County cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Wise County, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Wise County fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Wise County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Wise County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Wise County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Wise County filed its original complaint on September 12, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Wise County Board of Supervisors v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45907-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Wise County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Wise County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Wise County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Wise County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1370. City of Vancouver v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45908-DAP: Plaintiff Vancouver City, Washington

Vancouver City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Vancouver City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Vancouver City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Vancouver City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Vancouver City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Vancouver City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Vancouver City amended its complaint on December 22, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on October 23, 2019. See City of Vancouver v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45908-DAP, ECF No.

7. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Vancouver City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Vancouver City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Vancouver City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Vancouver City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Vancouver City’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.06% market share for Vancouver City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Vancouver City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Vancouver City violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Vancouver City filed its original complaint on October 1, 2018, but waited until October 1, 2019 to implement a litigation hold—one year later. See City of Vancouver v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45908-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: October 1, 2019). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Vancouver City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Vancouver City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Vancouver City’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Vancouver City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Vancouver City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Vancouver City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Vancouver City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Vancouver City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Vancouver City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Vancouver City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Vancouver City’s potential claims against them. Vancouver City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Washington law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Vancouver City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Washington law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Vancouver City, a municipality in Washington, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Vancouver City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Vancouver City filed its original complaint on October 1, 2018, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Vancouver v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45908-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Vancouver City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Vancouver City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Vancouver City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Washington, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Vancouver City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Vancouver City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 1, 2018—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Vancouver City, a municipality in Washington, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1371. Town of Vance, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45909-DAP: Plaintiff Vance Town, Alabama

Vance Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Vance Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Vance Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Vance Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Vance Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Vance Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Vance Town filed its original complaint on September 20, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on October 23, 2019. See Town of Vance, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45909-DAP, ECF No. 17. Vance Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Vance Town elected not to do so. Instead, Vance Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Vance Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Vance Town’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Vance Town cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Express Scripts’ PBM Has No Market Share. Express Scripts’ PBM processed zero claims for prescription opioids in Vance Town’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit A. Because Express Scripts’ PBM “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Vance Town filed its original complaint on September 20, 2019. See Town of Vance, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45909-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Vance Town never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Vance Town’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Vance Town’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Vance Town’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Vance Town therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Vance Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Vance Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Vance Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Vance Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Vance Town’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Vance Town’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Vance Town’s potential claims against them. Vance Town’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Vance Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Vance Town, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Vance Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Vance Town filed its original complaint on September 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Town of Vance, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45909-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Vance Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Vance Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Vance Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Vance Town’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Vance Town sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on September 20, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Vance Town, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1372. City of Brent, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45910-DAP: Plaintiff Brent City, Alabama

Brent City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Brent City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Brent City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Brent City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Brent City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Brent City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Brent City filed its original complaint on September 20, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on October 24, 2019. See City of Brent, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45910-DAP, ECF No. 15. Brent City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Brent City elected not to do so. Instead, Brent City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Brent City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Brent City’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Brent City cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

a finding of good cause for Brent City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Brent City filed its original complaint on September 20, 2019. See City of Brent, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45910-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Brent City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Brent City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Brent City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Brent City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Brent City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Brent City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Brent City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Brent City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Brent City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Brent City's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Brent City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Brent City's potential claims against them. Brent City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Brent City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Brent City, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Brent City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Brent City filed its original complaint on September 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Brent, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45910-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Brent City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Brent City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of

[the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Brent City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Brent City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1373. City of Sweetwater, Florida v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45914-DAP: Plaintiff Sweetwater City, Florida

Sweetwater City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Sweetwater City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Sweetwater City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Sweetwater City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Sweetwater City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Sweetwater City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Sweetwater City amended its complaint on September 16, 2019, before transfer to the MDL on October 24, 2019. See City of Sweetwater, Florida v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45914-DAP, ECF No. 4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Sweetwater City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Sweetwater City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Sweetwater City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Sweetwater City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Sweetwater City’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Sweetwater City cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

units shipped to Sweetwater City's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.29% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Sweetwater City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Sweetwater City filed its original complaint on September 16, 2019. See City of Sweetwater, Florida v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45914-DAP, ECF No. 4. Despite filing its case years ago, Sweetwater City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Sweetwater City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Sweetwater City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Sweetwater City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Sweetwater City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

The PBMs notified Sweetwater City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Sweetwater City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Sweetwater City's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Sweetwater City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Sweetwater City's potential claims against them. Sweetwater City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Sweetwater City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

1374. Town of Rockford, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45915-DAP: Plaintiff Rockford Town, Alabama

Rockford Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Rockford Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Rockford Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Rockford Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Rockford Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

1375. Dickey County v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45919-DAP: Plaintiff Dickey County, North Dakota

Dickey County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Dickey County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Dickey County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Dickey County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Dickey County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

The PBMs are prejudiced by Dickey County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Dickey County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under North Dakota law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Dickey County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under North Dakota law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Dickey County, a municipality in North Dakota, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Dickey County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Dickey County filed its original complaint on September 23, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Dickey County v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45919-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Dickey County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Dickey County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Dickey County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Dickey County, a municipality in North Dakota, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1376. Town of Easton v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45920-DAP: Plaintiff Easton Town, Massachusetts

Easton Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Easton Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Easton Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Easton Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Easton Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Easton Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Easton Town amended its complaint on January 22, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on October 24, 2019. See Town of Easton v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45920-DAP, ECF No. 9. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Easton Town declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Easton Town’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Easton Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Easton Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Easton Town cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Easton Town, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Easton Town fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See,

e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Easton Town’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.03% market share for Easton Town). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Easton Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Easton Town filed its original complaint on September 11, 2019, but waited until December 16, 2019 to implement a litigation hold. See Town of Easton v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45920-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: December 16, 2019). Easton Town’s violation of the Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455) and disregard for its discovery obligations is prejudicial to the PBMs and weighs heavily against any finding of good cause for leave to amend. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Massachusetts law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Easton Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Massachusetts law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Easton Town, a municipality in Massachusetts, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Easton Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Easton Town filed its original complaint on September 11, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Town of Easton v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45920-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Easton Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Easton Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Easton Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Massachusetts, public-nuisance claims are subject to a three-year limitations period. Easton Town’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Easton Town sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—almost five years after filing its original complaint on September 11, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Easton Town, a municipality in Massachusetts, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1377. Village of Wappingers Falls, New York v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45922-DAP: Plaintiff Wappingers Falls Village, New York

Wappingers Falls Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Wappingers Falls Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Wappingers Falls Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet. Moreover, Wappingers Falls Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Wappingers Falls Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Wappingers Falls Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Wappingers Falls Village filed its original complaint on September 18, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on October 31, 2019. See Village of Wappingers Falls, New York v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45922-DAP, ECF No. 5. Wappingers Falls Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Wappingers Falls Village elected not to do so. Instead, Wappingers Falls Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Wappingers Falls Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Wappingers Falls Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.03% market share for Wappingers Falls Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Wappingers Falls Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

units shipped to Wappingers Falls Village's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.39% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Wappingers Falls Village to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Wappingers Falls Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Wappingers Falls Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Wappingers Falls Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Wappingers Falls Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Wappingers Falls Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Wappingers Falls Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Wappingers Falls Village's potential claims against them. Wappingers Falls Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Wappingers Falls Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Wappingers Falls Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Wappingers Falls Village filed its original complaint on September 19, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of Wappingers Falls, New York v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45922-DAP, ECF No. 3. Even assuming arguendo that Wappingers Falls Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on September 19, 2023. Wappingers Falls Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Wappingers Falls Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Wappingers Falls Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Wappingers Falls Village’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1378. Board of County Commissioners of the County of Mesa v. Sackler et al.,
Case No. 1:19-op-45923-DAP: Plaintiff Mesa County, Colorado

Mesa County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Mesa County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Mesa County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Mesa County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Mesa County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Mesa County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Mesa County amended its complaint on December 24, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on October 31, 2019. See Board of County Commissioners of the County of Mesa v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45923-DAP, ECF No. 15. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Mesa County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Mesa County's deadline to amend was in 2020. Mesa County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Mesa County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Mesa County's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.09% market share for Mesa County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Mesa County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Colorado law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Mesa County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Colorado law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Mesa County, a municipality in Colorado, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Mesa County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Mesa County filed its original complaint on September 27, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants.

See Board of County Commissioners of the County of Mesa v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45923-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Mesa County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Mesa County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Mesa County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Mesa County, a municipality in Colorado, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1379. City of Norfolk, VA v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45926-DAP: Plaintiff Norfolk City, Virginia

Norfolk City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Norfolk City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Norfolk City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Norfolk City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Norfolk City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Norfolk City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Norfolk City amended its complaint on January 30, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on November

1, 2019. See City of Norfolk, VA v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45926-DAP, ECF No. 6. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Norfolk City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Norfolk City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Norfolk City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Norfolk City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Norfolk City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Norfolk City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Norfolk City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Norfolk City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.06% market share for Norfolk City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Norfolk City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Norfolk City violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Norfolk City filed its original complaint on June 6, 2019, but waited until January 17, 2020 to implement a litigation hold—over seven months later. See City of Norfolk, VA v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45926-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: January 17, 2020). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Norfolk City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Norfolk City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Norfolk City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Norfolk City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Norfolk City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Norfolk City, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Norfolk City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Norfolk City filed its original complaint on June 6, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Norfolk, VA v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45926-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Norfolk City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, five years before seeking leave to amend. Norfolk City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Norfolk City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Norfolk City, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1380. County of Burlington v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45928-DAP: Plaintiff Burlington County, New Jersey

Burlington County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Burlington County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Burlington County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Burlington County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Burlington County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Burlington County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Burlington County filed its original complaint on May 8, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 1, 2019. See County of Burlington v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45928-DAP, ECF No. 32. Burlington County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Burlington County elected not to do so. Instead, Burlington County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Burlington County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause.

See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Burlington County’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.04% market share for Burlington County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Burlington County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Burlington County previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Burlington County of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Burlington County began receiving those services on January 2, 2013. See id. Inasmuch as Burlington County seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am.

Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Burlington County knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Burlington County’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Burlington County filed its original complaint on May 8, 2019. See County of Burlington v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45928-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Despite filing its case years ago, Burlington County never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Burlington County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Burlington County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Burlington County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Burlington County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Jersey law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Burlington County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Jersey law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Burlington County, a municipality in New Jersey, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Burlington County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Burlington County filed its original complaint on May 8, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See County of Burlington v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45928-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. It is therefore indisputable that Burlington County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, five years before seeking leave to amend. Burlington County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Burlington County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Burlington County, a municipality in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1381. Prince George County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45929-DAP: Plaintiff Prince George County, Virginia

Prince George County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Prince George County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Prince George County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Prince George County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Prince George County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Prince George County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 14, 2019. See Prince George County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45929-DAP, ECF No. 1-1 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Prince George County also amended its complaint on December 20, 2019 to add claims against additional PBM-related entities. See id., at ECF No. 25 (adding claims against Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc., and ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.). Now, Prince George County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants in its original or amended complaints. Prince George County's deadline to amend was in 2020, but it waited four years after its deadline to seek leave to assert claims against the remaining PBMs. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Prince George County's complaint, Prince George County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its prior complaints against the PBMs. See Section II.A, above. Prince George County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Prince George County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Prince George County filed its original complaint on June 14, 2019, but waited until August 13, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—over five years later. See Prince George County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45929-DAP, ECF No. 1-1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: August 13, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Prince George County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Prince George County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Prince George County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Prince George County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Prince George County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Prince George County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Prince George County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Prince George County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Prince George County's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Prince George County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Prince George County's potential claims against them. Prince George County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Prince George County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Prince George County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Prince George County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Prince George County filed its original complaint on June 14, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Prince George County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45929-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Even assuming arguendo that Prince George County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on June 14, 2023. Prince George County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Prince George County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Prince George County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1382. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45933-DAP: Plaintiff Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc., New York

Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc.'s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc.'s motion should be denied due to futility, as Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section

II.A, above. Moreover, Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 22, 2019. See Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45933-DAP, ECF No. 1. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. elected not to do so. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc.’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc.’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc., a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc.’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. filed its original complaint on October 22, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45933-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc. knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc.’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc.’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc., a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Suffolk Transportation Services, Inc.’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1383. City of Pascagoula, Mississippi v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45934-DAP: Plaintiff Pascagoula City, Mississippi

Pascagoula City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Pascagoula City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Pascagoula City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Pascagoula City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Pascagoula City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Pascagoula City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Pascagoula City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 22, 2019. See City of Pascagoula, Mississippi v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45934-DAP, ECF No. 1. Pascagoula City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Pascagoula City elected not to do so. Pascagoula City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Pascagoula City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Pascagoula City filed its original complaint on October 22, 2019. See City of Pascagoula, Mississippi v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45934-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Pascagoula City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Pascagoula City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Pascagoula City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Pascagoula City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Pascagoula City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Mississippi law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Pascagoula City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Mississippi law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

It is therefore indisputable that Pascagoula City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Pascagoula City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. UOPW Local 175 Welfare Fund's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. UOPW Local 175 Welfare Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. UOPW Local 175 Welfare Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, UOPW Local 175 Welfare Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as UOPW Local 175 Welfare Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Moreover, AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 24, 2019. See AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45941-DAP, ECF No. 1. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund elected not to do so. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund began receiving those services on January 3, 2006. See id. Inasmuch as AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund filed its original complaint on October 24, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45941-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. AFL-CIO Local 475 Health & Welfare Fund's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1386. Local 381 Group Insurance Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45942-DAP: Plaintiff Local 381 Group Insurance Fund, New York

Local 381 Group Insurance Fund's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Local 381 Group Insurance Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Local 381 Group Insurance Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Local 381 Group Insurance Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as Local 381 Group Insurance Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Local 381 Group Insurance Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Local 381 Group Insurance Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 24, 2019. *See Local 381 Group Insurance Fund v. 1387. IUOE Local 138 Health Benefit Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45943-DAP: Plaintiff IUOE Local 138 Health Benefit Fund, New York

IUOE Local 138 Health Benefit Fund’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. 1388. United Crafts Benefits Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45945-DAP: Plaintiff United Crafts Benefits Fund, New York

1389. Uniformed Fire Officers Association Benefits Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45946-DAP: Plaintiff Uniformed Fire Officers Association Benefits Fund, New York

Uniformed Fire Officers Association Benefits Fund’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Uniformed Fire Officers Association Benefits Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Uniformed Fire Officers Association Benefits Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Uniformed Fire Officers Association Benefits Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as Uniformed Fire Officers Association Benefits Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitation.

1390. City of Huntsville, Alabama v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45947-DAP: Plaintiff Huntsville City, Alabama

Huntsville City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Huntsville City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Huntsville City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Huntsville City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Huntsville City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Huntsville City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Huntsville City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 25, 2019. See City of Huntsville, Alabama v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45947-DAP, ECF No. 1. Huntsville City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Huntsville City elected not to do so. Huntsville City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Huntsville City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Huntsville City filed its original complaint on October 25, 2019. See City of Huntsville, Alabama v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45947-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Huntsville City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Huntsville City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Huntsville City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Huntsville City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Huntsville City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Huntsville City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Huntsville City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Huntsville City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Huntsville City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Huntsville City's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Huntsville City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Huntsville City's potential claims against them. Huntsville City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Huntsville City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Huntsville City, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Huntsville City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Huntsville City filed its original complaint on October 25, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Huntsville, Alabama v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45947-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Huntsville City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Huntsville City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Huntsville City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Huntsville City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Huntsville City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 25, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Huntsville City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1391. Village of Islandia, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45954-DAP: Plaintiff Islandia Village, New York

Islandia Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Islandia Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Islandia Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Islandia Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Islandia Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Islandia Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Islandia Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 29, 2019. See Village of Islandia, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45954-DAP, ECF No. 1. Islandia Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Islandia Village elected not to do so. Islandia Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Islandia Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Islandia Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Islandia Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Islandia Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Islandia Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Islandia Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Islandia Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Islandia Village's potential claims against them. Islandia Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Islandia Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Islandia Village's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Islandia Village filed its original complaint on October 29, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of Islandia, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45954-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Islandia Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on October 29, 2023. Islandia Village's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Islandia Village's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See

Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Islandia Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Islandia Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1392. Village of Amityville, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45955-DAP: Plaintiff Amityville Village, New York

Amityville Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Amityville Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Amityville Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Amityville Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Amityville Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Amityville Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Amityville Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 30, 2019. See Village of Amityville, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45955-DAP, ECF No. 1. Amityville Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Amityville Village elected not to do so. Amityville Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Amityville Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Amityville Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.06% market share for Amityville Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Amityville Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Amityville Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Amityville Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Amityville Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Amityville Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Amityville Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Amityville Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Amityville Village's potential claims against them. Amityville Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Amityville Village's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Amityville Village filed its original complaint on October 30, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of Amityville, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45955-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Amityville Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on October 30, 2023. Amityville Village's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Amityville Village's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Amityville Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. 1393. Brookhaven Ambulance Co., Inc. d/b/a South Country Ambulance v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45957-DAP: Plaintiff Brookhaven Ambulance Co., Inc. d/b/a South Country Ambulance, New York

South Country Ambulance's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. South Country Ambulance failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. South Country Ambulance also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, South Country Ambulance's motion should be denied due to futility, as South Country Ambulance does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. South Country Ambulance was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above.

Moreover, South Country Ambulance filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on October 31, 2019. See Brookhaven Ambulance Co., Inc. d/b/a South Country Ambulance v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45957-DAP, ECF No. 1. South Country Ambulance could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. South Country Ambulance, a ambulance district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for South Country Ambulance’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. South Country Ambulance filed its original complaint on October 31, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Brookhaven Ambulance Co., Inc. d/b/a South Country Ambulance v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45957-DAP, ECF No. 1. 1394. Fiscal Court of Grant County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45961-DAP: Plaintiff Grant County, Kentucky

Grant County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Grant County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Grant County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Grant County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Grant County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Grant County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Grant County filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 1, 2019. See Fiscal Court of Grant County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45961-DAP, ECF No. 1. Grant County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Grant County elected not to do so. Grant County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Grant County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Grant County filed its original complaint on November 1, 2019. See Fiscal Court of Grant County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45961-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Grant County never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Grant County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Grant County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Grant County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Grant County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Kentucky law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Grant County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Kentucky law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Grant County, a municipality in Kentucky, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Grant County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Grant County filed its original complaint on November 1, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Fiscal Court of Grant County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45961-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Grant County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Grant County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Grant County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Grant County, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1395. City of San Jose, California et al. v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45964-DAP: Plaintiff San Jose City, California

San Jose City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. San Jose City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. San Jose City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, San Jose City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as San Jose City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. San Jose City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, San Jose City filed its original complaint on October 9, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 5, 2019. See City of San Jose, California et al. v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45964-DAP, ECF No. 4. San Jose City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, San Jose City elected not to do so. Instead, San Jose City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. San Jose City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. San Jose City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. San Jose City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. San Jose City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

units shipped to San Jose City's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.39% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for San Jose City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. San Jose City previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified San Jose City of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and San Jose City began receiving those services on April 16, 2010. See id. Inasmuch as San Jose City seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), San Jose City knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. San Jose City's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. San Jose City filed its original complaint on October 9, 2019, but waited until January 24, 2020 to implement a litigation hold. See City of San Jose, California et al. v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45964-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: January 24, 2020). San Jose City's violation of the Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455) and disregard for its discovery obligations is prejudicial to the PBMs and weighs heavily against any finding of good cause for leave to amend. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to State a Claim. San Jose City, a municipality in California, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. San Jose City seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: City of San Jose v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corp., et al., No. 1:19-OP-45768-DAP; and City of San Jose, California, et al. v. Sackler, et al., No. 1:19-OP-45964-DAP. San Jose City's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for San Jose City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. San Jose City filed its original complaint on October 9, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of San Jose, California et al. v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45964-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that San Jose City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. San Jose City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No.

2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. San Jose City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. San Jose City, a municipality in California, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1396. City of Ocoee, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45966-DAP: Plaintiff Ocoee City, Florida

Ocoee City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ocoee City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ocoee City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Ocoee City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Ocoee City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Ocoee City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Ocoee City filed its original complaint on October 7, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 5, 2019. See City of Ocoee, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45966-DAP, ECF No. 9. Ocoee City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Ocoee City elected not to do so. Instead, Ocoee City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Ocoee City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Ocoee City filed its original complaint on October 7, 2019. See City of Ocoee, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45966-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Ocoee City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Ocoee City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Ocoee City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Ocoee City’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Ocoee City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Ocoee City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Ocoee City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Ocoee City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Ocoee City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Ocoee City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Ocoee City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Ocoee City’s potential claims against them. Ocoee City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Ocoee City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Ocoee City, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Ocoee City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Ocoee City filed its original complaint on October 7, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Ocoee, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45966-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Ocoee City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Ocoee City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Ocoee City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. Ocoee City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Ocoee City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 7, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Ocoee City, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1397. Town of Southampton, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45968-DAP: Plaintiff Southampton Town, New York

Southampton Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Southampton Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Southampton Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Southampton Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Southampton Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Southampton Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Southampton Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 4, 2019. See Town of Southampton, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45968-

DAP, ECF No. 1. Southampton Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Southampton Town elected not to do so. Southampton Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Southampton Town's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Southampton Town's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.01% market share for Southampton Town). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Southampton Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Southampton Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Southampton Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Southampton Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Southampton Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Southampton Town’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Southampton Town’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Southampton Town’s potential claims against them. Southampton Town’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Southampton Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Southampton Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Southampton Town filed its original complaint on November 4, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Town of Southampton, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45968-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Southampton Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 4, 2023. Southampton Town's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Southampton Town's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Southampton Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Southampton Town's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1398. Coquille Indian Tribe v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45970-DAP: Plaintiff Coquille Indian Tribe, Oregon

Coquille Indian Tribe's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Coquille Indian Tribe failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Coquille Indian Tribe also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Coquille Indian Tribe's motion should be denied due to futility, as Coquille Indian Tribe does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Coquille Indian Tribe was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Coquille Indian Tribe filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 5, 2019. See Coquille Indian Tribe v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45970-DAP, ECF No. 1. Coquille Indian Tribe could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Coquille Indian Tribe elected not to do so. Coquille Indian Tribe waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Coquille Indian Tribe's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Coquille Indian Tribe filed its original complaint on November 5, 2019. See Coquille Indian Tribe v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45970-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Coquille Indian Tribe never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Coquille Indian Tribe's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Coquille Indian Tribe's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Oregon law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Coquille Indian Tribe's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Oregon law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Coquille Indian Tribe, a native tribe in Oregon, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Coquille Indian Tribe's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Coquille Indian Tribe filed its original complaint on November 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Coquille Indian Tribe v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45970-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Coquille Indian Tribe knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Coquille Indian Tribe, a native tribe in Oregon, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1399. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45972-DAP: Plaintiff Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation, Nevada and Utah

Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation's motion should be denied due to futility, as Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of

Lack of Diligence. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 5, 2019. *See Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation v. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation elected not to do so. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has No Market Share. Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy shipped zero opioid prescriptions to Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit B. Because Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' PBM Has No Market Share. Express Scripts' PBM processed zero claims for prescription opioids in Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit A. Because Express Scripts' PBM "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Nevada and Utah law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Nevada and Utah law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation filed its original complaint on November 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45972-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation, a native tribe in Nevada and Utah, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1400. City of Homewood, Alabama v. Teva Pharmaceuticals et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45973-DAP: Plaintiff Homewood City, Alabama

Homewood City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Homewood City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Homewood City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Homewood City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Homewood City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Homewood City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Homewood City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 5, 2019. See City of Homewood, Alabama v. Teva Pharmaceuticals et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45973-DAP, ECF No. 1. Homewood City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Homewood City elected not to do so. Homewood City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Homewood City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Homewood City’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Homewood City cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Homewood City violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Homewood City filed its original complaint on November 5, 2019, but waited until August 3, 2020 to implement a litigation hold—nearly nine months later. See City of Homewood, Alabama v. Teva Pharmaceuticals et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45973-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: August 3, 2020). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Homewood City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Homewood City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Homewood City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Homewood City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Homewood City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Homewood City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Homewood City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Homewood City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Homewood City's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Homewood City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Homewood City's potential claims against them. Homewood City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Homewood City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Homewood City, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Homewood City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Homewood City filed its original complaint on November 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Homewood, Alabama v. Teva Pharmaceuticals et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45973-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Homewood City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Homewood City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Homewood City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Homewood City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Homewood City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on November 5, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Homewood City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1401. Pinoleville Pomo Nation v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45974-DAP: Plaintiff Pinoleville Pomo Nation, California

Pinoleville Pomo Nation’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Pinoleville Pomo Nation failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Pinoleville Pomo Nation also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Pinoleville Pomo Nation’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Pinoleville Pomo Nation does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Pinoleville Pomo Nation was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Pinoleville Pomo Nation filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 5, 2019. See Pinoleville Pomo Nation v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45974-DAP, ECF No. 1. Pinoleville Pomo Nation could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Pinoleville Pomo Nation elected not to do so. Pinoleville Pomo Nation waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Pinoleville Pomo

Nation's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Pinoleville Pomo Nation filed its original complaint on November 5, 2019. See Pinoleville Pomo Nation v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45974-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Pinoleville Pomo Nation never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Pinoleville Pomo Nation's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Pinoleville Pomo Nation's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Pinoleville Pomo Nation's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Pinoleville Pomo Nation therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to State a Claim. Pinoleville Pomo Nation, a native tribe in California, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Pinoleville Pomo Nation's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Pinoleville Pomo Nation filed its original complaint on November 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. *See Pinoleville Pomo Nation v. Pinoleville Pomo Nation's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Pinoleville Pomo Nation, a native tribe in California, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1402. Pueblo of Pojoaque v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45975-DAP: Plaintiff Pueblo of Pojoaque, New Mexico

Pueblo of Pojoaque’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Pueblo of Pojoaque failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Pueblo of Pojoaque also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Pueblo of Pojoaque’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Pueblo of Pojoaque does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Pueblo of Pojoaque was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Pueblo of Pojoaque filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 5, 2019. See Pueblo of Pojoaque v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45975-DAP, ECF No. 1. Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Pueblo of Pojoaque filed its original complaint on November 5, 2019. *See Pueblo of Pojoaque v. Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Pueblo of Pojoaque has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Pueblo of Pojoaque’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Pueblo of Pojoaque’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6

(denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Mexico law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Pueblo of Pojoaque's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Mexico law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Pueblo of Pojoaque, a native tribe in New Mexico, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Pueblo of Pojoaque, a native tribe in New Mexico, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1403. City of Greeley v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45977-DAP: Plaintiff Greeley City, Colorado

Greeley City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Greeley City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Greeley City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Greeley City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Greeley City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Greeley City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Greeley City amended its complaint on January 4, 2021, after transfer to the MDL on November 6, 2019. See City of Greeley v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45977-DAP, ECF No. 11. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Greeley City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Greeley City's deadline to amend was in 2020. Greeley City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Greeley City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Colorado law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Greeley City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Colorado law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Greeley City, a municipality in Colorado, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Greeley City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Greeley City filed its original complaint on October 9, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Greeley v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45977-DAP, ECF No. 2. It is therefore indisputable that Greeley City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Greeley City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Greeley City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Greeley City, a municipality in Colorado, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1404. City of Columbia South Carolina v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45979-DAP: Plaintiff Columbia City, South Carolina

Columbia City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Columbia City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Columbia City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Columbia City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Columbia City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Columbia City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Columbia City filed its original complaint on October 11, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 7, 2019. See City of Columbia South Carolina v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45979-DAP, ECF No. 7. Columbia City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Columbia City elected not to do so. Instead, Columbia City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Columbia City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Columbia City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.01% market share for Columbia City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Columbia City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Columbia City previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Columbia City of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Columbia City began receiving those services on March 1, 2010. See id. Inasmuch as Columbia City seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Columbia City knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Columbia City's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Columbia City filed its original complaint on October 11, 2019. See City of Columbia South Carolina v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45979-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Columbia City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Columbia City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Columbia City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Columbia City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Columbia City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court's repeated instructions to the contrary, Columbia City has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Columbia City's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Columbia City's failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under South Carolina law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Columbia City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under South Carolina law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Columbia City, a municipality in South Carolina, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Columbia City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Columbia City filed its original complaint on October 11, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Columbia South Carolina v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45979-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Columbia City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Columbia City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Columbia City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Columbia City, a municipality in South Carolina, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1405. City of Homestead, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45980-DAP: Plaintiff Homestead City, Florida

Homestead City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Homestead City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Homestead City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Homestead City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Homestead City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Homestead City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Homestead City filed its original complaint on October 7, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 7, 2019. See City of Homestead, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45980-DAP, ECF No. 6. Homestead City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Homestead City elected not to do so. Instead, Homestead City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Homestead City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Homestead City filed its original complaint on October 7, 2019. See City of Homestead, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45980-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Homestead City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Homestead City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Homestead City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Homestead City’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Homestead City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Homestead City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Homestead City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Homestead City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Homestead City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Homestead City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Homestead City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Homestead City’s potential claims against them. Homestead City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Homestead City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Homestead City, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Homestead City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Homestead City filed its original complaint on October 7, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Homestead, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45980-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Homestead City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Homestead City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Homestead City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. Homestead City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Homestead City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 7, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Homestead City, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1406. City of Bainbridge Island v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45981-DAP: Plaintiff Bainbridge Island City, Washington

Bainbridge Island City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Bainbridge Island City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Bainbridge Island City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Bainbridge Island City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Bainbridge Island City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Bainbridge Island City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above.

Moreover, Bainbridge Island City amended its complaint on February 9, 2021, after transfer to the MDL on November 7, 2019. See City of Bainbridge Island v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45981-DAP, ECF No. 11. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Bainbridge Island City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Bainbridge Island City's deadline to amend was in 2020. Bainbridge Island City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Bainbridge Island City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. But OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Bainbridge Island City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.13% market share for Bainbridge Island City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Bainbridge Island City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Bainbridge Island City filed its original complaint on October 8, 2019. See City of Bainbridge Island v. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45981-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Bainbridge Island City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Washington law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Washington, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Bainbridge Island City's public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Bainbridge Island City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 8, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. 1407. Macon County, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45982-DAP: Plaintiff Macon County, Alabama

Macon County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Macon County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Macon County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Macon County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Macon County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Macon County's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.10% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Macon County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Macon County lacks statutory standing to assert a public nuisance claim under Alabama law because it “is clearly not an individual, nor a city, nor the [s]tate,” and thus amendment is futile. Lee County, 2022 WL 450810, at *4 (concluding an Alabama county lacked standing to bring a Ala. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Macon County, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1408. Crenshaw County, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45983-DAP: Plaintiff Crenshaw County, Alabama

Crenshaw County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Crenshaw County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Crenshaw County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Crenshaw County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Crenshaw County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Crenshaw County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above.

Moreover, Crenshaw County filed its original complaint on October 4, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 7, 2019. See Crenshaw County, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45983-DAP, ECF No. 23. Crenshaw County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Crenshaw County elected not to do so. OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Crenshaw County's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.05% market share for Crenshaw County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Crenshaw County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

support a finding of good cause for Crenshaw County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Crenshaw County filed its original complaint on October 4, 2019. See Crenshaw County, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45983-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Crenshaw County never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Crenshaw County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Crenshaw County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Crenshaw County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Crenshaw County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Crenshaw County's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Crenshaw County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Crenshaw County's potential claims against them. Crenshaw County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Crenshaw County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Crenshaw County, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Crenshaw County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Crenshaw County filed its original complaint on October 4, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Crenshaw County, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45983-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Crenshaw County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Crenshaw County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Crenshaw County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Crenshaw County’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Crenshaw County sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 4, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Crenshaw County lacks statutory standing to assert a public nuisance claim under Alabama law because it “is clearly not an individual, nor a city, nor the [s]tate,” and thus amendment is futile. Lee County, 2022 WL 450810, at *4 (concluding an Alabama county lacked standing to bring a Ala. Code § 6-5-121 claim); see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Crenshaw County, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1409. City of Palatka, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45984-DAP: Plaintiff Palatka City, Florida

Palatka City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Palatka City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Palatka City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Palatka City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Palatka City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Palatka City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Palatka City filed its original complaint on October 8, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 7, 2019. See City of Palatka, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45984-DAP, ECF No. 4. Palatka City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Palatka City elected not to do so. Instead, Palatka City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Palatka City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Palatka City filed its original complaint on October 8, 2019. See City of Palatka, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45984-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Palatka City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Palatka City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Palatka City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Palatka City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Palatka City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Palatka City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Palatka City, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Palatka City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Palatka City filed its original complaint on October 8, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Palatka, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45984-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Palatka City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Palatka City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Palatka City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. Palatka City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Palatka City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 8, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Palatka City, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1410. County of Freestone v. Purdue Pharma L.P., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45985-DAP: Plaintiff Freestone County, Texas

Freestone County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Freestone County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Freestone County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Freestone County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Freestone County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Freestone County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Freestone County first amended its complaint on September 3, 2019. See County of Freestone v. Purdue Pharma L.P., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45985-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Freestone County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Freestone County’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Freestone County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Freestone County’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Freestone County’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.27% market share for Freestone County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Freestone County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

support a finding of good cause for Freestone County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Freestone County filed its original complaint on October 23, 2018. See County of Freestone v. Purdue Pharma L.P., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45985-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Despite filing its case years ago, Freestone County never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Freestone County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Freestone County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Freestone County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Freestone County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Freestone County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Freestone County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Freestone County's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Freestone County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Freestone County's potential claims against them. Freestone County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Texas law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Freestone County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Texas law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Freestone County, a municipality in Texas, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Freestone County, a municipality in Texas, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1411. City of Geneva, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45986-DAP: Plaintiff Geneva City, Alabama

Geneva City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Geneva City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Geneva City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Geneva City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Geneva City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

(0.005% market share for Geneva City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Geneva City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Geneva City filed its original complaint on October 9, 2019. See City of Geneva, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-

45986-DAP, ECF No. 1. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Geneva City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1412. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45991-DAP: Plaintiff Building Service Local 2
Welfare Fund, New York

Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 6, 2019. See Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45991-DAP, ECF No. 1. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund elected not to do so. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint on November 6, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45991-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Building Service Local 2 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Building Service

Local 2 Welfare Fund's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1413. Incorporated Village of Lawrence, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45992-DAP: Plaintiff Lawrence Village, New York

Lawrence Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Lawrence Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Lawrence Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Lawrence Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Lawrence Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Lawrence Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Lawrence Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 6, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Lawrence, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45992-DAP, ECF No. 1. Lawrence Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Lawrence Village elected not to do so. Lawrence Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Lawrence Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459

(affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Lawrence Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Lawrence Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Lawrence Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Lawrence Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Lawrence Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Lawrence Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Lawrence Village’s potential claims against them. Lawrence Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Lawrence Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Lawrence Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Lawrence Village filed its original complaint on November 6, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Lawrence, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45992-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Lawrence Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 6, 2023. Lawrence Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Lawrence Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Lawrence Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Lawrence Village’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1414. Westmoreland County, Virginia et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45993-DAP: Plaintiff Richmond County, Virginia

Richmond County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Richmond County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Richmond County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Richmond County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Richmond County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Richmond County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Richmond County amended its complaint on March 16, 2021, after directly filing in the MDL. See Westmoreland County, Virginia et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45993-DAP, ECF No. 5. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Richmond County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Richmond County’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Richmond County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Richmond County’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Richmond County filed its original complaint on November 7, 2019. See Westmoreland County, Virginia et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45993-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Richmond County never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Richmond County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Richmond County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Richmond County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Richmond County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Richmond County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Richmond County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Richmond County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Richmond County filed its original complaint on November 7, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Westmoreland County, Virginia et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45993-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Richmond County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Richmond County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Richmond County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1415. Westmoreland County, Virginia et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45993-DAP: Plaintiff Warren County, Virginia

Warren County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Warren County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Warren County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Warren County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Warren County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Warren County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Warren County filed its original complaint on November 7, 2019. *See Westmoreland County, Virginia et al. v. 1416. Westmoreland County, Virginia et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45993-DAP: Plaintiff Westmoreland County, Virginia

Westmoreland County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Westmoreland County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. 1417. Coosa County, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45995-DAP: Plaintiff Coosa County, Alabama

Coosa County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Coosa County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Coosa County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Coosa County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Coosa County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Coosa County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Coosa County filed its original complaint on October 4, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 12, 2019. *See Coosa County, Alabama v. That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Coosa County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Coosa County filed its original complaint on October 4, 2019. See Coosa County, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45995-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Coosa County never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Coosa County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Coosa County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Coosa County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant,

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al.*, Case No. 1:19-op-45995-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Coosa County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Coosa County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Coosa County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Coosa County’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Coosa County sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 4, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Coosa County lacks statutory standing to assert a public nuisance claim under Alabama law because it “is clearly not an individual, nor a city, nor the [s]tate,” and thus amendment is futile. Lee County, 2022 WL 450810, at *4 (concluding an Alabama county lacked standing to bring a Ala. Code § 6-5-121 claim); see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Coosa County, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1418. Town of Andover v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA Inc et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45996-DAP: Plaintiff Andover Town, Massachusetts

Andover Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Andover Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Andover Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Andover Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Andover Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Andover Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Andover Town amended its complaint on February 10, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on November 12, 2019. See Town of Andover v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA Inc et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45996-DAP, ECF No. 26. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Andover Town declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Andover Town’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Andover Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Andover Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Andover Town cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Motley Rice LLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Andover Town, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Andover Town fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Andover Town filed its original complaint on October 11, 2019, but waited until February 27, 2020 to implement a litigation hold. See Town of Andover v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA Inc et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45996-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: February 27, 2020). Andover Town’s violation of the Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455) and disregard for its discovery obligations is prejudicial to the PBMs and weighs heavily against any finding of good cause for leave to amend. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Andover Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Andover Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Andover Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Andover Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Andover Town’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Andover Town’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Andover Town’s potential claims against them. Andover Town’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Massachusetts law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Andover Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Massachusetts law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Andover Town, a municipality in Massachusetts, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Andover Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Andover Town filed its original complaint on October 11, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Town of Andover v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA Inc et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45996-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Andover Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Andover Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Andover Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Massachusetts, public-nuisance claims are subject to a three-year limitations period. Andover Town’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Andover Town sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on October 11, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Andover Town, a municipality in Massachusetts, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1419. West Pittston, Pennsylvania v. The Purdue Frederick Company, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45997-DAP: Plaintiff West Pittston Borough, Pennsylvania

West Pittston Borough’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. West Pittston Borough failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. West Pittston Borough also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, West Pittston Borough’s motion should be denied due to futility, as West Pittston Borough does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. West Pittston Borough was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, West Pittston Borough filed its original complaint on October 14, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 12, 2019. See West Pittston, Pennsylvania v. The Purdue Frederick Company, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45997-DAP, ECF No. 4. West Pittston Borough could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, West Pittston Borough elected not to do so. Instead, West Pittston Borough waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. West Pittston Borough’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to West Pittston Borough’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, West Pittston Borough cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. West Pittston Borough filed its original complaint on October 14, 2019. See West Pittston, Pennsylvania v. The Purdue Frederick Company, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45997-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, West Pittston Borough never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating West Pittston Borough’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of West Pittston Borough’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by West Pittston Borough’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and West Pittston Borough therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, West Pittston Borough failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to West Pittston Borough’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified West Pittston Borough of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but West Pittston Borough refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, West Pittston Borough’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. West Pittston Borough’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against West Pittston Borough’s potential claims against them. West Pittston Borough’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Pennsylvania law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But West Pittston Borough’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Pennsylvania law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time.

That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. West Pittston Borough, a municipality in Pennsylvania, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for West Pittston Borough's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. West Pittston Borough filed its original complaint on October 14, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. *See West Pittston, Pennsylvania v. West Pittston Borough's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. West Pittston Borough, a municipality in Pennsylvania, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1420. Village of Millerton, NY et al. v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45998-DAP: Plaintiff Millerton Village, New York

Millerton Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Millerton Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Millerton Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Millerton Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Millerton Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Millerton Village's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.01% market share for Millerton Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Millerton Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Millerton Village's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.24% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Millerton Village to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Millerton Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Millerton Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Millerton Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Millerton Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Millerton Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Millerton Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Millerton Village's potential claims against them. Millerton Village filed its original complaint on November 11, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of Millerton, NY et al. v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45998-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Millerton Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 11, 2023. Millerton Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Millerton Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Millerton Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Millerton Village’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1421. Incorporated Village of East Rockaway, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-45999-DAP: Plaintiff East Rockaway Village, New York

East Rockaway Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. East Rockaway Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. East Rockaway Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, East Rockaway Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as East Rockaway Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. East Rockaway Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in

New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. East Rockaway Village’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1422. Incorporated Village of Floral Park v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46000-DAP: Plaintiff Floral Park Village, New York

Floral Park Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Floral Park Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Floral Park Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Floral Park Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Floral Park Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Floral Park Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Floral Park Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 11, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Floral Park v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46000-DAP, ECF No. 1. Floral Park Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Floral Park Village elected not to do so. Floral Park Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Floral Park Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459

(affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Floral Park Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.13% market share for Floral Park Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Floral Park Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Floral Park Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Floral Park Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Floral Park Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Floral Park Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Floral Park Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Floral Park Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Floral Park Village’s potential claims against them. Floral Park Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Floral Park Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Floral Park Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Floral Park Village filed its original complaint on November 11, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Floral Park v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46000-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Floral Park Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 11, 2023. Floral Park Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Floral Park Village’s request for leave to amend to add a

RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Floral Park Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Floral Park Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1423. Village of Stewart Manor, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46002-DAP: Plaintiff Stewart Manor Village, New York

Stewart Manor Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Stewart Manor Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Stewart Manor Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Stewart Manor Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Stewart Manor Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Stewart Manor Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Stewart Manor Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 13, 2019. See Village of Stewart Manor, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46002-DAP, ECF No. 1. Stewart Manor Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Stewart Manor Village elected not to do so. Stewart Manor Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Stewart Manor Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Stewart Manor Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Stewart Manor Village cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Stewart Manor Village violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Stewart Manor Village filed its original complaint on November 13, 2019, but waited until November 13, 2020 to implement a litigation hold—one year later. See Village of Stewart Manor, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46002-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: November 13, 2020). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Stewart Manor Village’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Stewart Manor Village’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Stewart Manor Village’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Stewart Manor Village therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Stewart Manor Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Stewart Manor Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Stewart Manor Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Stewart Manor Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Stewart Manor Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Stewart Manor Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Stewart Manor Village’s potential claims against them. Stewart Manor Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See

Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Stewart Manor Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Stewart Manor Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Stewart Manor Village filed its original complaint on November 13, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of Stewart Manor, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46002-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Stewart Manor Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 13, 2023. Stewart Manor Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. Stewart Manor Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Stewart Manor Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Stewart Manor Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1424. South Farmingdale Fire District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46003-DAP: Plaintiff South Farmingdale Fire District, New York

South Farmingdale Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. South Farmingdale Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. South Farmingdale Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, South Farmingdale Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as South Farmingdale Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. South Farmingdale Fire District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, South Farmingdale Fire District amended its complaint on November 14, 2019, after directly filing in the MDL. See South Farmingdale Fire District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46003-DAP, ECF No. 2. Unlike many other plaintiffs, South Farmingdale Fire District declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. South Farmingdale Fire District's deadline to amend was in 2020. South Farmingdale Fire District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. South Farmingdale Fire District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, South Farmingdale Fire District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to South Farmingdale Fire District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. Under this Court’s orders, South Farmingdale Fire District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. South Farmingdale Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But South Farmingdale Fire District's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. South Farmingdale Fire District, a fire district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for South Farmingdale Fire District's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. South Farmingdale Fire District filed its original complaint on November 13, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. *See South Farmingdale Fire District, NY v. 1425. Port Washington Water District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46004-DAP: Plaintiff Port Washington Water District, New York

Port Washington Water District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Port Washington Water District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Port Washington Water District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Port Washington Water District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Port Washington Water District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Port Washington Water District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Port Washington Water District amended its complaint on November 14, 2019, after directly filing in the MDL. *See Port Washington Water District, NY v. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Port Washington Water District declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Port Washington Water District's deadline to amend was in 2020. Port Washington Water District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Port Washington Water District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Under this Court’s orders, Port Washington Water District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Port Washington Water District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Port Washington Water District’s potential claims against them. Port Washington Water District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Port Washington Water District's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Port Washington Water District, a water district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Port Washington Water District's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Port Washington Water District filed its original complaint on November 13, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. *See Port Washington Water District, NY v. Port Washington Water District's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Port Washington Water District, a water district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Port Washington Water District’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1426. City of Long Beach, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46005-DAP: Plaintiff Long Beach City, New York

Long Beach City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Long Beach City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Long Beach City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Long Beach City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Long Beach City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Long Beach City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Long Beach City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 13, 2019. See City of Long Beach, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46005-DAP, ECF No. 1. Long Beach City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Long Beach City elected not to do so. Long Beach City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Long Beach City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Long Beach City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Long Beach City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Long Beach City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Long Beach City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Long Beach City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Long Beach City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Long Beach City's potential claims against them. Long Beach City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Long Beach City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Long Beach City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Long Beach City filed its original complaint on November 13, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Long Beach, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46005-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Long Beach City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 13, 2023. Long Beach City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Long Beach City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Long Beach City, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Long Beach City's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1427. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46008-DAP: Plaintiff Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund, Texas

Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 14, 2019. See Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46008-DAP, ECF No. 1.

Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund elected not to do so. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Texas law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Texas law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time.

That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in Texas, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint on November 14, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46008-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 14, 2023. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Plumbers Local Union No. 68 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in Texas, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1428. Incorporated Village of Lynbrook, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46009-DAP: Plaintiff Lynbrook Village, New York

Lynbrook Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Lynbrook Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Lynbrook Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Lynbrook Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Lynbrook Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Lynbrook Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Lynbrook Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 15, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Lynbrook, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46009-DAP, ECF No. 1. Lynbrook Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Lynbrook Village elected not to do so. Lynbrook Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Lynbrook Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Lynbrook Village's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.0009% market share for Lynbrook Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Lynbrook Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Lynbrook Village's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.17% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Lynbrook Village to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Lynbrook Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Lynbrook Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Lynbrook Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Lynbrook Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Lynbrook Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Lynbrook Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Lynbrook Village's potential claims against them. Lynbrook Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Lynbrook Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Lynbrook Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Lynbrook Village filed its original complaint on November 15, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Lynbrook, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46009-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Lynbrook Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 15, 2023. Lynbrook Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Lynbrook Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Lynbrook Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Lynbrook Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1429. Town of Eatonville, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46014-DAP: Plaintiff Eatonville Town, Florida

Eatonville Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Eatonville Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Eatonville Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Eatonville Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Eatonville Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Eatonville Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Eatonville Town filed its original complaint on October 21, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on November 15, 2019. See Town of Eatonville, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46014-DAP, ECF No. 6. Eatonville Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Eatonville Town elected not to do so. Instead, Eatonville Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Eatonville Town's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See

Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Eatonville Town’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Eatonville Town cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Eatonville Town filed its original complaint on October 21, 2019. See Town of Eatonville, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46014-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Eatonville Town never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Eatonville Town’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Eatonville Town’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Eatonville Town’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Eatonville Town therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Eatonville Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Eatonville Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Eatonville Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Eatonville Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Eatonville Town’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Eatonville Town’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Eatonville Town’s potential claims against them. Eatonville Town’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Eatonville Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Eatonville Town, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Eatonville Town's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Eatonville Town filed its original complaint on October 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Town of Eatonville, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46014-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Eatonville Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Eatonville Town's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Eatonville Town's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. Eatonville Town's public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Eatonville Town sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on October 21, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Eatonville Town, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1430. Roslyn Water District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46015-DAP: Plaintiff Roslyn Water District, New York

Roslyn Water District’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Roslyn Water District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Roslyn Water District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Roslyn Water District’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Roslyn Water District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Roslyn Water District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Roslyn Water District filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 15, 2019. See Rosalyn Water District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46015-DAP, ECF No. 1. Roslyn Water District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Roslyn Water District elected not to do so. Roslyn Water District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Roslyn Water District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Roslyn Water District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Roslyn Water District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Roslyn Water District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Roslyn Water District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Roslyn Water District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Roslyn Water District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Roslyn Water District’s potential claims against them. Roslyn Water District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Roslyn Water District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Roslyn Water District, a water district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Roslyn Water District's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Roslyn Water District filed its original complaint on November 15, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Rosalyn Water District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46015-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Roslyn Water District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 15, 2023. Roslyn Water District's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Roslyn Water District's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Roslyn Water District, a water district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Roslyn Water District's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1431. Town of Brookhaven, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46018-DAP: Plaintiff Brookhaven Town, New York

Brookhaven Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Brookhaven Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Brookhaven Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Brookhaven Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Brookhaven Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Brookhaven Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Brookhaven Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 15, 2019. See Town of Brookhaven, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46018-DAP, ECF No. 1. Brookhaven Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Brookhaven Town elected not to do so. Brookhaven Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Brookhaven Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Express Scripts' PBM Has No Market Share. Express Scripts' PBM processed zero claims for prescription opioids in Brookhaven Town's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit A. Because Express Scripts' PBM "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Brookhaven Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Brookhaven Town's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Brookhaven Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Brookhaven Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Brookhaven Town's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Brookhaven Town's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Brookhaven Town's potential claims against them. Brookhaven Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Brookhaven Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Brookhaven Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Brookhaven Town filed its original complaint on November 15, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Town of Brookhaven, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46018-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Brookhaven Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 15, 2023. Brookhaven Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Brookhaven Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Brookhaven Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Brookhaven Town’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1432. Village of Bellport, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46019-DAP: Plaintiff Bellport Village, New York

Bellport Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Bellport Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Bellport Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Bellport Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Bellport Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Bellport Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Bellport Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 15, 2019. See Village of Bellport, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46019-DAP, ECF No. 1. Bellport Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Bellport Village elected not to do so. OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Bellport Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.003% market share for Bellport Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Bellport Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Bellport Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Bellport Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Bellport Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Bellport Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Bellport Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Bellport Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Bellport Village’s potential claims against them. Bellport Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Bellport Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

1433. Incorporated Village of New Hyde Park, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46022-DAP: Plaintiff New Hyde Park Village, New York

New Hyde Park Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. New Hyde Park Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. New Hyde Park Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, New Hyde Park Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as New Hyde Park Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to New Hyde Park Village's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.07% market share for New Hyde Park Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for New Hyde Park Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Valley Stream Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Valley Stream Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Valley Stream Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Valley Stream Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Valley Stream Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Valley Stream Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

1435. Incorporated Village of Massapequa Park, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46024-DAP: Plaintiff Massapequa Park Village, New York

Massapequa Park Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Massapequa Park Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Massapequa Park Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or

Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Massapequa Park Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Massapequa Park Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Massapequa Park Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Massapequa Park Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 18, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Massapequa Park, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46024-DAP, ECF No. 1. Massapequa Park Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Massapequa Park Village elected not to do so. Massapequa Park Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Massapequa Park Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Massapequa Park Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Massapequa Park Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Massapequa Park Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Massapequa Park Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Massapequa Park Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Massapequa Park Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Massapequa Park Village's potential claims against them. Massapequa Park Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Massapequa Park Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Massapequa Park Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Massapequa Park Village filed its original complaint on November 18, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Massapequa Park, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46024-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Massapequa Park Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 18, 2023. Massapequa Park Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Massapequa Park Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Massapequa Park Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Massapequa Park Village’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1436. Incorporated Village of Westbury, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46025-DAP: Plaintiff Westbury Village, New York

Westbury Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Westbury Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Westbury Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Westbury Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Westbury Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Westbury Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Westbury Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 18, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Westbury, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46025-DAP, ECF No. 1. Westbury Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Westbury Village elected not to do so. Westbury Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Westbury Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459

(affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Westbury Village violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Westbury Village filed its original complaint on November 18, 2019, but waited until November 18, 2020 to implement a litigation hold—one year later. See Incorporated Village of Westbury, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46025-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: November 18, 2020). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Westbury Village’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Westbury Village’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Westbury Village's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Westbury Village therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Westbury Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Westbury Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Westbury Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Westbury Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Westbury Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Westbury Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Westbury Village's potential claims against them. Westbury Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Westbury Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Westbury Village's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Westbury Village filed its original complaint on November 18, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Westbury, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46025-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Westbury Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 18, 2023. Westbury Village's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Westbury Village's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Westbury Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Westbury Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

Case No. 1:19-op-46026-DAP: Plaintiff Hempstead Village, New York

Hempstead Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Hempstead Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hempstead Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hempstead Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Hempstead Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Hempstead Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Hempstead Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 18, 2019. *See Incorporated Village of Hempstead, NY v. OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Hempstead Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.09% market share for Hempstead Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Hempstead Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts’ Mail Order Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Hempstead Village’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.07% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Hempstead Village to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Hempstead Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Hempstead Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Hempstead Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Hempstead Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Hempstead Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Hempstead Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Hempstead Village’s potential claims against them. Hempstead Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Hempstead Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Hempstead Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Hempstead Village filed its original complaint on November 18, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Hempstead, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46026-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Hempstead Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 18, 2023. Hempstead Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Hempstead Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Hempstead Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Hempstead Village’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1438. Incorporated Village of Poquott, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46031-DAP: Plaintiff Poquott Village, New York

Poquott Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Poquott Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Poquott Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Poquott Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Poquott Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Poquott Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Poquott Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 20, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Poquott, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46031-DAP, ECF No. 1. Poquott Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Poquott Village elected not to do so. Poquott Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Poquott Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Poquott Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Poquott Village cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Poquott Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Poquott Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Poquott Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Poquott Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Poquott Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Poquott Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Poquott Village’s potential claims against them. Poquott Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Poquott Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Poquott Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Poquott Village filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Poquott, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46031-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Poquott Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 20, 2023. Poquott Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Poquott Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Poquott Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Poquott Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1439. Incorporated Village of Lake Grove, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46032-DAP: Plaintiff Lake Grove Village, New York

Lake Grove Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Lake Grove Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Lake Grove Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Lake Grove Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Lake Grove Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Lake Grove Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Lake Grove Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 20, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Lake Grove, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46032-DAP, ECF No. 1. Lake Grove Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Lake Grove Village elected not to do so. Lake Grove Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Lake Grove Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879

(affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Express Scripts’ PBM Has No Market Share. Express Scripts’ PBM processed zero claims for prescription opioids in Lake Grove Village’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit A. Because Express Scripts’ PBM “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Lake Grove Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Lake Grove Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Lake Grove Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Lake Grove Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Lake Grove Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Lake Grove Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Lake Grove Village’s potential claims against them. Lake Grove Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Lake Grove Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Lake Grove Village's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Lake Grove Village filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Lake Grove, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46032-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Lake Grove Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 20, 2023. Lake Grove Village's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Lake Grove Village's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Lake Grove Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Lake Grove Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied.

Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1440. Town of Smithtown, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46033-DAP: Plaintiff Smithtown Town, New York

Smithtown Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Smithtown Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Smithtown Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Smithtown Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Smithtown Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Smithtown Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Smithtown Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 20, 2019. See Town of Smithtown, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46033-DAP, ECF No. 1. Smithtown Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Smithtown Town elected not to do so. Smithtown Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Smithtown Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Smithtown Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Smithtown Town's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Smithtown Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Smithtown Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Smithtown Town's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Smithtown Town's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Smithtown Town's potential claims against them. Smithtown Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Smithtown Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Smithtown Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Smithtown Town filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Town of Smithtown, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46033-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Smithtown Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 20, 2023. Smithtown Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Smithtown Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Smithtown Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Smithtown Town's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1441. Bellmore Fire District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46034-DAP: Plaintiff Bellmore Fire District, New York

Bellmore Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Bellmore Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Bellmore Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Bellmore Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Bellmore Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Bellmore Fire District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Bellmore Fire District filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 20, 2019. See Bellmore Fire District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46034-DAP, ECF No. 1. Bellmore Fire District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Bellmore Fire District elected not to do so. Bellmore Fire District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Bellmore Fire District's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879

(affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Bellmore Fire District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Bellmore Fire District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Bellmore Fire District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Bellmore Fire District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Bellmore Fire District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Bellmore Fire District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Bellmore Fire District’s potential claims against them. Bellmore Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Bellmore Fire District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Bellmore Fire District, a fire district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Bellmore Fire District's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Bellmore Fire District filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Bellmore Fire District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46034-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Bellmore Fire District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 20, 2023. Bellmore Fire District's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Bellmore Fire District's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Bellmore Fire District, a fire district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Bellmore Fire District's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1442. Town of Hempstead, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46035-DAP: Plaintiff Hempstead Town, New York

Hempstead Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Hempstead Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hempstead Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hempstead Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Hempstead Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Hempstead Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Hempstead Town's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.09% market share for Hempstead Town). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Hempstead Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Hempstead Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Hempstead Town's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. 1443. Town of Riverhead, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46036-DAP: Plaintiff Riverhead Town, New York

Riverhead Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Riverhead Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Riverhead Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Riverhead Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Riverhead Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

1444. Incorporated Village of Farmingdale, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46037-DAP: Plaintiff Farmingdale Village, New York

Farmingdale Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Farmingdale Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Farmingdale Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Farmingdale Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Farmingdale Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Even assuming arguendo that Huntington Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 20, 2023. Huntington Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Huntington Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Huntington Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Huntington Town’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied.

Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1446. Incorporated Village of Patchogue, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46039-DAP: Plaintiff Patchogue Village, New York

Patchogue Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Patchogue Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Patchogue Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Patchogue Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Patchogue Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Patchogue Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Patchogue Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 20, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Patchogue, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46039-DAP, ECF No. 1. Patchogue Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Patchogue Village elected not to do so. Patchogue Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Patchogue Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Patchogue Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Patchogue Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Patchogue Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Patchogue Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Patchogue Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Patchogue Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Patchogue Village's potential claims against them. Patchogue Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Patchogue Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Patchogue Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Patchogue Village filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Patchogue, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46039-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Patchogue Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 20, 2023. Patchogue Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

1447. Town of East Hampton, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46040-DAP: Plaintiff East Hampton Village, New York

East Hampton Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. East Hampton Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. East Hampton Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, East Hampton Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as East Hampton Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

1448. Town of Oyster Bay, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46041-DAP: Plaintiff Oyster Bay Town, New York

Oyster Bay Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Oyster Bay Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Oyster Bay Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Oyster Bay Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Oyster Bay Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Oyster Bay Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Oyster Bay Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Oyster Bay Town’s health plans, Oyster Bay Town’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

1449. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners, Maryland

Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners' untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners' motion should be denied due to futility, as Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners elected not to do so. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners' lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners began receiving those services on January 1, 2006. See id. Inasmuch as Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners’ delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6. Despite anticipating litigation years ago, Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners’ case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners’ document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners’ disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maryland law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners’ delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maryland law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners, a school district in Maryland, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners’ impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Maryland, public-nuisance claims are subject to a three-year limitations period. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners' public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—three and a half years after filing its complaint in Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP on December 16, 2020—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Baltimore City Board of School Commissioners, a school district in Maryland, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1450. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Bangor School Department, Maine

Board of Education of Bangor School Department's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Bangor School Department failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Bangor School Department also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Bangor School Department's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Bangor School Department does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Bangor School Department was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Bangor School Department filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Bangor School Department could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Bangor School Department elected not to do so. Board of Education of Bangor School Department waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Bangor School Department's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Bangor School Department violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Bangor School Department moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Bangor School Department's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Bangor School Department's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Bangor School Department's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Bangor School Department therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Board of Education of Bangor School Department has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Board of Education of Bangor School Department’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Bangor School Department’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Bangor School Department’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Bangor School Department, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Bangor School Department seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and

Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Bangor School Department's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Bangor School Department seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Bangor School Department is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Bangor School Department has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Bangor School Department has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Bangor School Department and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Bangor School Department is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Bangor School Department's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Bangor School Department, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1451. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District, Maine

Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District elected not to do so. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District moved to amend its original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District’s potential claims against them. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Cape Elizabeth School District, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1452. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299, Illinois

The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's motion should be denied due to futility, as The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, the Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 20, 2019. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 1. And while the Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 did attempt to amend its complaint, the amendment it sought did not name the PBMs. Thus, unlike many other plaintiffs, the Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court's repeated instructions to the contrary, The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Illinois law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Illinois law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299, a school district in Illinois, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299, a school district in Illinois, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1453. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131, Illinois

Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 elected not to do so. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs.

Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. *See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Illinois law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Illinois law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of East Aurora, School District 131 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department elected not to do so. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of

Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Ellsworth School Department, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1455. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Joliet Public Schools, Illinois

Joliet Public Schools' untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Joliet Public Schools failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Joliet Public Schools also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Joliet Public Schools' motion should be denied due to futility, as Joliet Public Schools does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 10's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 10 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 13, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1458. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25, Maine

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 refused to amend or supplement its

Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 25, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1459. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26, Maine

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section

II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case,

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 26 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine

Regional School Unit 29's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. *E. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 29, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1461. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34, Maine

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 refused to amend or supplement its

Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 34, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1462. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40, Maine

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section

II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case,

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 40, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1463. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50, Maine

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. *See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine

Regional School Unit 50's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. *E. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 50, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1464. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57, Maine

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. *See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 refused to amend or supplement its

Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 57, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1465. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60, Maine

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section

II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case,

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 60, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1466. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71, Maine

Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. *See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine

Regional School Unit 71’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 71 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. 1467. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9, Maine

of Maine Regional School Unit 9 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 refused to amend or supplement its

Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine Regional School Unit 9, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1468. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15, Maine

Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine

School Administrative District 15 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 15, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1469. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35, Maine

Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 35 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. *See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 44 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 53, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1472. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55, Maine

Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's potential claims against them.

Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were "duplicative of and improperly split" from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 55, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1473. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6, Maine

Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 6, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1474. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61, Maine

Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of

This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61’s request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 61, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1475. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72, Maine

Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 file a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 elected not to do so. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72’s potential claims against them. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Maine

School Administrative District 72's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72 is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 72's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. *E. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 28/Five Town Central School District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 28/Five Town Central School District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 28/Five Town Central School District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 28/Five Town Central School District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Maine School Administrative District 28/Five Town Central School District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

1477. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Miami-Dade County Public School District, Florida

Miami-Dade County Public School District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Miami-Dade County Public School District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Miami-Dade County Public School District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Miami-Dade County Public School District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Miami-Dade County Public School District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Miami-Dade County Public School District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Miami-Dade County Public School District filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Miami-Dade County Public School District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Miami-Dade County Public School District elected not to do so. Miami-Dade County Public School District waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Miami-Dade County Public School District's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459

(affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Miami-Dade County Public School District violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Miami-Dade County Public School District moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 12, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 12, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Miami-Dade County Public School District’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Miami-Dade County Public School District’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Miami-Dade County Public School District’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Miami-Dade County Public School District therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Miami-Dade County Public School District has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Miami-Dade County Public School District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Miami-Dade County Public School District's failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Miami-Dade County Public School District's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Miami-Dade County Public School District, a school district in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Miami-Dade County Public School District seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Miami-Dade County Public School District is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Miami-Dade County Public School District has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Miami-Dade County Public School District has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Miami-Dade County Public School District and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing

Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Miami-Dade County Public School District, a school district in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1478. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Portland School Department, Maine

Board of Education of Portland School Department's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Portland School Department failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Portland School Department also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Portland School Department's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Portland School Department does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Portland School Department was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Portland School Department filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Portland School Department could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section

II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Portland School Department elected not to do so. Board of Education of Portland School Department waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Portland School Department's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Portland School Department violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Portland School Department moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Portland School Department's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Portland School Department's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Portland School Department's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Portland School Department therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Portland School Department failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Portland School Department's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Portland School Department of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Portland School Department refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of Portland School Department's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Portland School Department's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Portland School Department's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Portland School Department's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Portland School Department's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Portland School Department, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Portland School Department seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Portland School Department’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Portland School Department seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Portland School Department is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Portland School Department has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Portland School Department has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Portland School Department and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Portland School Department is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Portland School Department's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Portland School Department, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1479. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Rochester City School District, New York

Board of Education of Rochester City School District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Rochester City School District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Rochester City School District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Rochester City School District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Rochester City School District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of Rochester City School District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of Rochester City School District filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of Rochester City School District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of Rochester City School District elected not to do so. Board of Education of Rochester City School District waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of Rochester City School District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Board of Education of Rochester City School District previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Board of Education of Rochester City School District of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Board of Education of Rochester City School District began receiving those services on July 2, 2007. See id. Inasmuch as Board of Education of Rochester City School District seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Board of Education of Rochester City School District knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Board of Education of Rochester City School District’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Rochester City School District violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Rochester City School District moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 10, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. *See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Rochester City School District’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Rochester City School District’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Rochester City School District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Rochester City School District, a school district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Rochester City School District seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Rochester City School District’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. Cephalon, Inc. et al.*, Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Rochester City School District is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Rochester City School District has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Rochester City School District has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Rochester City School District and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. *See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Rochester City School District, a school district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Board of Education of Rochester City School District's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1480. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of Scarborough School Department, Maine

Board of Education of Scarborough School Department's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Scarborough School Department failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Scarborough School Department also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs.

Moreover, Board of Education of Scarborough School Department's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Scarborough School Department does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Board of Education of South Portland School Department's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of South Portland School Department failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of South Portland School Department also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet. Moreover, Board of Education of South Portland School Department's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of South Portland School Department does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of South Portland School Department elected not to do so. Board of Education of South Portland School Department waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of South Portland School Department's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of South Portland School Department's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of South Portland School Department therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of South Portland School Department’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Board of Education of South Portland School Department’s potential claims against them. Board of Education of South Portland School Department’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of South Portland School Department's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of South Portland School Department, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of South Portland School Department seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of South Portland School Department's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of South Portland School Department seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of South Portland School Department is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of South Portland School Department has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of South Portland School Department has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of South Portland School Department and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of South Portland School Department is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of South Portland School Department's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of South Portland School Department, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1482. The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP: Plaintiff Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District, Maine

Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District filed a complaint in another case directly into the MDL on December 16, 2020. See Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP, ECF No. 1. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2021. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District elected not to do so. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District waited three and a half years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's potential claims against them. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of St. George Municipal School District, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

Board of Education of Thornton Fractional Township High Schools, District 215's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Board of Education of Thornton Fractional Township High Schools, District 215 failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Board of Education of Thornton Fractional Township High Schools, District 215 also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Board of Education of Thornton Fractional Township High Schools, District 215's motion should be denied due to futility, as Board of Education of Thornton Fractional Township High Schools, District 215 does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Board of Education of Waterville School Department violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Board of Education of Waterville School Department moved to amend the original complaint on October 26, 2020, thereby signaling that it was anticipating litigation, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—almost four years later. See The Board of Education of the City of

Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, ECF No. 6; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Board of Education of Waterville School Department’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Board of Education of Waterville School Department’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Board of Education of Waterville School Department’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Board of Education of Waterville School Department therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Board of Education of Waterville School Department failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Board of Education of Waterville School Department’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Board of Education of Waterville School Department of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Board of Education of Waterville School Department refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Board of Education of Waterville School Department’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Board of Education of Waterville School Department’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Board of Education of Waterville School Department's potential claims against them. Board of Education of Waterville School Department's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Board of Education of Waterville School Department's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Board of Education of Waterville School Department, a school district in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Board of Education of Waterville School Department seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP; and Board of Education of Thornton Township High Schools, District 205, et al. v. Cephalon, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45281-DAP. Board of Education of Waterville School Department's impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App'x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff's claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff's claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court's inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

Plaintiff is Not a Party. Board of Education of Waterville School Department seeks leave to amend the complaint in The Board of Education of the City of Chicago, School District No. 299 v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46042-DAP, but Board of Education of Waterville School Department is not a named plaintiff in that case. Because Board of Education of Waterville School Department has not submitted any proposed complaint and is not a plaintiff in the existing case, Board of Education of Waterville School Department has not pleaded any facts establishing injury to Board of Education of Waterville School Department and its request for leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Stuebing Automatic Mach. Co., 2016 WL 7365093, at *2 (denying leave to amend where counterclaim plaintiff failed to set forth facts showing a cognizable injury).

Plaintiff's Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Board of Education of Waterville School Department is a plaintiff in Maine. Board of Education of Waterville School Department's request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Board of Education of Waterville School Department, a school district in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1486. Town of North Hempstead, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46043-DAP: Plaintiff North Hempstead Town, New York

North Hempstead Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. North Hempstead Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. North Hempstead Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, North Hempstead Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as North Hempstead Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. North Hempstead Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, North Hempstead Town amended its complaint on November 26, 2019, after directly filing in the MDL. See Town of North Hempstead, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46043-DAP, ECF No. 2. Unlike many other plaintiffs, North Hempstead Town declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. North Hempstead Town's deadline to amend was in 2020. North Hempstead Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. North Hempstead Town's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

North Hempstead Town's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.45% market share for North Hempstead Town). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for North Hempstead Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to North Hempstead Town's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.29% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for North Hempstead Town to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, North Hempstead Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to North Hempstead Town's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified North Hempstead Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but North Hempstead Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, North Hempstead Town's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. North Hempstead Town's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against North Hempstead Town's potential claims against them. North Hempstead Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But North Hempstead Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for North Hempstead Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. North Hempstead Town filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Town of North Hempstead, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46043-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that North Hempstead Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 20, 2023. North Hempstead Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. North Hempstead Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. North Hempstead Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in

New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. North Hempstead Town’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1487. City of Bayonne, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46044-DAP: Plaintiff Bayonne City, New Jersey

Bayonne City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Bayonne City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Bayonne City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Bayonne City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Bayonne City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Bayonne City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Bayonne City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 20, 2019. See City of Bayonne, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46044-DAP, ECF No. 1. Bayonne City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Bayonne City elected not to do so. Bayonne City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Bayonne City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Bayonne City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Bayonne City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Bayonne City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Bayonne City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Bayonne City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Bayonne City's potential claims against them. Bayonne City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

McKesson Corporation et al.*, Case No. 1:19-op-46044-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Bayonne City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Bayonne City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Bayonne City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Bayonne City, a municipality in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1488. City of Elizabeth, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46045-DAP: Plaintiff Elizabeth City, New Jersey

Elizabeth City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Elizabeth City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Elizabeth City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Elizabeth City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Elizabeth City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Elizabeth City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Elizabeth City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Elizabeth City’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.01% market share for Elizabeth City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Elizabeth City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts’ Mail Order Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Elizabeth City’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.04% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Elizabeth City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Elizabeth City previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Elizabeth City of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Elizabeth City began receiving those services on July 17, 2006. See id. Inasmuch as Elizabeth City seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Elizabeth City knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Elizabeth City’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Elizabeth City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Elizabeth City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Elizabeth City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Elizabeth City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Elizabeth City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Elizabeth City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Elizabeth City’s potential claims against them. Elizabeth City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Jersey law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Elizabeth City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Jersey law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Elizabeth City, a municipality in New Jersey, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Elizabeth City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Elizabeth City filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. *See City of Elizabeth, New Jersey v. Elizabeth City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Elizabeth City, a municipality in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1489. Borough of Paramus, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46046-DAP: Plaintiff Paramus Borough, New Jersey

Paramus Borough's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Paramus Borough failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Paramus Borough also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Paramus Borough's motion should be denied due to futility, as Paramus Borough does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Paramus Borough was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Paramus Borough filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 20, 2019. See Borough of Paramus, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46046-DAP, ECF No. 1. Paramus Borough could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Paramus Borough elected not to do so. Paramus Borough waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Paramus Borough's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Paramus Borough's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Paramus Borough cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Paramus Borough failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Paramus Borough's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Paramus Borough of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Paramus Borough refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Paramus Borough's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Paramus Borough's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Paramus Borough's potential claims against them. Paramus Borough's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment

Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Jersey law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Paramus Borough’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Jersey law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Paramus Borough, a municipality in New Jersey, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Paramus Borough’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Paramus Borough filed its original complaint on November 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Borough of Paramus, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46046-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Paramus Borough knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Paramus Borough’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Paramus Borough's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Paramus Borough, a municipality in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1490. Town of Babylon, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46047-DAP: Plaintiff Babylon Town, New York

Babylon Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Babylon Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Babylon Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Babylon Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Babylon Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Babylon Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Babylon Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 21, 2019. See Town of Babylon, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46047-DAP, ECF No. 1. Babylon Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Babylon Town elected not to do so. Babylon Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Babylon Town's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Babylon Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Babylon Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Babylon Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Babylon Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Babylon Town’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Babylon Town’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Babylon Town's potential claims against them. Babylon Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Babylon Town's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Babylon Town's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Babylon Town filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Town of Babylon, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46047-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Babylon Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 21, 2023. Babylon Town's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Babylon Town's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Babylon Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Babylon Town's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1491. North Merrick Fire District, NY v. McKesson Corporation, et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46048-DAP: Plaintiff North Merrick Fire District, New York

North Merrick Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. North Merrick Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. North Merrick Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, North Merrick Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as North Merrick Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

1492. Uniondale Fire District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46049-DAP: Plaintiff Uniondale Fire District, New York

Uniondale Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Uniondale Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Uniondale Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Uniondale Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Uniondale Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

1493. Incorporated Village of Northport, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46050-DAP: Plaintiff Northport Village, New York

Northport Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Northport Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Northport Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Northport Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Northport Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Northport Village's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.30% market share for Northport Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Northport Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Northport Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Northport Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Northport Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Northport Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Northport Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Northport Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Northport Village's potential claims against them. Northport Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Northport Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Northport Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Northport Village filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Northport, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46050-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Northport Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 21, 2023. Northport Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Northport Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Northport Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Northport Village’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1494. Village of Port Washington North, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46051-DAP: Plaintiff Port Washington North Village, New York

Port Washington North Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Port Washington North Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Port Washington North Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Port Washington North Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Port Washington North Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Port Washington North Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Port Washington North Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 21, 2019. See Village of Port Washington North, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46051-DAP, ECF No. 1. Port Washington North Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Port Washington North Village elected not to do so. Port Washington North Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Port Washington North Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Port Washington North Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Port Washington North Village cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Port Washington North Village filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019. See Village of Port Washington North, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46051-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Port Washington North Village never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Port Washington North Village’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Port Washington North Village’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Port Washington North Village’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Port Washington North Village therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Port Washington North Village has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Port Washington North Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Port Washington North Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Port Washington North Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Port Washington North Village, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Port Washington North Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Port Washington North Village filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of Port Washington North, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46051-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Port Washington North Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 21, 2023. Port Washington North Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Port Washington North Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Port Washington North Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Port Washington North Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1495. Incorporated Village of Lloyd Harbor, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46052-DAP: Plaintiff Lloyd Harbor Village, New York

Lloyd Harbor Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Lloyd Harbor Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Lloyd Harbor Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Lloyd Harbor Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Lloyd Harbor Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Lloyd Harbor Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Lloyd Harbor Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 21, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Lloyd Harbor, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46052-DAP, ECF No. 1. Lloyd Harbor Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Lloyd Harbor Village elected not to do so. Lloyd Harbor Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Lloyd Harbor Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Lloyd Harbor Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Lloyd Harbor Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Lloyd Harbor Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Lloyd Harbor Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Lloyd Harbor Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Lloyd Harbor Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Lloyd Harbor Village’s potential claims against them. Lloyd Harbor Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017

WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Lloyd Harbor Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Lloyd Harbor Village, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Even assuming arguendo that Lloyd Harbor Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 21, 2023. Lloyd Harbor Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Lloyd Harbor Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See

Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Lloyd Harbor Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. 1496. The City of Dunwoody, Georgia v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46054-DAP: Plaintiff Dunwoody City, Georgia

Dunwoody City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Dunwoody City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Dunwoody City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Dunwoody City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Dunwoody City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Dunwoody City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Dunwoody City elected not to do so. Dunwoody City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Dunwoody City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Dunwoody City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.02% market share for Dunwoody City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Dunwoody City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Dunwoody City filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019. See The City of Dunwoody, Georgia v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46054-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Dunwoody City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). under Georgia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al.*, Case No. 1:19-op-46054-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Dunwoody City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Dunwoody City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Dunwoody City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Dunwoody City, a municipality in Georgia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1497. Incorporated Village of West Hampton Dunes, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46055-DAP: Plaintiff West Hampton Dunes Village, New York

West Hampton Dunes Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. West Hampton Dunes Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. West Hampton Dunes Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, West Hampton Dunes Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as West Hampton Dunes Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. West Hampton Dunes Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, West Hampton Dunes Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 21, 2019. See Incorporated Village of West Hampton Dunes, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46055-DAP, ECF No. 1. West Hampton Dunes Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, West Hampton Dunes Village elected not to do so. OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to West Hampton Dunes Village's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, West Hampton Dunes Village cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, West Hampton Dunes Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to West Hampton Dunes Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified West Hampton Dunes Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but West Hampton Dunes Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, West Hampton Dunes Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. West Hampton Dunes Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against West Hampton Dunes Village's potential claims against them. West Hampton Dunes Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

1498. The City of Doraville, Georgia v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46056-DAP: Plaintiff Doraville City, Georgia

Doraville City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Doraville City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Doraville City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Doraville City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Doraville City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Doraville City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Doraville City filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019. *See The City of Doraville, Georgia v. Despite filing its case years ago, Doraville City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Doraville City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Doraville City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Doraville City’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Doraville City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

It is therefore indisputable that Doraville City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Doraville City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Doraville City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Doraville City, a municipality in Georgia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1499. The City of Louisville, Alabama v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46058-DAP: Plaintiff Louisville Town, Alabama

Louisville Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Louisville Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Louisville Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Louisville Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Louisville Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Louisville Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Louisville Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 21, 2019. See The City of Louisville, Alabama v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46058-DAP, ECF No. 1. Louisville Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Louisville Town elected not to do so. Louisville Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Louisville Town's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Express Scripts' PBM Has No Market Share. Express Scripts' PBM processed zero claims for prescription opioids in Louisville Town's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit A. Because Express Scripts' PBM "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Louisville Town filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019. See The City of Louisville, Alabama v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46058-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Louisville Town never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Louisville Town’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Louisville Town’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Louisville Town’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Louisville Town therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Louisville Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Louisville Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Louisville Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Louisville Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Louisville Town’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Louisville Town’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Louisville Town’s potential claims against them. Louisville Town’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Louisville Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Louisville Town, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Louisville Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Louisville Town filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See The City of Louisville, Alabama v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46058-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Louisville Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Louisville Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Louisville Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Louisville Town’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Louisville Town sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on November 21, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Louisville Town, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1500. The Health Care Authority of Cullman County et al. v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, LTD. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46059-DAP: Plaintiff Cullman Regional Medical Center, Inc., Alabama

Cullman Regional Medical Center, Inc.’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Cullman Regional Medical Center, Inc. failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Cullman Regional Medical Center, Inc. also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Cullman Regional Medical Center, Inc.’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Cullman Regional Medical Center, Inc. does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al.*, 1:18-op-45227-DAP. These duplicative claims are subject to dismissal and leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Section III.B.2, above; *cf. 1502. Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46061-DAP: Plaintiff Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library, New York

Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library's motion should be denied due to futility, as Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library's potential claims against them. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library, a library in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Plainview-Old Bethpage Public Library’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1503. Incorporated Village of Babylon, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46062-DAP: Plaintiff Babylon Village, New York

Babylon Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Babylon Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Babylon Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Babylon Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Babylon Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Babylon Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Babylon Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Babylon Village elected not to do so. Babylon Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Babylon Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Babylon Village's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.22% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Babylon Village to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Babylon Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Babylon Village, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Babylon Village's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Babylon Village filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Babylon, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46062-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Babylon Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 21, 2023. Babylon Village's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Babylon Village's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Babylon Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Babylon Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1504. Incorporated Village of Nissequogue, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al.,
Case No. 1:19-op-46063-DAP: Plaintiff Nissequogue Village, New York

Nissequogue Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Nissequogue Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Nissequogue Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Nissequogue Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Nissequogue Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Nissequogue Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above.

Moreover, Nissequogue Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 21, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Nissequogue, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46063-DAP, ECF No. 1. Nissequogue Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Nissequogue Village elected not to do so. Nissequogue Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Nissequogue Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Nissequogue Village's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Nissequogue Village cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

support a finding of good cause for Nissequogue Village to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Nissequogue Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Nissequogue Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Nissequogue Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Nissequogue Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Nissequogue Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Nissequogue Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Nissequogue Village's potential claims against them. Nissequogue Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Nissequogue Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Nissequogue Village, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Nissequogue Village's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Nissequogue Village filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. *See Incorporated Village of Nissequogue, NY v. Nissequogue Village's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Nissequogue Village's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Nissequogue Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. 1505. Incorporated Village of Lindenhurst, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46064-DAP: Plaintiff Lindenhurst Village, New York

Lindenhurst Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Lindenhurst Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Lindenhurst Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Lindenhurst Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Lindenhurst Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Lindenhurst Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Lindenhurst Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.03% market share for Lindenhurst Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Lindenhurst Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts’ Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Lindenhurst Village’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.28% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Lindenhurst Village to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Lindenhurst Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Lindenhurst Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Lindenhurst Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Lindenhurst Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Lindenhurst Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. Lindenhurst Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. 1506. Rockville Centre Public Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46065-DAP: Plaintiff Rockville Centre Public Library, New York

Rockville Centre Public Library's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Rockville Centre Public Library failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Rockville Centre Public Library also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Rockville Centre Public Library's motion should be denied due to futility, as Rockville Centre Public Library does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Rockville Centre Public Library was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Rockville Centre Public Library filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 21, 2019. *See Rockville Centre Public Library v. Rockville Centre Public Library could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Rockville Centre Public Library elected not to do so. Rockville Centre Public Library waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Rockville Centre Public Library's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Rockville Centre Public Library failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Rockville Centre Public Library's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Rockville Centre Public Library of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Rockville Centre Public Library refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Rockville Centre Public Library's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Rockville Centre Public Library's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Rockville Centre Public Library's potential claims against them. Rockville Centre Public Library's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Rockville Centre Public Library’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Rockville Centre Public Library, a library in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Rockville Centre Public Library’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Rockville Centre Public Library filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Rockville Centre Public Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46065-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Rockville Centre Public Library knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Rockville Centre Public Library’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Rockville Centre Public Library’s request for leave to amend to add a

RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Rockville Centre Public Library, a library in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Rockville Centre Public Library's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1507. City of Alamogordo v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46067-DAP: Plaintiff Alamogordo City, New Mexico

Alamogordo City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Alamogordo City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Alamogordo City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Alamogordo City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Alamogordo City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Alamogordo City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Alamogordo City amended its complaint on February 20, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on November 22, 2019. See City of Alamogordo v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46067-DAP, ECF No. 7. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Alamogordo City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Alamogordo City's deadline to amend was in 2020. Alamogordo City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Alamogordo City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Alamogordo City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Alamogordo City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Alamogordo City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Gustafson Decl. (0.02% market share for Alamogordo City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Alamogordo City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Mexico law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Alamogordo City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Mexico law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Alamogordo City, a municipality in New Mexico, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Alamogordo City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Alamogordo City filed its original complaint on October 28, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Alamogordo v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46067-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Alamogordo City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Alamogordo City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Alamogordo City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Alamogordo City, a municipality in New Mexico, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1508. City of Hobbs, New Mexico v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46068-DAP: Plaintiff Hobbs City, New Mexico

Hobbs City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Hobbs City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hobbs City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hobbs City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Hobbs City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Hobbs City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Hobbs City amended its complaint on February 20, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on November 22, 2019. See City of Hobbs, New Mexico v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46068-DAP, ECF No. 7. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Hobbs City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Hobbs City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Hobbs City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Hobbs City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Hobbs City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Hobbs City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Hobbs City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Hobbs City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.08% market share for Hobbs City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Hobbs City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Hobbs City filed its original complaint on October 28, 2019. See City of Hobbs, New Mexico v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46068-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Hobbs City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Hobbs City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Hobbs City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Hobbs City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Hobbs City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Mexico law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Hobbs City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Mexico law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Hobbs City, a municipality in New Mexico, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Hobbs City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Hobbs City filed its original complaint on October 28, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Hobbs, New Mexico v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46068-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Hobbs City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Hobbs City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Hobbs City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Hobbs City, a municipality in New Mexico, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1509. Board of County Commissioners of the County of Hidalgo, New Mexico v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al, Case No. 1:19-op-46069-DAP: Plaintiff Hidalgo County, New Mexico

Hidalgo County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Hidalgo County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hidalgo County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hidalgo County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Hidalgo County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Hidalgo County, a municipality in New Mexico, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1510. Atlantic County, New Jersey v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46071-DAP: Plaintiff Atlantic County, New Jersey

Atlantic County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Atlantic County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Atlantic County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Atlantic County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Atlantic County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Atlantic County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Atlantic County amended its complaint on April 15, 2021, after transfer to the MDL on November 22, 2019. See Atlantic County, New Jersey v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46071-DAP, ECF No. 6. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Atlantic County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Atlantic County's deadline to amend was in 2020. Atlantic County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Atlantic County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

low to support a finding of good cause for Atlantic County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Atlantic County previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Atlantic County of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Atlantic County began receiving those services on July 30, 2007. See id. Inasmuch as Atlantic County seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Atlantic County knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Atlantic County's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Atlantic County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Atlantic County filed its original complaint on October 28, 2019, but waited until September 16, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—nearly five years later. See Atlantic County, New Jersey v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46071-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 16, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Atlantic County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Atlantic County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Atlantic County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Atlantic County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Jersey law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Atlantic County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Jersey law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Atlantic County, a municipality in New Jersey, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Atlantic County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Atlantic County filed its original complaint on October 28, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Atlantic County, New Jersey v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46071-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Atlantic County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Atlantic County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Atlantic County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Atlantic County, a municipality in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1511. Town of Clinton, MA v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46072-DAP: Plaintiff Clinton Town, Massachusetts

Clinton Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Clinton Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Clinton Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Clinton Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Clinton Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Clinton Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Clinton Town amended its complaint on February 19, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on November 22, 2019. See Town of Clinton, MA v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46072-DAP, ECF No. 9. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Clinton Town declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Clinton Town’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Clinton Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Clinton Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Clinton Town cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Clinton Town, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Clinton Town fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See,

e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Clinton Town’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.01% market share for Clinton Town). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Clinton Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Clinton Town filed its original complaint on October 29, 2019. See Town of Clinton, MA v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46072-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Clinton Town never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)).

This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Clinton Town's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Clinton Town's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Clinton Town's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Clinton Town therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Clinton Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Clinton Town's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Clinton Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Clinton Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Clinton Town's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Clinton Town's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Clinton Town's potential claims against them. Clinton Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Massachusetts law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Clinton Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Massachusetts law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Clinton Town, a municipality in Massachusetts, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Clinton Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Clinton Town filed its original complaint on October 29, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Town of Clinton, MA v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46072-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Clinton Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Clinton Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Clinton Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Massachusetts, public-nuisance claims are subject to a three-year limitations period. Clinton Town’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Clinton Town sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on October 29, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Clinton Town, a municipality in Massachusetts, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1512. City of New Port Richey v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46073-DAP: Plaintiff New Port Richey City, Florida

New Port Richey City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. New Port Richey City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. New Port Richey City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, New Port Richey City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as New Port Richey City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. New Port Richey City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, New Port Richey City amended its complaint on February 20, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on November 22, 2019. See City of New Port Richey v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46073-DAP, ECF No. 8. Unlike many other plaintiffs, New Port Richey City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. New Port Richey City's deadline to amend was in 2020. New Port Richey City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. New Port Richey City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. New Port Richey City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. New Port Richey City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. New Port Richey City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the "plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint"); Thurmond, 649 F. App'x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff's counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants' conduct).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But New Port Richey City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. New Port Richey City, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for New Port Richey City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. New Port Richey City filed its original complaint on October 29, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of New Port Ritchey v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46073-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that New Port Richey City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. New Port Richey City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. New Port Richey City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. New Port Richey City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because New Port Richey City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on October 29, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. New Port Richey City, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1513. Incorporated Village of Mill Neck, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46074-DAP: Plaintiff Mill Neck Village, New York

Mill Neck Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Mill Neck Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Mill Neck Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Mill Neck Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Mill Neck Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Mill Neck Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Mill Neck Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Mill Neck, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46074-DAP, ECF No. 1. Mill Neck Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Mill Neck Village elected not to do so. Mill Neck Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Mill Neck Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Mill Neck Village's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Mill Neck Village cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has No Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped zero opioid prescriptions to Mill Neck Village's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit B. Because Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' PBM Has No Market Share. Express Scripts' PBM processed zero claims for prescription opioids in Mill Neck Village's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019.

See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit A. Because Express Scripts' PBM "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Mill Neck Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Mill Neck Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Mill Neck Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Mill Neck Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Mill Neck Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Mill Neck Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Mill Neck Village's potential claims against them. Mill Neck Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Mill Neck Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Mill Neck Village, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Mill Neck Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Mill Neck Village filed its original complaint on November 22, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Incorporated Village of Mill Neck, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46074-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Mill Neck Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 22, 2023. Mill Neck Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Mill Neck Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Mill Neck Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Mill Neck Village’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1514. Incorporated Village of Old Westbury, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46075-DAP: Plaintiff Old Westbury Village, New York

Old Westbury Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Old Westbury Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Old Westbury Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Old Westbury Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Old Westbury Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Old Westbury Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Old Westbury Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Old Westbury, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46075-DAP, ECF No. 1. Old Westbury Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Old Westbury Village elected not to do so. Old Westbury Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Old Westbury Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Express Scripts' PBM Has No Market Share. Express Scripts' PBM processed zero claims for prescription opioids in Old Westbury Village's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit A. Because Express Scripts' PBM "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Old Westbury Village filed its original complaint on November 22, 2019. See Incorporated Village of Old Westbury, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46075-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Old Westbury Village never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Old Westbury Village's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Old Westbury Village's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Old Westbury Village's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Old Westbury Village therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Old Westbury Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Old Westbury Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Old Westbury Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Old Westbury Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Old Westbury Village's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Old Westbury Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Old Westbury Village's potential claims against them. Old Westbury Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

1515. City of Clifton, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46076-DAP: Plaintiff Clifton City, New Jersey

Clifton City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Clifton City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Clifton City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Clifton City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Clifton City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Clifton City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Clifton City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. *See City of Clifton, New Jersey v. OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Clifton City’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.01% market share for Clifton City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Clifton City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Exhibit C (0.14% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Clifton City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Clifton City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Clifton City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Clifton City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Clifton City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Clifton City, a municipality in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1516. Levittown Fire District, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46077-DAP: Plaintiff Levittown Fire District, New York

Levittown Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Levittown Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Levittown Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Levittown Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Levittown Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Levittown Fire District's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Levittown Fire District's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Levittown Fire District, a fire district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Levittown Fire District's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1517. Friendship Engine & Hose Company, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46078-DAP: Plaintiff Friendship Engine & Hose Company, New York

Friendship Engine & Hose Company's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Friendship Engine & Hose Company failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Friendship Engine & Hose Company also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Friendship Engine & Hose Company's motion should be denied due to futility, as Friendship Engine & Hose Company does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Friendship Engine & Hose Company was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Friendship Engine & Hose Company filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. See Friendship Engine & Hose Company, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46078-DAP, ECF No. 1. Friendship Engine & Hose Company could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Friendship Engine & Hose Company elected not to do so. Friendship Engine & Hose Company waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Friendship Engine & Hose Company's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Friendship Engine & Hose Company failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Friendship Engine & Hose Company's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Friendship Engine & Hose Company of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Friendship Engine & Hose Company refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Friendship Engine & Hose Company's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Friendship Engine & Hose Company's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Friendship Engine & Hose Company's potential claims against them. Friendship Engine & Hose Company's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Friendship Engine & Hose Company's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Friendship Engine & Hose Company, a fire district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Friendship Engine & Hose Company's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Friendship Engine & Hose Company filed its original complaint on November 22, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Friendship Engine & Hose Company, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46078-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Friendship Engine & Hose Company first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 22, 2023. Friendship Engine & Hose Company's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Friendship Engine & Hose Company's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Friendship Engine & Hose Company, a fire district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Friendship Engine & Hose Company's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1518. Town of Islip, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46079-DAP: Plaintiff Islip Town, New York

Islip Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Islip Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Islip Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Islip Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Islip Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Islip Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Islip Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. See Town of Islip, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46079-DAP, ECF No. 1. OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Islip Town's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.07% market share for Islip Town). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Islip Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Islip Town's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.45% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Islip Town to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Islip Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Islip Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. 1519. Village of Saltaire, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46080-DAP: Plaintiff Saltaire Village, New York

Saltaire Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Saltaire Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Saltaire Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Saltaire Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Saltaire Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Saltaire Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Saltaire Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. *See Village of Saltaire, NY v. OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Saltaire Village’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Saltaire Village cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Exhibit C (0.17% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Saltaire Village to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

1520. Town of Orangetown, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46081-DAP: Plaintiff Orangetown Town, New York

Orangetown Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Orangetown Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Orangetown Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Orangetown Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Orangetown Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

1521. Town of Haverstraw, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46083-DAP: Plaintiff Haverstraw Town, New York

Haverstraw Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Haverstraw Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Haverstraw Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Haverstraw Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Haverstraw Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Haverstraw Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Haverstraw Town to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Haverstraw Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Haverstraw Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Haverstraw Town's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Haverstraw Town's potential claims against them. Haverstraw Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Haverstraw Town's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Haverstraw Town, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Haverstraw Town's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Haverstraw Town filed its original complaint on November 22, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Town of Haverstraw, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46083-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Haverstraw Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 22, 2023. Haverstraw Town's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Haverstraw Town's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Haverstraw Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Haverstraw Town's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1522. Village of Greenport, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46084-DAP: Plaintiff Greenport Village, New York

Greenport Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Greenport Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Greenport Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Greenport Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Greenport Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Greenport Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Greenport Village filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. See Village of Greenport, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46084-DAP, ECF No. 1. Greenport Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Greenport Village elected not to do so. Greenport Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Greenport Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Greenport Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Greenport Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Greenport Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Greenport Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Greenport Village's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Greenport Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Greenport Village's potential claims against them. Greenport Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

1523. Town of Clinton, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46085-DAP: Plaintiff Clinton Town, New Jersey

Clinton Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Clinton Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Clinton Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Clinton Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Clinton Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Clinton Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Clinton Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. *See Town of Clinton, New Jersey v. That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Clinton Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Clinton Town's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.01% market share). Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Clinton Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Clinton Town's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Clinton Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Clinton Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Clinton Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Clinton Town filed its original complaint on November 22, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Town of Clinton, New Jersey v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46085-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Clinton Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Clinton Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Clinton Town's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Clinton Town, a municipality in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1524. Village of Suffern, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46087-DAP: Plaintiff Suffern Village, New York

Suffern Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Suffern Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Suffern Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Suffern Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Suffern Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Suffern Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Suffern Village could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Suffern Village elected not to do so. Suffern Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Suffern Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Suffern Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Suffern Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Suffern Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Suffern Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Suffern Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Suffern Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Suffern Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Suffern Village's potential claims against them. Suffern Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

1525. Town of Clarkstown, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46088-DAP: Plaintiff Clarkstown Town, New York

Clarkstown Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Clarkstown Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Clarkstown Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Clarkstown Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Clarkstown Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Clarkstown Town’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Clarkstown Town cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Express Scripts’ Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Clarkstown Town’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.24% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Clarkstown Town to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Clarkstown Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. 1526. Village of West Haverstraw, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46089-DAP: Plaintiff West Haverstraw Village, New York

West Haverstraw Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. West Haverstraw Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. West Haverstraw Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, West Haverstraw Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as West Haverstraw Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, West Haverstraw Village cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, West Haverstraw Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to West Haverstraw Village’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified West Haverstraw Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but West Haverstraw Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, West Haverstraw Village’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. West Haverstraw Village’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against West Haverstraw Village’s potential claims against them. West Haverstraw Village’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But West Haverstraw Village’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. West Haverstraw Village, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for West Haverstraw Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. West Haverstraw Village filed its original complaint on November 22, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of West Haverstraw, NY v. McKesson

Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46089-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that West Haverstraw Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 22, 2023. West Haverstraw Village's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. West Haverstraw Village's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. West Haverstraw Village, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. West Haverstraw Village's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1527. Town of Southold, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46090-DAP: Plaintiff Southold Town, New York

Southold Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Southold Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Southold Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Southold Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Southold Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Southold Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Southold Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on November 22, 2019. See Town of Southold, NY v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46090-DAP, ECF No. 1. Southold Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Southold Town elected not to do so. Southold Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Southold Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Southold Town’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.02% market share for Southold Town). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Southold Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

a finding of good cause for Southold Town to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Southold Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Southold Town's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Southold Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Southold Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Southold Town's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Southold Town's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Southold Town's potential claims against them. Southold Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

1528. The Town of Wappingers Falls, New York v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46091-DAP: Plaintiff Wappinger Town, New York

Wappinger Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Wappinger Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Wappinger Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Wappinger Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Wappinger Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Wappinger Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Wappinger Town amended its complaint on November 8, 2019 before transfer to the MDL on November 25, 2019. See The Town of Wappingers Falls, New York v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46091-DAP, ECF No. 4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Wappinger Town declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Wappinger Town's deadline to amend was in 2020. Wappinger Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Wappinger Town's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Wappinger Town's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Wappinger Town cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Wappinger Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Wappinger Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. 1529. City of Spokane v. Endo Health Solutions Inc et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46092-DAP: Plaintiff Spokane City, Washington

Spokane City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Spokane City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Spokane City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Spokane City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Spokane City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Spokane City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Spokane City amended its complaint on December 24, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 2, 2019. See City of Spokane v. Endo Health Solutions Inc et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46092-DAP, ECF No. 6. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Spokane City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Spokane City's deadline to amend was in 2020. Spokane City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Spokane City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Washington law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Spokane City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Washington law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Spokane City, a municipality in Washington, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Spokane City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Spokane City filed its original complaint on November 4, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Spokane v. Endo Health Solutions Inc et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46092-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Spokane City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Spokane City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Spokane City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Washington, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Spokane City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Spokane City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on November 4, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Spokane City, a municipality in Washington, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1530. Merrick Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46097-DAP: Plaintiff Merrick Library, New York

Merrick Library’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Merrick Library failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Merrick Library also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Merrick Library’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Merrick Library does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Merrick Library was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Merrick Library filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 2, 2019. See Merrick Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46097-DAP, ECF No. 1. Merrick Library could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Merrick Library elected not to do so. Merrick Library waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Merrick Library’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Merrick Library failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Merrick Library’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Merrick Library of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Merrick Library refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Merrick Library’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Merrick Library’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Merrick Library’s potential claims against them. Merrick Library’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Merrick Library’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Merrick Library, a library in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Merrick Library's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Merrick Library filed its original complaint on December 2, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Merrick Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46097-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Merrick Library knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Merrick Library's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Merrick Library's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Merrick Library, a library in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Merrick Library's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1531. Dade County, Georgia v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46099-DAP: Plaintiff Dade County, Georgia

Dade County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Dade County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Dade County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Dade County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Dade County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Dade County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Dade County filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 2, 2019. See Dade County, Georgia v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46099-DAP, ECF No. 1. Dade County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Dade County elected not to do so. Dade County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Dade County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Decl. (0.03% market share for Dade County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Dade County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Dade County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Dade County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Dade County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Dade County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Dade County's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Dade County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Dade County's potential claims against them. Dade County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Georgia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Dade County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Georgia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Dade County, a municipality in Georgia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Dade County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Dade County filed its original complaint on December 2, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Dade County, Georgia v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46099-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Dade County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on December 2, 2023. Dade County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Dade County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Dade County, a municipality in Georgia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1532. Centereach Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46100-DAP: Plaintiff Centereach Fire District, New York

Centereach Fire District’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Centereach Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Centereach Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Centereach Fire District’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Centereach Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Centereach Fire District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Centereach Fire District filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 3, 2019. See Centereach Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46100-DAP, ECF No. 1. Centereach Fire District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Centereach Fire District elected not to do so. Centereach Fire District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Centereach Fire District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Centereach Fire District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Centereach Fire District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Centereach Fire District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Centereach Fire District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Centereach Fire District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Centereach Fire District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Centereach Fire District’s potential claims against them. Centereach Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

But Centereach Fire District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Centereach Fire District, a fire district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Centereach Fire District's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Centereach Fire District filed its original complaint on December 3, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Centereach Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46100-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Centereach Fire District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on December 3, 2023. Centereach Fire District's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Centereach Fire District's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Centereach Fire District, a fire district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Centereach Fire District's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1533. City of Ashland, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46102-DAP: Plaintiff Ashland Town, Alabama

Ashland Town's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ashland Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ashland Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Ashland Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Ashland Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Ashland Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Ashland Town filed its original complaint on November 6, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 5, 2019. See City of Ashland, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46102-DAP, ECF No. 10. Ashland Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Ashland Town elected not to do so. Instead, Ashland Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Ashland Town's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Ashland Town's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Ashland Town cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Ashland Town filed its original complaint on November 6, 2019. See City of Ashland, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46102-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Ashland Town never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Ashland Town's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Ashland Town's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Ashland Town's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Ashland Town therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Ashland Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Ashland Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Ashland Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Ashland Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Ashland Town’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Ashland Town’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Ashland Town’s potential claims against them. Ashland Town’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Ashland Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Ashland Town, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Ashland Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Ashland Town filed its original complaint on November 6, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Ashland, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46102-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Ashland Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Ashland Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Ashland Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Ashland Town’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Ashland Town sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on November 6, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Ashland Town, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1534. City of Center Point, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46103-DAP: Plaintiff Center Point City, Alabama

Center Point City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Center Point City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Center Point City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Center Point City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Center Point City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Center Point City filed its original complaint on November 6, 2019. *See City of Center Point, Alabama v. Center Point City filed its original complaint on November 6, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Center Point, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46103-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Center Point City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Center Point City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Center Point City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Center Point City's public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Center Point City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on November 6, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Center Point City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

Buffalo City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Buffalo City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Buffalo City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Buffalo City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Buffalo City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Buffalo City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Buffalo City filed its original complaint on September 5, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 5, 2019. See City of Buffalo v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46104-DAP, ECF No. 19. Buffalo City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Buffalo City elected not to do so. Instead, Buffalo City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Buffalo City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Buffalo City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Buffalo City—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Buffalo City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Buffalo City previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Buffalo City of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Buffalo City began receiving those services on March 1, 2016. See id. Inasmuch as Buffalo City seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Buffalo City knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct eight years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Buffalo City's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Buffalo City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Buffalo City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Buffalo City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Buffalo City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Buffalo City's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Buffalo City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Buffalo City's potential claims against them. Buffalo City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Buffalo City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Buffalo City, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Buffalo City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Buffalo City filed its original complaint on September 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Buffalo v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46104-DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Even assuming arguendo that Buffalo City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on September 5, 2023. Buffalo City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Buffalo City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Buffalo City, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Buffalo City's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1536. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46105-DAP: Plaintiff United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund, New York

United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 4, 2019. See United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46105-DAP, ECF No. 1. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund elected not to do so. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund, a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund filed its original complaint on December 4, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46105-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. United Wire, Metal & Machine Local 810 Health Benefit Fund's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1537. Nesconset Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46106-DAP: Plaintiff Nesconset Fire District, New York

Nesconset Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Nesconset Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Nesconset Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Nesconset Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Nesconset Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Nesconset Fire District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Nesconset Fire District’s potential claims against them. Nesconset Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Centerport Fire District’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Centerport Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Centerport Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Centerport Fire District’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Centerport Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Miller Place Fire District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Miller Place Fire District filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 4, 2019. See Miller Place Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46109-DAP, ECF No. 1. Miller Place Fire District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Miller Place Fire District elected not to do so. Miller Place Fire District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Miller Place Fire District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Miller Place Fire District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Miller Place Fire District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Miller Place Fire District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Miller Place Fire District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Miller Place Fire District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Miller Place Fire District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Miller Place Fire District’s potential claims against them. Miller Place Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Miller Place Fire District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Miller Place Fire District, a fire district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Miller Place Fire District’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Miller Place Fire District filed its original complaint on December 4, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Miller Place Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46109-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Miller Place Fire District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on December 4, 2023. Miller Place Fire District’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Miller Place Fire District’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Miller Place Fire District, a fire district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Miller Place Fire District’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1541. Mount Sinai Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46110-DAP: Plaintiff Mount Sinai Fire District, New York

Mount Sinai Fire District’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Mount Sinai Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Mount Sinai Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Mount Sinai Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Mount Sinai Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Mount Sinai Fire District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Mount Sinai Fire District's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

1542. Smithtown Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46111-DAP: Plaintiff Smithtown Fire District, New York

Smithtown Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Smithtown Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Smithtown Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Smithtown Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Smithtown Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

1544. Stony Brook Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46113-DAP: Plaintiff Stony Brook Fire District, New York

Stony Brook Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Stony Brook Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Stony Brook Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Stony Brook Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Stony Brook Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1545. Village of the Branch, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46114-DAP: Plaintiff Village of the Branch, New York

Village of the Branch’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Village of the Branch failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Village of the Branch also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Village of the Branch’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Village of the Branch does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Village of the Branch could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Village of the Branch elected not to do so. OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Village of the Branch’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Village of the Branch cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Village of the Branch failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Village of the Branch’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Village of the Branch of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Village of the Branch refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Village of the Branch’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Village of the Branch’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Village of the Branch’s potential claims against them. Village of the Branch’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Village of the Branch’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Village of the Branch, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Village of the Branch’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Village of the Branch filed its original complaint on December 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of the Branch, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46114-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Village of the Branch first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on December 5, 2023. Village of the Branch’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Village of the Branch’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Village of the Branch, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Village of the Branch’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1546. City of Haleyville, Alabama v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46118-DAP: Plaintiff Haleyville City, Alabama

Haleyville City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Haleyville City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Haleyville City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Haleyville City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Haleyville City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Haleyville City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Haleyville City amended its complaint on March 6, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 9, 2019. See City of Haleyville, Alabama v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No.

1:19-op-46118-DAP, ECF No. 5. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Haleyville City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Haleyville City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Haleyville City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Haleyville City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Haleyville City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Haleyville City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Haleyville City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Haleyville City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.02% market share for Haleyville City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Haleyville City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Haleyville City filed its original complaint on November 14, 2019. See City of Haleyville, Alabama v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46118-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Haleyville City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Haleyville City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Haleyville City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Haleyville City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Haleyville City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Haleyville City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Haleyville City, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Haleyville City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Haleyville City filed its original complaint on November 14, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Haleyville, Alabama v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46118-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Haleyville City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Haleyville City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Haleyville City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Haleyville City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Haleyville City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on November 14, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Haleyville City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1547. City of Centerville, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46120-DAP: Plaintiff Centreville City, Alabama

Centreville City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Centreville City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Centreville City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Centreville City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Centreville City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Centreville City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Centreville City filed its original complaint on November 14, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 9, 2019. See City of Centerville, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46120-DAP, ECF No. 5. Centreville City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Centreville City elected not to do so. Instead, Centreville City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Centreville City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Centreville City’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Centreville City cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

a finding of good cause for Centreville City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Centreville City filed its original complaint on November 14, 2019. See City of Centerville, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46120-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Centreville City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Centreville City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Centreville City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Centreville City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Centreville City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Centreville City's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Centreville City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Centreville City’s potential claims against them. Centreville City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Centreville City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

1548. The City of Ormond Beach, Florida v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46121-DAP: Plaintiff Ormond Beach City, Florida

Ormond Beach City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ormond Beach City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ormond Beach City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Ormond Beach City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Ormond Beach City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is

Unlike many other plaintiffs, Ormond Beach City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaints. See Section II.A.1, above. Ormond Beach City's deadline to amend was in 2020. 1549. Putnam County, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46122-DAP: Plaintiff Putnam County, Florida

Lack of Diligence. Putnam County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Putnam County filed its original complaint on November 7, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 11, 2019. *See Putnam County, Florida v. This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Putnam County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Putnam County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Putnam County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Putnam County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Putnam County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Putnam County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Putnam County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Putnam County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Putnam County's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Putnam County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Putnam County's potential claims against them. Putnam County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Florida law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Putnam County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Florida law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Putnam County, a municipality in Florida, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Putnam County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Putnam County filed its original complaint on November 7, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Putnam County, Florida v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46122-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Putnam County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Putnam County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Putnam County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Florida, public-nuisance claims are subject to a four-year limitations period. Putnam County’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Putnam County sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on November 7, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Putnam County, a municipality in Florida, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1550. City of Brundidge, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46128-DAP: Plaintiff Brundidge City, Alabama

Brundidge City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Brundidge City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Brundidge City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Brundidge City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Brundidge City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Brundidge City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Brundidge City filed its original complaint on November 8, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 11, 2019. See City of Brundidge, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46128-DAP, ECF No. 26. Brundidge City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Brundidge City elected not to do so. Instead, Brundidge City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Brundidge City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Brundidge City filed its original complaint on November 8, 2019. See City of Brundidge, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46128-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Brundidge City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Brundidge City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Brundidge City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Brundidge City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Brundidge City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Brundidge City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Brundidge City, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Brundidge City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Brundidge City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Brundidge City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on November 8, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Brundidge City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1551. City of Lanett, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46130-DAP: Plaintiff Lanett City, Alabama

Lanett City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Lanett City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Lanett City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Lanett City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Lanett City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Lanett City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Lanett City elected not to do so. Instead, Lanett City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Lanett City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Lanett City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1552. City of Headland, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46131-DAP: Plaintiff Headland City, Alabama

Headland City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Headland City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Headland City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Headland City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Headland City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Headland City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Headland City filed its original complaint on November 15, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 11, 2019. See City of Headland, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46131-DAP, ECF No. 19. Headland City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Headland City elected not to do so. Instead, Headland City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Headland City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Headland City’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Headland City cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Headland City filed its original complaint on November 15, 2019. See City of Headland, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46131-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Headland City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Headland City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Headland City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Headland City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Headland City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Headland City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Headland City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Headland City’s potential claims against them. Headland City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

1553. City of Eufaula, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46132-DAP: Plaintiff Eufaula City, Alabama

Eufaula City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Eufaula City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Eufaula City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Eufaula City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Eufaula City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Eufaula City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Eufaula City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Eufaula City’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Eufaula City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Eufaula City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Eufaula City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Eufaula City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Eufaula City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Eufaula City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Eufaula City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Eufaula City’s potential claims against them. Eufaula City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Alabama law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Eufaula City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Alabama law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Eufaula City, a municipality in Alabama, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Eufaula City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Eufaula City filed its original complaint on November 8, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Eufaula, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46132-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Eufaula City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Eufaula City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Eufaula City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Eufaula City’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Eufaula City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on November 8, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Eufaula City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1554. City of Middletown, Ohio v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46133-DAP: Plaintiff Middletown City, Ohio

Middletown City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Middletown City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Middletown City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Middletown City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Middletown City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Ohio, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Middletown City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Middletown City amended its complaint on March 6, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 11, 2019. See City of Middletown, Ohio v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46133-DAP, ECF No. 21. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Middletown City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Middletown City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Middletown City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Middletown City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Middletown City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro, PLLC; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Middletown City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Middletown City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Middletown City filed its original complaint on November 15, 2019. See City of Middletown, Ohio v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46133-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Middletown City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Middletown City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Middletown City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Middletown City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Middletown City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Ohio law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Middletown City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Ohio law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Middletown City, a municipality in Ohio, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Plaintiff’s Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Middletown City is a plaintiff in Ohio. Middletown City’s request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because “all common-law public-nuisance claims arising from the sale of a product have been abrogated by the Ohio Product Liability Act.” In re Nat’l Prescription Opiate Litig., 2024 WL 5049302, at *1, 2024-OHIO-5744, ¶ 1; see Section III.B.3, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Middletown City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Middletown City filed its original complaint on November 15, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Middletown, Ohio v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46133-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Middletown City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Middletown City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Middletown City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Middletown City, a municipality in Ohio, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1555. Coos County et al. v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46136-DAP: Plaintiff Coos County, New Hampshire

Coos County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Coos County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Coos County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Coos County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Coos County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Coos County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Coos County filed its original complaint on June 13, 2018 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 16, 2019. See Coos County et al. v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46136-DAP, ECF No. 6. Coos County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Coos County elected not to do so. Instead, Coos County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Coos County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Coos County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Coos County has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Coos County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Coos County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF

No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Hampshire law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. see Section III.B.4, above. Coos County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Coos County, a municipality in New Hampshire, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1556. Carroll County v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46137-DAP: Plaintiff Carroll County, New Hampshire

Carroll County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Carroll County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Carroll County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Carroll County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Carroll County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Carroll County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Carroll County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Carroll County elected not to do so. Instead, Carroll County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Carroll County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Carroll County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Carroll County's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.26% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Carroll County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court's repeated instructions to the contrary, Carroll County has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Carroll County's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Carroll County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Carroll County, a municipality in New Hampshire, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1557. Livingston Parish v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46140-DAP: Plaintiff Livingston Parish, Louisiana

Livingston Parish's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Livingston Parish failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Livingston Parish also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Livingston Parish's motion should be denied due to futility, as Livingston Parish does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Livingston Parish was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Livingston Parish filed its original complaint on October 16, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 17, 2019. See Livingston Parish v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46140-DAP, ECF No. 12. Livingston Parish could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Livingston Parish elected not to do so. Instead, Livingston Parish waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs.

Livingston Parish's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Livingston Parish filed its original complaint on October 16, 2019. See Livingston Parish v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46140-DAP, ECF No. 1-3. Despite filing its case years ago, Livingston Parish never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)).

This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Livingston Parish's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Livingston Parish's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Livingston Parish's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Livingston Parish therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Livingston Parish failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Livingston Parish's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Livingston Parish of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Livingston Parish refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Livingston Parish's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Livingston Parish's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Livingston Parish's potential claims against them. Livingston Parish's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6

(denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Louisiana law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Livingston Parish’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Louisiana law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Livingston Parish, a municipality in Louisiana, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Impermissible Claim-splitting. Livingston Parish seeks leave to amend to add claims against the PBMs in two cases: Livingston Parish v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd., et al., No. 1:19-op-46140-DAP; and Ard v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc., et al., No. 1:20-op-45220-DAP. Livingston Parish’s impermissible claim-splitting is a waste of judicial resources and should be rejected. See Waad, 762 F. App’x at 260–63 (finding no abuse of discretion where district court dismissed plaintiff’s claims for improper claim splitting where the plaintiff’s claims in a later-filed case were “duplicative of and improperly split” from an earlier-filed case); Stripling, 2023 WL 5120238, at *2–4 (dismissing subsequent suit based on the same facts pursuant to the Court’s inherent authority and discretion to manage its own docket). It also demonstrates a fundamental lack of diligence on the part of Plaintiff and the PEC.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Livingston Parish’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Livingston Parish filed its original complaint on October 16, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Livingston Parish v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46140-DAP, ECF No. 1-3. Even assuming arguendo that Livingston Parish first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on October 16, 2023. Livingston Parish’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Livingston Parish’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Louisiana, public-nuisance claims are subject to an one-year limitations period. Livingston Parish’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Livingston Parish sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on October 16, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Livingston Parish, a municipality in Louisiana, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1558. City of Espanola, New Mexico v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46142-DAP: Plaintiff Española City, New Mexico

Española City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Española City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Española City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Española City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Española City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Española City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Española City amended its complaint on March 16, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 17, 2019. See City of Espanola, New Mexico v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46142-DAP, ECF No. 6. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Española City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Española City's deadline to amend was in 2020. Española City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Española City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Española City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey &

Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro, PLLC; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Española City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Española City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Mexico law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Española City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Mexico law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Española City, a municipality in New Mexico, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Española City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Española City filed its original complaint on November 15, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Espanola, New Mexico v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46142-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Española City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Española City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Española City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Española City, a municipality in New Mexico, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1559. City of Brookhaven, Mississippi v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46143-DAP: Plaintiff Brookhaven City, Mississippi

Brookhaven City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Brookhaven City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Brookhaven City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Brookhaven City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Brookhaven City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Brookhaven City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Brookhaven City amended its complaint on March 6, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 17, 2019. See City of Brookhaven, Mississippi v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46143-DAP, ECF No. 7. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Brookhaven City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Brookhaven City's deadline to amend was in 2020. Brookhaven City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Brookhaven City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Brookhaven City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Brookhaven City, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Brookhaven City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Brookhaven City’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.05% market share for Brookhaven City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Brookhaven City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Brookhaven City filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019. See City of Brookhaven, Mississippi v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46143-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Brookhaven

City never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Brookhaven City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Brookhaven City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Brookhaven City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Brookhaven City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Mississippi law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Brookhaven City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Mississippi law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Brookhaven City, a municipality in Mississippi, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Brookhaven City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Brookhaven City filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Brookhaven, Mississippi v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46143-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Brookhaven City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 21, 2023. Brookhaven City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Brookhaven City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Brookhaven City, a municipality in Mississippi, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1560. Ridge Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46144-DAP: Plaintiff Ridge Fire District, New York

Ridge Fire District’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ridge Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ridge Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Ridge Fire District’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Ridge Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Ridge Fire District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Ridge Fire District filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 19, 2019. See Ridge Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46144-DAP, ECF No. 1. Ridge Fire District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Ridge Fire District elected not to do so. Ridge Fire District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Ridge Fire District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Ridge Fire District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Ridge Fire District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Ridge Fire District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Ridge Fire District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Ridge Fire District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Ridge Fire District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Ridge Fire District’s potential claims against them. Ridge Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Ridge Fire District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Ridge Fire District, a fire district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Ridge Fire District’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Ridge Fire District filed its original complaint on December 19, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Ridge Fire District, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46144-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Ridge Fire District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on December 19, 2023. Ridge Fire District’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Ridge Fire District’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Ridge Fire District, a fire district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Ridge Fire District’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1561. Village of Great Neck, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46145-DAP: Plaintiff Great Neck Village, New York

Great Neck Village’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Great Neck Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Great Neck Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Great Neck Village’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Great Neck Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Great Neck Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Great Neck Village elected not to do so. Great Neck Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Great Neck Village's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Great Neck Village's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.15% market share for Great Neck Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Great Neck Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Great Neck Village failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Great Neck Village's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Great Neck Village of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Great Neck Village refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Great Neck Village's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Great Neck Village's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Great Neck Village's potential claims against them. Great Neck Village's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Great Neck Village's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Great Neck Village, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Great Neck Village’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Great Neck Village filed its original complaint on December 19, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Village of Great Neck, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46145-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Great Neck Village first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on December 19, 2023. Great Neck Village’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Great Neck Village’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Great Neck Village, a village in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. 1562. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46146-DAP: Plaintiff Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund, New York

Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 20, 2019. See Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46146-DAP, ECF No. 1. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund elected not to do so. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund began receiving those services on September 17, 2009. See id. Inasmuch as Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint on December 20, 2019 alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46146-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Teamsters Local 445 Welfare Fund's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1563. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46147-DAP: Plaintiff Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund, New York

Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 20, 2019. See Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46147-DAP, ECF No. 1. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund elected not to do so. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund, a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund filed its original complaint on December 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46147-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Roofers Local 8 WBPA Fund's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1564. Patrick County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46149-DAP: Plaintiff Patrick County, Virginia

Patrick County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Patrick County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Patrick County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Patrick County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Patrick County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Patrick County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on July 16, 2019. See Patrick County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46149-DAP, ECF No. 1-1 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Co.; Express Scripts, Inc.; Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc.; ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Patrick County could have added claims against other PBM-related entities when it amended its complaint on March 17, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 23, 2019. See id., ECF No. 37. But Patrick County elected not to do so. Now, Patrick County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants five years ago. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Patrick County's complaint, Patrick County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its original complaint against Express Scripts Holding Co.; Express Scripts, Inc.; Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc.; ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc. in 2019. See Section II.A, above. Patrick County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Patrick County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Patrick County filed its original complaint on July 15, 2019, but waited until July 8, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—four years and eleven months later. See Patrick County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46149-DAP, ECF No. 1-1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: July 8, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Patrick County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Patrick County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Patrick County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Patrick County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Patrick County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Patrick County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Patrick County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Patrick County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Patrick County's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Patrick County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Patrick County's potential claims against them. Patrick County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Patrick County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Patrick County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Patrick County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Patrick County filed its original complaint on July 15, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Patrick County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46149-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Even assuming arguendo that Patrick County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on July 15, 2023. Patrick County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Patrick County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Patrick County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1565. Shenandoah County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46150-DAP: Plaintiff Shenandoah County, Virginia

Shenandoah County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Shenandoah County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Shenandoah County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Shenandoah County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Shenandoah County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Shenandoah County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on August 5, 2019. See Shenandoah County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46150-DAP, ECF No. 1-3 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Co.; Express Scripts, Inc.; Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc.; ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Shenandoah County could have added claims against other PBM-related entities when it amended its complaint on March 17, 2020. Id., ECF No. 33. But Shenandoah County elected not to do so. Now, Shenandoah County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants five years ago. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Shenandoah County's complaint, Shenandoah County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its original complaint against Express Scripts Holding Co.; Express Scripts, Inc.; Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc.; ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.;

UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc. in 2019. See Section II.A, above. Shenandoah County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Shenandoah County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Shenandoah County filed its original complaint on August 5, 2019, but waited until August 12, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—five years later. See Shenandoah County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46150-DAP, ECF No. 1-3; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: August 12, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Shenandoah County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Shenandoah County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Shenandoah County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Shenandoah County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020

WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Shenandoah County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Shenandoah County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Shenandoah County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Shenandoah County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Shenandoah County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Shenandoah County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Shenandoah County’s potential claims against them. Shenandoah County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Shenandoah County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. Shenandoah County filed its original complaint on August 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Shenandoah County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46150-DAP, ECF No. 1-3. Even assuming arguendo that Shenandoah County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on August 5, 2023. Shenandoah County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. Shenandoah County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Shenandoah County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1566. Allegany County v. Purdue Pharma Lp et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46151-DAP: Plaintiff Allegany County, New York

Allegany County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Allegany County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Allegany County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Allegany County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Allegany County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Allegany County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 7, 2019. See Allegany County v. Purdue Pharma Lp et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46151-DAP, ECF No. 1-5 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx Inc.). Allegany County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against other PBM-related entities in 2020, but elected not to do so. See Section II.A.1, above. Now, Allegany County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants four years ago. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Allegany County's complaint, Allegany County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its original complaint against the PBMs in 2019. See Section II.A, above. Allegany County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Allegany County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Allegany County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Allegany County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Allegany County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Allegany County's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Allegany County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Allegany County's potential claims against them. Allegany County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Allegany County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Allegany County, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Allegany County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Allegany County filed its original complaint on June 7, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Allegany County v. Purdue Pharma Lp et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46151-DAP, ECF No. 1-5. Even assuming arguendo that Allegany County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on June 7, 2023. Allegany County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Allegany County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Waynesboro City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Waynesboro City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Waynesboro City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Waynesboro City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Waynesboro City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Waynesboro City previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its first amended complaint on August 5, 2019. See City of Waynesboro, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46152-DAP, ECF No. 1-3 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Co.; Express Scripts, Inc.; Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc.; ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Waynesboro City could have added claims against other PBM-related entities when it amended its complaint again on March 17, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 23, 2019 See id., ECF No. 28. But Waynesboro City elected not to do so. Now, Waynesboro City seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants five years ago. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Waynesboro City's complaint, Waynesboro City already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its original complaint against Express Scripts Holding Co.; Express Scripts, Inc.; Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc.; ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc. in 2019. See Section II.A, above. Waynesboro City was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Waynesboro City violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Waynesboro City filed its original complaint on June 7, 2019, but waited until August 12, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—five years later. See City of Waynesboro, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46152-DAP, ECF No. 1-3; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: August 12, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Waynesboro City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Waynesboro City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Waynesboro City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Waynesboro City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Waynesboro City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Waynesboro City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Waynesboro City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Waynesboro City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Waynesboro City's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Waynesboro City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Waynesboro City's potential claims against them. Waynesboro City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Waynesboro City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Waynesboro City, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Waynesboro City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Waynesboro City filed its original complaint on August 5, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Waynesboro, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46152-DAP, ECF No. 1-3. Even assuming arguendo that Waynesboro City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on August 5, 2023. Waynesboro City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Waynesboro City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Waynesboro City, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1568. Cumberland County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46153-DAP: Plaintiff Cumberland County, Virginia

Cumberland County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Cumberland County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Cumberland County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Cumberland County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Cumberland County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Gustafson Decl. (0.04% market share for Cumberland County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Cumberland County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Cumberland County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Cumberland County filed its original complaint on August 9, 2019, but waited until July 19, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—four years and eleven months later. See Cumberland County, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46153-DAP, ECF No. 1-1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: July 19, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. 1569. City of Radford, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46154-DAP: Plaintiff Radford City, Virginia

Radford City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Radford City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Radford City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Radford City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Radford City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Radford City previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on June 14, 2019. See City of Radford, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46154-DAP, ECF No. 1-1 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Co.; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Radford City also amended its complaint on March 17, 2020 to add claims against additional PBM-related entities. See id., ECF No. 29 (adding claims against Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc., and ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.). Now, Radford City seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants in its original or amended complaints. Radford City's deadline to amend was in 2020, but it waited four years after its deadline to seek leave to assert claims against the remaining PBMs. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Radford City's complaint, Radford City already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its prior complaints against the PBMs. See Section II.A, above. Radford City was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Radford City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Radford City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Radford City violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Radford City filed its original complaint on June 14, 2019, but waited until July 19, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—five years and one month later. See City of Radford, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46154-DAP, ECF No. 1-1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: July 19, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. Radford City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Radford City, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1570. County of Ocean, New Jersey v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46157-DAP: Plaintiff Ocean County, New Jersey

Ocean County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ocean County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ocean County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Ocean County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Ocean County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Ocean County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Ocean County filed its original complaint on June 13, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 30, 2019. See County of Ocean, New Jersey v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46157-DAP, ECF No. 38. Ocean County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Ocean County elected not to do so. Instead, Ocean County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Ocean County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Ocean County filed its original complaint on June 13, 2019. See County of Ocean, New Jersey v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46157-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Despite filing its case years ago, Ocean County never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Ocean County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Ocean County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Ocean County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Ocean County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Jersey law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Ocean County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Jersey law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Ocean County, a municipality in New Jersey, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Ocean County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Ocean County filed its original complaint on June 13, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See County of Ocean, New Jersey v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46157-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. It is therefore indisputable that Ocean County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, five years before seeking leave to amend. Ocean County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF

No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Ocean County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Ocean County, a municipality in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1571. City of Poughkeepsie v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46163-DAP: Plaintiff Poughkeepsie City, New York

Poughkeepsie City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Poughkeepsie City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Poughkeepsie City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Poughkeepsie City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Poughkeepsie City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Poughkeepsie City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Poughkeepsie City filed its original complaint on March 28, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 31, 2019. See City of Poughkeepsie v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46163-DAP, ECF No. 27. Poughkeepsie City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Poughkeepsie City elected not to do so. Instead, Poughkeepsie City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Poughkeepsie City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Poughkeepsie City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Poughkeepsie City—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Poughkeepsie City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Poughkeepsie City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Poughkeepsie City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Poughkeepsie City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Poughkeepsie City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Poughkeepsie City's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Poughkeepsie City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Poughkeepsie City's potential claims against them. Poughkeepsie City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Poughkeepsie City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Poughkeepsie City, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Poughkeepsie City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Poughkeepsie City filed its original complaint on March 28, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Poughkeepsie v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46163-DAP, ECF No. 3-1. Even assuming arguendo that Poughkeepsie City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on March 28, 2023. Poughkeepsie City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Poughkeepsie City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Poughkeepsie City, a city in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Poughkeepsie City’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1572. Clark County v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46168-DAP: Plaintiff Clark County, Nevada

Clark County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Clark County previously dismissed its claims against some of the PBMs with prejudice. Moreover, Clark County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Clark County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Clark County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Clark County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Prior Dismissal with Prejudice. Clark County previously dismissed its claims against Express Scripts Holding Company and Express Scripts, Inc., with prejudice. See Clark County v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46168-DAP, ECF No 6. That dismissal “operates as a final adjudication on the merits and has a res judicata effect.” Warfield, 267 F.3d at 542; see also Taylor, 21 F. App’x at 266 (“A dismissal with prejudice [by stipulation of the parties] operates as a rejection of the plaintiff’s claims on the merits and the doctrine of claim preclusion bars further litigation.”). Clark County’s proposed claims against Express Scripts Holding Company; and Express Scripts, Inc.; are therefore barred by res judicata and leave to amend should be denied as futile. See Gale, 142 F. Supp. 3d at 554–55 (“[A] stipulated dismissal with prejudice constitutes an adjudication on the merits” and denying motion for leave to amend complaint when “[p]laintiffs fail to allege any claim within this Court’s federal question jurisdiction that would not be barred by res judicata.”).

Lack of Diligence. Clark County previously alleged claims against Express Scripts, Inc., and Express Scripts Holding Company in its third amended complaint on September 12, 2019. See Clark County v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46168-DAP, ECF No. 1-3. Clark County later dismissed those claims with prejudice. Id., ECF No. 6. Clark County also amended its complaint on March 23, 2020, after transfer to the MDL. Id., ECF No. 49. Clark County did not add any claims against other PBM-related entities in that complaint, and Clark County offers no good cause to do so now. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And Clark County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its original complaint against Express Scripts Holding Company; and Express Scripts, Inc. in 2019. See Section II.A, above. Clark County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Nevada law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Clark County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Nevada law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Clark County, a municipality in Nevada, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Clark County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Clark County filed a complaint on September 12, 2019, alleging a state-law RICO claim against Express Scripts Holding Company and Express Scripts, Inc. See Clark County v. Purdue Pharma, L.P. et al., 1:19-op-46168-DAP, ECF No. 1-3. Clark County later dismissed that claim with prejudice. Id., ECF No. 6. It is therefore indisputable that Clark County knew of its injury and the factual basis for its alleged RICO claim against the PBMs, at the very latest, the day it filed that complaint, almost five years before seeking leave to amend. Clark County's proposed amended RICO claim against the additional PBMs it did not previously name is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of the other elements of a claim") (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555); see Section III.B.4, above. Clark County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Clark County, a municipality in Nevada, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1573. Howard County, Maryland v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46169-DAP: Plaintiff Howard County, Maryland

Howard County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Howard County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Howard County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Howard County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Howard County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Howard County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Howard County amended its complaint on March 30, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 31, 2019. See Howard County, Maryland v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46169-DAP, ECF No. 56. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Howard County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Howard County’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Howard County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Howard County’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Howard County cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Motley Rice LLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Howard County, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Howard County fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Howard County's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.04% market share for Howard County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Howard County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Howard County's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.30% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Howard County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Howard County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Howard County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Howard County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Howard County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Howard County's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Howard County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Howard County's potential claims against them. Howard County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maryland law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Howard County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maryland law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Howard County, a municipality in Maryland, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Howard County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Howard County filed its original complaint on May 17, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Howard County, Maryland v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc., et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46169-DAP, ECF No. 1-3. Even assuming arguendo that Howard County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on May 17, 2023. Howard County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Howard County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Maryland, public-nuisance claims are subject to a three-year limitations period. Howard County’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Howard County sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—five years after filing its original complaint on May 17, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Howard County, a municipality in Maryland, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1574. Town of Hull v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46172-DAP: Plaintiff Hull Town, Massachusetts

Hull Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Hull Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hull Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hull Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Hull Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Hull Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Hull Town amended its complaint on March 30, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 31, 2019, as well as on September 11, 2020 and September 9, 2024. See Town of Hull v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46172-DAP, ECF Nos. 9, 17, 29. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Hull Town declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaints. See Section II.A.1, above. Hull Town’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Hull Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Hull Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Hull Town cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro, PLLC; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Hull Town, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Hull Town fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Hull Town filed its original complaint on December 2, 2019. See Town of Hull v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46172-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Hull Town never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Hull Town's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Hull Town's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Hull Town's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Hull Town therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Massachusetts law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Hull Town’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Massachusetts law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Hull Town, a municipality in Massachusetts, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Hull Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Hull Town filed its original complaint on December 2, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Town of Hull v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46172-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Hull Town knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Hull Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Hull Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Massachusetts, public-nuisance claims are subject to a three-year limitations period. Hull Town’s public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Hull Town sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—nearly five years after filing its original complaint on December 2, 2019—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 (“This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations.” (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Hull Town, a municipality in Massachusetts, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1575. Scott County, Missouri v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corp. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46174-DAP: Plaintiff Scott County, Missouri

Scott County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Scott County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Scott County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Scott County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Scott County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Scott County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover,

Scott County filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 31, 2019. See Scott County, Missouri v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corp. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46174-DAP, ECF No. 5. Scott County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Scott County elected not to do so. Instead, Scott County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Scott County’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Scott County cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Scott County—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Scott County fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Scott County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Scott County's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Scott County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Scott County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Scott County's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Scott County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Scott County's potential claims against them. Scott County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Missouri law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Scott County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Missouri law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Scott County, a municipality in Missouri, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Scott County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Scott County filed its original complaint on November 21, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Scott County, Missouri v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corp. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46174-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Scott County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Scott County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Scott County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Scott County, a municipality in Missouri, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1576. Borough of Edwarsville, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46176-DAP: Plaintiff Edwarsville Borough, Pennsylvania

Edwarsville Borough's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Edwarsville Borough failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Edwarsville Borough also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Edwarsville Borough's motion should be denied due to futility, as Edwarsville Borough does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Edwarsville Borough was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Edwarsville Borough filed its original complaint on November 27, 2019, and the case was transferred to the MDL on December 31, 2019. See Borough of Edwarsville, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46176-DAP, ECF No. 4. Edwarsville Borough could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Edwarsville Borough elected not to do so. Instead, Edwarsville Borough waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Edwarsville Borough's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Edwardsville Borough cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro, PLLC; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Edwardsville Borough, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Edwardsville Borough fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Edwardsville Borough’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Edwardsville Borough cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Edwardsville Borough filed its original complaint on November 27, 2019. See Borough of Edwardsville, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46176-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Edwardsville Borough never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Edwardsville Borough's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Edwardsville Borough's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Edwardsville Borough's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Edwardsville Borough therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Edwardsville Borough failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Edwardsville Borough’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Edwardsville Borough of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Edwardsville Borough refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Edwardsville Borough’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Edwardsville Borough’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Edwardsville Borough’s potential claims against them. Edwardsville Borough’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Pennsylvania law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Edwardsville Borough’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Pennsylvania law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Edwardsville Borough, a municipality in Pennsylvania, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Edwardsville Borough's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Edwardsville Borough filed its original complaint on November 27, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Borough of Edwardsville, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46176-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Edwardsville Borough knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Edwardsville Borough's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Edwardsville Borough's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Edwardsville Borough, a municipality in Pennsylvania, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1577. Forty Fort Borough, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46177-DAP: Plaintiff Forty Fort Borough, Pennsylvania

Forty Fort Borough's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Forty Fort Borough failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Forty Fort Borough also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Forty Fort Borough's motion should be denied due to futility, as Forty Fort Borough does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Forty Fort Borough was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Forty Fort Borough amended its complaint on March 30, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on December 31, 2019. See Forty Fort Borough, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46177-DAP, ECF No. 6. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Forty Fort Borough declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Forty Fort Borough's deadline to amend was in 2020. Forty Fort Borough waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Forty Fort Borough's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Forty Fort Borough cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro, PLLC; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Forty Fort Borough, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier.

Forty Fort Borough fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Forty Fort Borough’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Forty Fort Borough cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Forty Fort Borough filed its original complaint on November 27, 2019. See Forty Fort Borough, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46177-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Forty Fort Borough never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Forty Fort Borough’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Forty Fort Borough’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Forty Fort Borough’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Forty Fort Borough therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Forty Fort Borough failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Forty Fort Borough’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Forty Fort Borough of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Forty Fort Borough refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Forty Fort Borough’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Forty Fort Borough’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Forty Fort Borough’s potential claims against them. Forty Fort Borough’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment

Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Pennsylvania law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Forty Fort Borough’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Pennsylvania law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Forty Fort Borough, a municipality in Pennsylvania, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Forty Fort Borough’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Forty Fort Borough filed its original complaint on November 27, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Forty Fort Borough, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46177-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Forty Fort Borough knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Forty Fort Borough’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of

[the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Forty Fort Borough’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Forty Fort Borough, a municipality in Pennsylvania, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1578. City of Pontiac, Michigan v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46183-DAP: Plaintiff Pontiac City, Michigan

Pontiac City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Pontiac City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Pontiac City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Pontiac City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Pontiac City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Pontiac City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Pontiac City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 31, 2019. See City of Pontiac, Michigan v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46183-DAP, ECF No. 1. Pontiac City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Pontiac City elected not to do so. Pontiac City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Pontiac City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Pontiac City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Pontiac City—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Pontiac City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Pontiac City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Pontiac City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Pontiac City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Pontiac City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Pontiac City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Pontiac City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Pontiac City’s potential claims against them. Pontiac City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Michigan law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Pontiac City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Michigan law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Pontiac City, a municipality in Michigan, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Pontiac City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Pontiac City, a municipality in Michigan, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1579. Lawrence County, Kentucky v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46184-DAP: Plaintiff Lawrence County, Kentucky

Lawrence County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Lawrence County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Lawrence County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Lawrence County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Lawrence County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Lawrence County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Lawrence County filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on December 31, 2019. See Lawrence County, Kentucky v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46184-DAP, ECF No. 1. Lawrence County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Lawrence County elected not to do so. Lawrence County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Lawrence County’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Lawrence County cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Lawrence County—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Lawrence County fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Lawrence County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Lawrence County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Lawrence County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Lawrence County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Lawrence County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Lawrence County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Lawrence County’s potential claims against them. Lawrence County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Kentucky law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Lawrence County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Kentucky law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Lawrence County, a municipality in Kentucky, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Lawrence County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Lawrence County filed its original complaint on December 31, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Lawrence County, Kentucky v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case

No. 1:19-op-46184-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Lawrence County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Lawrence County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Lawrence County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Lawrence County, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1580. City of Emporia, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46850-DAP: Plaintiff Emporia City, Virginia

Emporia City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Emporia City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Emporia City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Emporia City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Emporia City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Emporia City previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on July 9, 2019. See City of Emporia, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46850-DAP, ECF No. 1-1 (bringing claims against Express Scripts Holding Co.; Express Scripts, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx, Inc.). Emporia City also amended its complaint on December 20, 2019, to add claims against additional PBM-related entities. See id., ECF No. 24 (adding claims against Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc., and ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.). Now, Emporia City seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants in its original or amended complaints. Emporia City's deadline to amend was in 2020, but it waited four years after its deadline to seek leave to assert claims against the remaining PBMs. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Emporia City's complaint, Emporia City already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its prior complaints against the PBMs. See Section II.A, above. Emporia City was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Emporia City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.06% market share for Emporia City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Emporia City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Exhibit C (0.35% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Emporia City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Emporia City violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Emporia City filed its original complaint on July 9, 2019, but waited until August 13, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—five years and one month later. See City of Emporia, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46850-DAP, ECF No. 1-1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: August 13, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Emporia City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Emporia City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Emporia City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Emporia City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Emporia City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Emporia City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Emporia City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Emporia City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Emporia City's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1

(emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Emporia City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Emporia City’s potential claims against them. Emporia City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Emporia City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Emporia City, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Emporia City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Emporia City filed its original complaint on July 9, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Emporia, Virginia v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:19-op-46850-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Even assuming arguendo that Emporia City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on July 9, 2023. Emporia City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Emporia City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Emporia City, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1581. Village of Pleasant Prairie Wisconsin v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45010-DAP: Plaintiff Pleasant Prairie Village, Wisconsin

Pleasant Prairie Village's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Pleasant Prairie Village failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Pleasant Prairie Village also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Pleasant Prairie Village's motion should be denied due to futility, as Pleasant Prairie Village does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Pleasant Prairie Village was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Pleasant Prairie Village amended its complaint on April 6, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on January 8, 2020. See Village of Pleasant Prairie Wisconsin v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45010-DAP, ECF No. 4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Pleasant Prairie Village declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Pleasant Prairie Village’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Pleasant Prairie Village waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Pleasant Prairie Village’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Pleasant Prairie Village cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro, PLLC; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Pleasant Prairie Village, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Pleasant Prairie Village fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. Gustafson Decl. (0.10% market share for Pleasant Prairie Village). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Pleasant Prairie Village to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Pleasant Prairie Village filed its original complaint on December 13, 2019. See Village of Pleasant Prairie Wisconsin v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45010-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Pleasant Prairie Village never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Pleasant Prairie Village's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Pleasant Prairie Village's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. 1582. City of Kenosha, Wisconsin v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45011-DAP: Plaintiff Kenosha City, Wisconsin

Kenosha City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Kenosha City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Kenosha City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Kenosha City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Kenosha City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

1583. Bath County Fiscal Court v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45012-DAP: Plaintiff Bath County, Kentucky

Bath County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Bath County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Bath County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Bath County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Bath County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Bath County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Bath County amended its complaint on April 6, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on January 8, 2020. See Bath County Fiscal Court v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No.

1:20-op-45012-DAP, ECF No. 7. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Bath County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Bath County’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Bath County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Bath County’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Bath County cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro, PLLC; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Bath County, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Bath County fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

Bath County's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.03% market share for Bath County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Bath County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Bath County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Bath County filed its original complaint on December 12, 2019, but waited until September 18, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—four years and nine months later. See Bath County Fiscal Court v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45012-DAP, ECF No. 1; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: September 18, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Bath County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Bath County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Bath County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Bath County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Kentucky law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Bath County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Kentucky law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Bath County, a municipality in Kentucky, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Bath County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Bath County filed its original complaint on December 12, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Bath County Fiscal Court v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45012-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Bath County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Bath County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Bath County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Bath County, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1584. County of Hawaii v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45014-DAP: Plaintiff Hawaii County, Hawaii

Hawaii County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Hawaii County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hawaii County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hawaii County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Hawaii County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Hawaii County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Hawaii County filed its original complaint on June 10, 2019, and the case was transferred to the MDL on January 8, 2020. See County of Hawaii v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45014-DAP, ECF No. 19. Hawaii County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Hawaii County elected not to do so. Instead, Hawaii County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Hawaii County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Hawaii County's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.36% market share for Hawaii County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Hawaii County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Hawaii County previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Hawaii County of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Hawaii County began receiving those services on July 2, 2007. See id. Inasmuch as Hawaii County seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Hawaii County knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Hawaii County's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Hawaii County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Hawaii County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Hawaii County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Hawaii County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Hawaii County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Hawaii County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Hawaii County’s potential claims against them. Hawaii County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Hawaii law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Hawaii County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Hawaii law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Hawaii County, a municipality in Hawaii, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Hawaii County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Hawaii County filed its original complaint on June 10, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See County of Hawaii v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45014-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Even assuming arguendo that Hawaii County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on June 10, 2023. Hawaii County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Hawaii County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Hawaii County, a municipality in Hawaii, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1585. Fiscal Court of Monroe County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45016-DAP: Plaintiff Monroe County, Kentucky

Monroe County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Monroe County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Monroe County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Monroe County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Monroe County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Monroe County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Monroe County filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 10, 2020. See Fiscal Court of Monroe County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45016-DAP, ECF No. 1. Monroe County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Monroe County elected not to do so. Monroe County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Monroe County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

(0.003% market share for Monroe County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Monroe County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Monroe County filed its original complaint on January 10, 2020. See Fiscal Court of Monroe County, Kentucky v. Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45016-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Monroe County never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Monroe County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Monroe County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Monroe County, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1586. West Hempstead Public Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45018-DAP: Plaintiff West Hempstead Public Library, New York

West Hempstead Public Library's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. West Hempstead Public Library failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. West Hempstead Public Library also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, West Hempstead Public Library's motion should be denied due to futility, as West Hempstead Public Library does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. West Hempstead Public Library was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, West Hempstead Public Library filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 13, 2020. See West Hempstead Public Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45018-DAP, ECF No. 1. West Hempstead Public Library could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, West Hempstead Public Library elected not to do so. West Hempstead Public Library waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. West Hempstead Public Library's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, West Hempstead Public Library failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to West Hempstead Public Library's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified West Hempstead Public Library of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but West Hempstead Public Library refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, West Hempstead Public Library's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. West Hempstead Public Library's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against West Hempstead Public Library's potential claims against them. West Hempstead Public Library's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But West Hempstead Public Library’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. West Hempstead Public Library, a library in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for West Hempstead Public Library’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. West Hempstead Public Library filed its original complaint on January 13, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See West Hempstead Public Library v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45018-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that West Hempstead Public Library knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four years before seeking leave to amend. West Hempstead Public Library’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF

No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. West Hempstead Public Library’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. West Hempstead Public Library, a library in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. West Hempstead Public Library’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1587. Hui Huliau, A Native Hawaiian Organization v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45025-DAP: Plaintiff Hui Huliau, A Native Hawaiian Organization, Hawaii

Hui Huliau, A Native Hawaiian Organization’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Hui Huliau failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hui Huliau also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hui Huliau’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Hui Huliau does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Hui Huliau was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Hui Huliau filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 17, 2020. See Hui Huliau,

A Native Hawaiian Organization v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45025-DAP, ECF No. 1. Hui Huliau could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Hui Huliau elected not to do so. Hui Huliau waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Hui Huliau’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Hui Huliau filed its original complaint on January 17, 2020. See Hui Huliau, A Native Hawaiian Organization v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45025-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Hui Huliau never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Hui Huliau’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Hui Huliau’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Hui Huliau’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Hui Huliau therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. Despite the Court’s repeated instructions to the contrary, Hui Huliau has never served a Plaintiff Fact Sheet. Hui Huliau’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Hui Huliau’s failure to diligently prosecute its case negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Hawaii law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Hui Huliau’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Hawaii law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Hui Huliau, a third party payor in Hawaii, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Hui Huliau’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Hui Huliau filed its original complaint on January 17, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Hui Huliau, A Native Hawaiian Organization v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45025-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Hui Huliau knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four years before seeking leave to amend. Hui Huliau's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Hui Huliau's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Hui Huliau, a third party payor in Hawaii, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1588. Hudson Regional Hospital v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45026-DAP: Plaintiff Hudson Regional Hospital, New Jersey

Hudson Regional Hospital's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. The Court previously dismissed Hudson Regional Hospital's case. Moreover, Hudson Regional Hospital failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hudson Regional Hospital also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hudson Regional Hospital's motion should be denied due to futility, as Hudson Regional Hospital does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Jurisdiction. This Court previously dismissed Hudson Regional Hospital's case on April 2, 2024. See Hudson Regional Hospital v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45026-DAP, ECF No. 21. "Following entry of final judgment, a party may not seek to amend their complaint without first moving to alter, set aside or vacate judgment pursuant to either Rule 59 or Rule 60 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure." In re Ferro Corp., 511 F.3d at 624 (citation omitted). Without such post-judgment relief, the “district court lacks power to grant a motion to amend the complaint” because there is no “live case or controversy before the district court.” Id. (quoting Acevedo-Villalobos, 22 F.3d at 389). Hudson Regional Hospital has neither moved for post-judgment relief nor met the heightened requirements for reopening a case. See Leisure Caviar, 616 F.3d at 617 (“A claimant who seeks to amend a complaint after losing the case must provide a compelling explanation to the district court for granting the motion.”). Hudson Regional Hospital has not offered any basis to reopen its case, so its motion for leave to amend must be denied. See id. (affirming denial of leave to amend after judgment, in part, because the plaintiff was previously on notice of the alleged “newly discovered evidence” offered in support of the motion).

Lack of Diligence. Hudson Regional Hospital was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Hudson Regional Hospital filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 18, 2020. See Hudson Regional Hospital v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45026-DAP, ECF No. 1. Hudson Regional Hospital could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Hudson Regional Hospital elected not to do so. Hudson Regional Hospital waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Hudson Regional Hospital’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New Jersey law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Hudson Regional Hospital's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New Jersey law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Hudson Regional Hospital, a hospital in New Jersey, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Hudson Regional Hospital, a hospital in New Jersey, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1589. Iron Workers Local 40 Health Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45027-DAP: Plaintiff Iron Workers Local 40 Health Fund, New York

Iron Workers Local 40 Health Fund's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Iron Workers Local 40 Health Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Iron Workers Local 40 Health Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Iron Workers Local 40 Health Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as Iron Workers Local 40 Health Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Iron Workers Local 361 Health Fund’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Iron Workers Local 361 Health Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Iron Workers Local 361 Health Fund also Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund began receiving those services on July 7, 2020. See id. Inasmuch as Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Metallic Lathers and Reinforcing Iron Workers Local 46 Health & Benefit Fund's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

McKesson Corporation et al.*, Case No. 1:20-op-45033-DAP, ECF No. 1. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund elected not to do so. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund began receiving those services on January 1, 2006. See id. Inasmuch as UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821– 22, 845), UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund, a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund filed its original complaint on January 19, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45033-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four years before seeking leave to amend. UFCW Local 342

Healthcare Fund's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. UFCW Local 342 Healthcare Fund's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1594. UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45034-DAP: Plaintiff UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund, New York

UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund's motion should be denied due to futility, as UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint directly into the UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. UFCW Local 342 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. 1595. St. James Fire District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45035-DAP: Plaintiff St James Fire District, New York

St James Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. St James Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. St James Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, St James Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as St James Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. St James Fire District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, St James Fire District filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 19, 2020. See St. James Fire District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45035-DAP, ECF No. 1. St James Fire District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, St James Fire District elected not to do so. St James Fire District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. St James Fire District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, St James Fire District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to St James Fire District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified St James Fire District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but St James Fire District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, St James Fire District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. St James Fire District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against St James Fire District’s potential claims against them. St James Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But St James Fire District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. St James Fire District, a fire district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for St James Fire District's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. St James Fire District filed its original complaint on January 19, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See St. James Fire District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45035-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that St James Fire District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on January 19, 2024. St James Fire District's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. St James Fire District's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. St James Fire District, a fire district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. St James Fire District's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1596. Town of Stony Point, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45036-DAP: Plaintiff Stony Point Town, New York

Stony Point Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Stony Point Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Stony Point Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Stony Point Town’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Stony Point Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Stony Point Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Stony Point Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 22, 2020. *See Town of Stony Point, New York v. Stony Point Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Stony Point Town elected not to do so. Stony Point Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Stony Point Town’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459

(affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Stony Point Town’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.08% market share for Stony Point Town). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Stony Point Town to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts’ Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Stony Point Town’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.09% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Stony Point Town to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Stony Point Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Stony Point Town’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Stony Point Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Stony Point Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Stony Point Town’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Stony Point Town’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Stony Point Town's potential claims against them. Stony Point Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Stony Point Town's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Stony Point Town, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Stony Point Town's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Stony Point Town filed its original complaint on January 22, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Town of Stony Point, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45036-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Stony Point Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on January 22, 2024. Stony Point Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Stony Point Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Stony Point Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Stony Point Town’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1597. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45037-DAP: Plaintiff IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund, New York

IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund’s motion should be denied due to futility, as IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 22, 2020. See IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45037-DAP, ECF No. 1. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund elected not to do so. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund began receiving those services on January 1, 2006. See id. Inasmuch as IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund, a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund filed its original complaint on January 22, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45037-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four years before seeking leave to amend. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. IBEW Local 25 Health & Benefit Fund's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1598. Tishomingo County, Mississippi v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45039-DAP: Plaintiff Tishomingo County, Mississippi

Tishomingo County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Tishomingo County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Tishomingo County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Tishomingo County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Tishomingo County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Tishomingo County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Tishomingo County filed its original complaint on December 30, 2019, and the case was transferred to the MDL on January 23, 2020. See Tishomingo County, Mississippi v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45039-DAP, ECF No. 3. Tishomingo County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Tishomingo County elected not to do so. Instead, Tishomingo County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Tishomingo County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Tishomingo County's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.24% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Tishomingo County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Mississippi law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Tishomingo County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Mississippi law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Tishomingo County, a municipality in Mississippi, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Tishomingo County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Tishomingo County filed its original complaint on December 30, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Tishomingo County, Mississippi v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45039-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Tishomingo County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on December 30, 2023. Tishomingo County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Tishomingo County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Tishomingo County, a municipality in Mississippi, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1599. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45041-DAP: Plaintiff UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund, New York

UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s motion should be denied due to futility, as UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 27, 2020. See UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45041-DAP, ECF No. 1. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund elected not to do so. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund began receiving those services on December 1, 2012. See id. Inasmuch as UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund filed its original complaint on January 27, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45041-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on January 27, 2024. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund, a third party payor in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. UFCW Local 1500 Welfare Fund’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1600. Town of Ramapo, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45042-DAP: Plaintiff Ramapo Town, New York

Ramapo Town’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ramapo Town failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ramapo Town also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Ramapo Town's motion should be denied due to futility, as Ramapo Town does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Ramapo Town was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Ramapo Town filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 27, 2020. See Town of Ramapo, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45042-DAP, ECF No. 1. Ramapo Town could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Ramapo Town elected not to do so. Ramapo Town waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Ramapo Town's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Ramapo Town's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Ramapo Town cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Ramapo Town failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Ramapo Town's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Ramapo Town of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Ramapo Town refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Ramapo Town's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Ramapo Town's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Ramapo Town's potential claims against them. Ramapo Town's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Ramapo Town's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Ramapo Town, a municipality in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Ramapo Town’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Ramapo Town filed its original complaint on January 27, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Town of Ramapo, New York v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45042-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Ramapo Town first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on January 27, 2024. Ramapo Town’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Ramapo Town’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Ramapo Town, a municipality in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Ramapo Town’s request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1601. City of Milwaukee, Wisconsin v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45044-DAP: Plaintiff Milwaukee City, Wisconsin

Milwaukee City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Milwaukee City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Milwaukee City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Milwaukee City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Milwaukee City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Milwaukee City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Milwaukee City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on January 29, 2020. See City of Milwaukee, Wisconsin v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45044-DAP, ECF No. 1. Milwaukee City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Milwaukee City elected not to do so. Milwaukee City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Milwaukee City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Milwaukee City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Milwaukee City—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Milwaukee City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

units shipped to Milwaukee City’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.37% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Milwaukee City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Milwaukee City previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Milwaukee City of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Milwaukee City began receiving those services on January 1, 2012. See id. Inasmuch as Milwaukee City seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Milwaukee City knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Milwaukee City’s delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Milwaukee City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Milwaukee City’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Milwaukee City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Milwaukee City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Milwaukee City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Milwaukee City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Milwaukee City's potential claims against them. Milwaukee City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Wisconsin law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Milwaukee City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Wisconsin law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Milwaukee City, a municipality in Wisconsin, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Milwaukee City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Milwaukee City filed its original complaint on January 29, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Milwaukee, Wisconsin v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45044-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Milwaukee City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four years before seeking leave to amend. Milwaukee City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Milwaukee City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Milwaukee City, a municipality in Wisconsin, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1602. Amherst County, Virginia v. Mallinckrodt PLC et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45046-DAP: Plaintiff Amherst County, Virginia

Amherst County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Amherst County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Amherst County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Amherst County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Amherst County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Amherst County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on November 13, 2019. See Amherst County, Virginia v. Mallinckrodt PLC et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45046-DAP, ECF No. 1-2 (bringing claims against Express Scripts, Inc.; Express Scripts Holding Company; ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.; Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx Inc.). Amherst County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against other PBM-related entities in 2020, but elected not to do so. See Section II.A.1, above. Now, Amherst County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants four years ago. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Amherst County's complaint, Amherst County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its original complaint against the PBMs in 2019. See Section II.A, above. Amherst County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Amherst County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Amherst County filed its original complaint on November 13, 2019, but waited until July 8, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—four and a half years later. See Amherst County, Virginia v. Mallinckrodt PLC et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45046-DAP, ECF No. 1-2; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: July 8, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Amherst County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Amherst County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Amherst County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Amherst County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Amherst County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Amherst County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Amherst County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Amherst County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Amherst County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Amherst County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Amherst County’s potential claims against them. Amherst County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Amherst County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Amherst County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Amherst County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1603. Narragansett Indian Tribe v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45047-DAP: Plaintiff Narragansett Indian Tribe, Rhode Island

Narragansett Indian Tribe’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Narragansett Indian Tribe failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Narragansett Indian Tribe also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Narragansett Indian Tribe’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Narragansett Indian Tribe does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Narragansett Indian Tribe was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Narragansett Indian Tribe filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on February 4, 2020. See Narragansett Indian Tribe v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45047-DAP, ECF No. 1. Narragansett Indian Tribe could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Narragansett Indian Tribe elected not to do so. Narragansett Indian Tribe waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Narragansett Indian Tribe's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Narragansett Indian Tribe filed its original complaint on February 4, 2020. See Narragansett Indian Tribe v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45047-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Narragansett Indian Tribe never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Narragansett Indian Tribe's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Narragansett Indian Tribe's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Narragansett Indian Tribe's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Narragansett Indian Tribe therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Rhode Island law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Narragansett Indian Tribe's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Rhode Island law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Narragansett Indian Tribe, a native tribe in Rhode Island, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries.

Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Narragansett Indian Tribe’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Narragansett Indian Tribe filed its original complaint on February 4, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Narragansett Indian Tribe v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45047-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Narragansett Indian Tribe knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, over four years before seeking leave to amend. Narragansett Indian Tribe’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Narragansett Indian Tribe’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Narragansett Indian Tribe, a native tribe in Rhode Island, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1604. Medford Volunteer Ambulance v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45048-DAP: Plaintiff Medford Volunteer Ambulance, New York

Medford Volunteer Ambulance’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Medford Volunteer Ambulance failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Medford Volunteer Ambulance also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Medford Volunteer Ambulance's motion should be denied due to futility, as Medford Volunteer Ambulance does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Medford Volunteer Ambulance was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Medford Volunteer Ambulance filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on February 5, 2020. See Medford Volunteer Ambulance v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45048-DAP, ECF No. 1. Medford Volunteer Ambulance could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Medford Volunteer Ambulance elected not to do so. Medford Volunteer Ambulance waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Medford Volunteer Ambulance's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Medford Volunteer Ambulance's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Medford Volunteer Ambulance, an ambulance district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Medford Volunteer Ambulance's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Medford Volunteer Ambulance filed its original complaint on February 5, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Medford Volunteer Ambulance v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45048-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Medford Volunteer Ambulance knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four years before seeking leave to amend. Medford Volunteer Ambulance's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Medford Volunteer Ambulance, a ambulance district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Medford Volunteer Ambulance's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1605. Islip Terrace Fire District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45049-DAP: Plaintiff Islip Terrace Fire District, New York

Islip Terrace Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Islip Terrace Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Islip Terrace Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Islip Terrace Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Islip Terrace Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Islip Terrace Fire District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Islip Terrace Fire District filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on February 5, 2020. See Islip Terrace Fire District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45049-DAP, ECF No. 1. Islip Terrace Fire District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Islip Terrace Fire District elected not to do so. Islip Terrace Fire District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Islip Terrace Fire District's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Islip Terrace Fire District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Islip Terrace Fire District's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Islip Terrace Fire District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Islip Terrace Fire District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Islip Terrace Fire District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Islip Terrace Fire District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Islip Terrace Fire District’s potential claims against them. Islip Terrace Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Islip Terrace Fire District’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Islip Terrace Fire District's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Islip Terrace Fire District filed its original complaint on February 5, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Islip Terrace Fire District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45049-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Islip Terrace Fire District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on February 5, 2024. Islip Terrace Fire District's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. 1606. North Patchogue Fire District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45050-DAP: Plaintiff North Patchogue Fire District, New York

North Patchogue Fire District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. North Patchogue Fire District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. North Patchogue Fire District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, North Patchogue Fire District's motion should be denied due to futility, as North Patchogue Fire District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Under this Court's orders, North Patchogue Fire District's case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. North Patchogue Fire District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against North Patchogue Fire District’s potential claims against them. North Patchogue Fire District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for North Patchogue Fire District’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. North Patchogue Fire District filed its original complaint on February 5, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See North Patchogue Fire District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45050-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that North Patchogue Fire District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on February 5, 2024. North Patchogue Fire District's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. North Patchogue Fire District's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. North Patchogue Fire District, a fire district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. North Patchogue Fire District's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1607. City of Calais, Maine v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45051-DAP: Plaintiff Calais City, Maine

Calais City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Calais City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Calais City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Calais City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Calais City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by state law in Maine, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Calais City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Calais City filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on February 6, 2020. See City of Calais, Maine v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45051-DAP, ECF No. 1. Calais City could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Calais City elected not to do so. Calais City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Calais City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Calais City cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Napoli Shkolnik, PLLC—that have been bringing claims against the PBMs since 2019. Calais City—through its counsel—was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Calais City fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff's counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants' conduct).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Calais City's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Calais City cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Calais City failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Calais City's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Calais City of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Calais City refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Calais City's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Calais City's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Calais City's potential claims against them. Calais City's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Maine law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Calais City’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Maine law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Calais City, a municipality in Maine, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

Plaintiff’s Public Nuisance Claim is Futile. Calais City is a plaintiff in Maine. Calais City’s request for leave to add the PBMs as defendants to a public nuisance claim should be denied as futile because such a claim is not cognizable under Maine law. E. Me. Med. Ctr., 2023 WL 2161256, at *6; see Section III.B.3, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Calais City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Calais City filed its original complaint on February 6, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See City of Calais, Maine v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45051-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Calais City knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four years before seeking leave to amend. Calais City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Calais City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Calais City, a municipality in Maine, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1608. County of Angelina v. Allergan PLC, et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45053-DAP: Plaintiff Angelina County, Texas

Angelina County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Angelina County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Angelina County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Angelina County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Angelina County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Angelina County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Angelina County amended its complaint on August 23, 2019, before its transfer to the MDL on February 7, 2020. See County of Angelina v. Allergan PLC, et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45053-DAP, ECF No. 1-5. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Angelina County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Angelina County's deadline to amend was in 2020. Angelina County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Angelina County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Angelina County's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.08% market share for Angelina County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Angelina County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Angelina County filed its original complaint on November 14, 2018. See County of Angelina v. Allergan PLC, et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45053-

DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Despite filing its case years ago, Angelina County never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Angelina County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Angelina County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Angelina County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Angelina County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Angelina County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Angelina County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Angelina County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Angelina County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Angelina County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Angelina County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Angelina County’s potential claims against them. Angelina County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Texas law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Angelina County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Texas law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Angelina County, a municipality in Texas, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Angelina County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Angelina County filed its original complaint on November 14, 2018, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See County of Angelina v. Allergan PLC, et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45053-DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Even assuming arguendo that Angelina County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on November 14, 2022. Angelina County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Angelina County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Angelina County, a municipality in Texas, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1609. County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP: Plaintiff Anaheim City, California

Anaheim City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Anaheim City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Anaheim City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Anaheim City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Anaheim City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Anaheim City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Anaheim City first amended its complaint on October 4, 2019. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Anaheim City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Anaheim City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Anaheim City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Anaheim City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Anaheim City's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.15% market share for Anaheim City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Anaheim City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Anaheim City's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.42% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Anaheim City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Anaheim City previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Anaheim City of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Anaheim City began receiving those services on July 2, 2007. See id. Inasmuch as Anaheim City seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Anaheim City knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Anaheim City's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972

F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Anaheim City filed its original complaint on October 1, 2019. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-9. Despite filing its case years ago, Anaheim City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Anaheim City’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Anaheim City’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Anaheim City’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Anaheim City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to State a Claim. Anaheim City, a municipality in California, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Richard S. Sackler et al.*, Case No. 1:20-op-45055-

DAP, ECF No. 1-9. Even assuming arguendo that Anaheim City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on October 1, 2023. Anaheim City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Anaheim City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Anaheim City, a municipality in California, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1610. County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP: Plaintiff Encinitas City, California

Encinitas City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Encinitas City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Encinitas City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Encinitas City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Encinitas City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Encinitas City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

1611. County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP: Plaintiff La Habra City, California

La Habra City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. La Habra City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. La Habra City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, La Habra City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as La Habra City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Moreover, La Habra City first amended its complaint on October 4, 2019. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, La Habra City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. La Habra City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. La Habra City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. La Habra City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at

Express Scripts’ Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to La Habra City’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.47% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for La Habra City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. La Habra City filed its original complaint on October 1, 2019, but waited until February 26, 2020 to implement a litigation hold. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-9; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: February 26, 2020). La Habra City’s violation of the Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455) and disregard for its discovery obligations is prejudicial to the PBMs and weighs heavily against any finding of good cause for leave to amend. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

La Habra City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. La Habra City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. La Habra City, a municipality in California, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1612. County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP: Plaintiff La Mesa City, California

La Mesa City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. La Mesa City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. La Mesa City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, La Mesa City's motion should be denied due to futility, as La Mesa City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. La Mesa City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, La Mesa City first amended its complaint on October 4, 2019. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, La Mesa City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. La Mesa City's deadline to amend was in 2020. La Mesa City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. La Mesa City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

(0.12% market share for La Mesa City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for La Mesa City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. La Mesa City filed its original complaint on October 1, 2019. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-9. Despite filing its case years ago, La Mesa City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating La Mesa City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of La Mesa City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by La Mesa City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and La Mesa City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to State a Claim. La Mesa City, a municipality in California, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for La Mesa City’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. La Mesa City filed its original complaint on October 1, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-9. Even assuming arguendo that La Mesa City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on October 1, 2023. La Mesa City’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. La Mesa City’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. La Mesa City, a municipality in California, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1613. County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP: Plaintiff Oxnard City, California

Oxnard City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Oxnard City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Oxnard City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Oxnard City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Oxnard City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Oxnard City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Oxnard City first amended its complaint on October 4, 2019. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Oxnard City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Oxnard City's deadline to amend was in 2020. Oxnard City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Oxnard City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Oxnard City filed its original complaint on October 1, 2019, but waited until February 26, 2020 to implement a litigation hold. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-9; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: February 26, 2020). Oxnard City's violation of the Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455) and disregard for its discovery obligations is prejudicial to the PBMs and weighs heavily against any finding of good cause for leave to amend. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Oxnard City's

request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Oxnard City, a municipality in California, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1614. County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP: Plaintiff Placentia City, California

Placentia City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Placentia City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Placentia City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Placentia City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Placentia City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

1615. County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP: Plaintiff Santa Ana City, California

Santa Ana City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Santa Ana City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Santa Ana City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Santa Ana City’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Santa Ana City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Santa Ana City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Santa Ana City first amended its complaint on October 4, 2019. See County of Alameda et al. v. Richard S. Sackler et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45055-DAP, ECF No. 1-4. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Santa Ana City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Santa Ana City’s deadline to amend was in 2020. Santa Ana City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Santa Ana City’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Santa Ana City’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.15% market share for Santa Ana City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Santa Ana City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

a finding of good cause for Santa Ana City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Prior Notice as an Express Scripts Client. Santa Ana City previously entered into a contract with Express Scripts for PBM services related to utilization management and formulary development. See Achter Decl., Exhibit A. That contract notified Santa Ana City of the PBM services Express Scripts provides and Santa Ana City began receiving those services on July 10, 2007. See id. Inasmuch as Santa Ana City seeks to add claims against Express Scripts entities related to utilization management or formulary placement (see, e.g., Rochester Am. Compl. ¶¶ 733, 741, 786–816, 821–22, 845), Santa Ana City knew or should have known of the alleged wrongful conduct more than ten years before moving to amend. See Section III.A.3, above. Santa Ana City's delay in seeking leave to amend negates any finding of good cause for leave to amend. Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (denying motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline).

Failure to State a Claim. Santa Ana City, a municipality in California, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Santa Ana City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Santa Ana City, a municipality in California, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1616. The Fiscal Court of Adair County v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45059-DAP: Plaintiff Adair County, Kentucky

Adair County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Adair County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Adair County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Adair County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Adair County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Adair County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Adair County amended its complaint on May 8, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on February 10, 2020. See The Fiscal Court of Adair County v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case

No. 1:20-op-45059-DAP, ECF No. 5. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Adair County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Adair County's deadline to amend was in 2020. Adair County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Adair County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Adair County cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Adair County, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Adair County fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the "plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint"); Thurmond, 649 F. App'x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff's counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants' conduct).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Adair County's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.01% market share for Adair County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Adair County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Adair County's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.14% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Adair County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Adair County filed its original complaint on January 15, 2020. See The Fiscal Court of Adair County v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45059-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Adair County never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Adair County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Adair County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Adair County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Adair County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Adair County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Adair County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Adair County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Adair County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Adair County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Adair County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Adair County’s potential claims against them. Adair County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Kentucky law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Adair County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Kentucky law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Adair County, a municipality in Kentucky, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Adair County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Adair County filed its original complaint on January 15, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See The Fiscal Court of Adair County v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45059-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Adair County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, over four years before seeking leave to amend. Adair County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO’s four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Adair County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Adair County, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1617. City of Henderson v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45062-DAP: Plaintiff Henderson City, Kentucky

Henderson City’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Henderson City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Henderson City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Henderson City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Henderson City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Henderson City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Henderson City amended its complaint on October 4, 2019, before transfer to the MDL on February 10, 2020. See City of Henderson v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45062-DAP, ECF No. 5. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Henderson City declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Henderson City's deadline to amend was in 2020. Henderson City waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Henderson City's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Henderson City filed its original complaint on September 13, 2019. See City of Henderson v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45062-DAP, ECF Nos. 1-2–1-9. Despite filing its case years ago, Henderson City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Henderson City's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Henderson City's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Henderson City's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Henderson City therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Kentucky law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Henderson City's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Kentucky law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Henderson City, a municipality in Kentucky, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Henderson City's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Henderson City filed its original complaint on September 13, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See City of Henderson v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45062-DAP, ECF No. 1-2-1-9. Even assuming arguendo that Henderson City first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on September 13, 2023. Henderson City's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Henderson City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Henderson City, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1618. Hardin County Fiscal Court et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45063-DAP: Plaintiff Ohio County, Kentucky

Ohio County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Ohio County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Ohio County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Ohio County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Ohio County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Ohio County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Ohio County amended its complaint on October 4, 2019, before transfer to the MDL on February 11, 2020. See Hardin County Fiscal Court et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45063-DAP, ECF No. 6. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Ohio County declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Ohio County's deadline to amend was in 2020. Ohio County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Ohio County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Ohio County's geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson

Decl. (0.01% market share for Ohio County). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Ohio County to add dispensing claims against OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Ohio County filed its original complaint on September 13, 2019. See Hardin County Fiscal Court et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45063-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Despite filing its case years ago, Ohio County never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Ohio County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Ohio County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Ohio County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Ohio County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Ohio County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Ohio County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Ohio County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Ohio County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Ohio County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Ohio County’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Ohio County’s potential claims against them. Ohio County’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Kentucky law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Ohio County’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Kentucky law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Ohio County, a municipality in Kentucky, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Ohio County’s proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Ohio County filed its original complaint on September 13, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Hardin County Fiscal Court et al. v. Purdue Pharma L.P. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45063-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Even assuming arguendo that Ohio County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO’s four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on September 13, 2023. Ohio County’s RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by “discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim” (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Ohio County’s request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Ohio County, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester’s complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1619. Botetourt County, Virginia v. Mallinckrodt PLC et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45064-DAP: Plaintiff Botetourt County, Virginia

Botetourt County’s untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Botetourt County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Botetourt County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to timely implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Botetourt County’s motion should be denied due to futility, as Botetourt County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Botetourt County previously alleged claims against some of the PBMs in its original complaint on September 20, 2019. See Botetourt County, Virginia v. Mallinckrodt PLC et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45064-DAP, ECF No. 1-3 (bringing claims against Express Scripts, Inc.; Express Scripts Holding Company; ESI Mail Pharmacy Service, Inc.; Express Scripts Pharmacy, Inc.; UnitedHealth Group Incorporated; Optum, Inc.; and OptumRx Inc.). Botetourt County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against other PBM-related entities in 2020, but elected not to do so. See Section II.A.1, above. Now, Botetourt County seeks to add other PBM-related entities as defendants but offers no good cause for its failure to name these entities as defendants four years ago. As described above, the omnibus motions say nothing about the majority of the entities that the Moving Plaintiffs seek to add as defendants to their complaints. And for those entities that were named in an earlier iteration of Botetourt County's complaint, Botetourt County already had access to the relevant documents it contends give rise to its proposed claims when it filed its original complaint against the PBMs in 2019. See Section II.A, above. Botetourt County was not diligent in pursuing its claims against the PBMs and leave to amend should be denied for lack of good cause.

against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Timely Implement a Litigation Hold. Botetourt County violated its basic duty to implement a timely litigation hold. Botetourt County filed its original complaint on September 20, 2019, but waited until August 5, 2024 to implement a litigation hold—nearly five years later. See Botetourt County, Virginia v. Mallinckrodt PLC et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45064-DAP, ECF No. 1-3; see also ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: August 5, 2024). This is a plain violation of this Court’s orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Botetourt County’s case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Botetourt County’s document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Botetourt County’s disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Botetourt County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Botetourt County failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Botetourt County’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Botetourt County of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Botetourt County refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Botetourt County’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Botetourt County's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Botetourt County's potential claims against them. Botetourt County's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Virginia law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Botetourt County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Virginia law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Botetourt County, a municipality in Virginia, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Botetourt County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Botetourt County filed its original complaint on September 20, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Botetourt County, Virginia v. Mallinckrodt PLC et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45064-DAP, ECF No. 1-3. Even assuming arguendo that Botetourt County first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on September 20, 2023. Botetourt County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Botetourt County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Botetourt County, a municipality in Virginia, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1620. Hicksville Water District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45072-DAP: Plaintiff Hicksville Water District, New York

Hicksville Water District's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Hicksville Water District failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Hicksville Water District also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Hicksville Water District's motion should be denied due to futility, as Hicksville Water District does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm and its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

Lack of Diligence. Hicksville Water District was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Hicksville Water District filed its original complaint directly into the MDL on February 10, 2020. See Hicksville Water District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45072-DAP, ECF No. 1. Hicksville Water District could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Hicksville Water District elected not to do so. Hicksville Water District waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Hicksville Water District’s lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Hicksville Water District failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Hicksville Water District’s health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Hicksville Water District of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Hicksville Water District refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Hicksville Water District’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Hicksville Water District’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Hicksville Water District’s potential claims against them. Hicksville Water District’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under New York law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Hicksville Water District's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under New York law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Hicksville Water District, a water district in New York, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Hicksville Water District's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Hicksville Water District filed its original complaint on February 10, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries for which it now seeks to recover under RICO against the PBMs. See Hicksville Water District v. McKesson Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45072-DAP, ECF No. 1. Even assuming arguendo that Hicksville Water District first learned of its injury on the day it filed its original complaint, RICO's four-year statute of limitations expired, at the very latest, on February 10, 2024. Hicksville Water District's RICO claim is therefore time-barred. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Hicksville Water District's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Hicksville Water District, a water district in New York, lacks standing to assert a claim under NY SSL § 145-B because it is not New York City, a county in New York, or the state of New York. See Section III.B.6, above. Hicksville Water District's request for leave to amend its complaint to add a claim under NY SSL § 145-B is therefore futile and should be denied. Gallant, 2020 WL 9349975, at *2–3 (affirming denial of leave to amend where plaintiff lacked standing to assert the proposed claim).

1621. Williams v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45073-DAP: Plaintiff Sonji B. Williams, administratrix of The Estate of Tyler Michael Wain Williams, North Carolina

The untimely motion for leave to amend of Sonji B. Williams, administratrix of The Estate of Tyler Michael Wain Williams, should be denied for several reasons. Williams failed to provide notice of her proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Williams also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because her untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, the motion should be denied due to futility, as Williams does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to her alleged harm, her RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and she lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Williams was on notice of her claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Williams filed her original complaint on December 23, 2019 and the case was transferred to the MDL on February 11, 2020. See Williams v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45073-DAP, ECF No. 23. Williams could have amended her complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, she elected not to do so. Instead, Williams waited four years after her deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Her lack of diligence in pursuing her claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order’s deadline because plaintiff “had all the information [she] needed” to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a “wait-and-see approach” instead of timely moving to amend).

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Williams filed her original complaint on December 23, 2019. See Williams v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45073-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. Despite filing her case years ago, Williams never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating this case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of the document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Williams disregard of her most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend; therefore, Williams lacks good cause for leave to amend her complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under North Carolina law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Williams’ delay in seeking to amend her complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under North Carolina law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Williams, an individual in North Carolina, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to her injuries. Instead, she relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above).

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Williams' RICO claim has expired. Williams filed her original complaint on December 23, 2019, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See Williams v. AmerisourceBergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45073-DAP, ECF No. 1-1. It is therefore indisputable that Williams knew of her RICO injury, at the very latest, the day she filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, four and a half years before seeking leave to amend. Her RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Williams' request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Williams, an individual in North Carolina, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1622. The Fiscal Court of Edmonson County v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45084-DAP: Plaintiff Edmonson County, Kentucky

Edmonson County's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Edmonson County failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Edmonson County also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Edmonson County's motion should be denied due to futility, as Edmonson County does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Edmonson County was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Edmonson County filed its original complaint on February 5, 2020 and the case was transferred to the MDL on February 27, 2020. See The Fiscal Court of Edmonson County v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45084-DAP, ECF No. 5. Edmonson County could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Edmonson County elected not to do so. Instead, Edmonson County waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Edmonson County's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Edmonson County's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Edmonson County cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Express Scripts' Mail Order Pharmacy Has A Negligible Market Share. Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of prescription opioid units shipped to Edmonson County's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.12% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Edmonson County to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Edmonson County filed its original complaint on February 5, 2020. See The Fiscal Court of Edmonson County v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45084-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Edmonson County never implemented a litigation hold and is instead purporting to rely on non-specific and unidentified document retention laws. See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: *(Never)). This is a plain violation of this Court's orders. ECF Nos. 232; 5455. Litigating Edmonson County's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Edmonson County's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. The PBMs are prejudiced by Edmonson County's disregard for its most basic discovery obligations as a litigant, compounded by the delay in seeking leave to amend, and Edmonson County therefore lacks good cause for leave to amend its complaint. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28 (denying leave to amend in part because the passage of time resulted in significant prejudice due to the loss of documents or records); see also Section III.A.4, above.

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Kentucky law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Edmonson County's delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs' ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Kentucky law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Failure to State a Claim. Edmonson County, a municipality in Kentucky, has not pleaded any facts showing that the PBMs caused or substantially contributed to its injuries. Instead, it relies exclusively on the amended complaint of the City of Rochester, a differently situated plaintiff from another state. See Section III.B.1, above.

RICO Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for Edmonson County's proposed RICO claim against the PBMs has expired. Edmonson County filed its original complaint on February 5, 2020, alleging the same type of injuries and alleging a RICO claim against other defendants. See The Fiscal Court of Edmonson County v. Endo Health Solutions Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45084-DAP, ECF No. 1. It is therefore indisputable that Edmonson County knew of its RICO injury, at the very latest, the day it filed a complaint asserting a RICO claim, over four years before seeking leave to amend. Edmonson County's RICO claim is therefore time-barred by RICO's four-year limitations period. ECF No. 2568 at 13 (holding that the RICO limitations period is triggered by "discovery of the injury, not discovery of [the] other elements of a claim" (quoting Rotella, 528 U.S. at 555)); see Section III.B.4, above. Edmonson County's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Edmonson County, a municipality in Kentucky, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1623. Wyoming, Pennsylvania v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45087-DAP: Plaintiff Wyoming Borough, Pennsylvania

Wyoming Borough's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Wyoming Borough failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Wyoming Borough also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Wyoming Borough's motion should be denied due to futility, as Wyoming Borough does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Wyoming Borough was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Wyoming Borough filed its original complaint on February 12, 2020 and the case was transferred to the MDL on March 4, 2020. See Wyoming, Pennsylvania v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45087-DAP, ECF No. 4. Wyoming Borough could have amended its complaint, without leave, to add claims against the PBMs in 2020. See Section II.A.1, above. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Wyoming Borough elected not to do so. Instead, Wyoming Borough waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Wyoming Borough's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

OptumRx's Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Wyoming Borough's geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy "ha[s] no market share, they shouldn't be in the case, period." ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Wyoming Borough cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Wyoming Borough filed its original complaint on February 12, 2020. See Wyoming, Pennsylvania v. Cephalon, Inc. et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45087-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Wyoming Borough never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court's orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Litigating Wyoming Borough's case would force the parties and the Court to waste time and resources ascertaining the extent of Wyoming Borough's document destruction and the appropriate sanctions—just as the parties were forced to do in the three PBM bellwethers that failed to implement litigation holds until 2024. Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Wyoming Borough failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Wyoming Borough's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Wyoming Borough of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Wyoming Borough refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court’s orders, Wyoming Borough’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Wyoming Borough’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Wyoming Borough’s potential claims against them. Wyoming Borough’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Prejudice Due to Loss of Evidence. Under Pennsylvania law, the PBMs have the right to seek to allocate fault to other parties. See Section III.A.6, above. But Wyoming Borough’s delay in seeking to amend its complaint has impaired the PBMs’ ability to exercise those allocation-of-fault rights under Pennsylvania law due to the loss of relevant evidence over time. That impairment substantially prejudices the PBMs in their ability to defend themselves. See Pethtel, 2020 WL 6827791, at *28.

Wyoming Borough's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Wyoming Borough, a municipality in Pennsylvania, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1624. City of Leeds, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L P et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45088-DAP: Plaintiff Leeds City, Alabama

Leeds City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Leeds City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Leeds City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Leeds City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Leeds City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Leeds City was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Leeds City filed its original complaint on February 14, 2020 and the case was transferred to the MDL on March 4, 2020. *See City of Leeds, Alabama v. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Leeds City elected not to do so. OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Has a Negligible Market Share. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy shipped less than 0.5% of the total number of opioid units shipped to Leeds City’s geographic jurisdiction over the ten-year period of 2010 to 2019. See Gustafson Decl. (0.01% market share for Leeds City). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Leeds City to add dispensing claims against OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

units shipped to Leeds City’s geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.17% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Leeds City to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts’ mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Implement a Litigation Hold. Leeds City filed its original complaint on February 14, 2020. See City of Leeds, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma L P et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45088-DAP, ECF No. 1. Despite filing its case years ago, Leeds City never implemented a litigation hold, in violation of this Court’s orders (ECF Nos. 232; 5455). See ECF No. 5687-1 (Date Litigation Hold Implemented: Never). Under this Court’s orders, Leeds City’s case is therefore subject to “dismiss[al] with prejudice” for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1

(emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Leeds City’s refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs’ ability to defend against Leeds City’s potential claims against them. Leeds City’s failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that “plaintiffs’ counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation”); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).

Leeds City's request for leave to amend to add a RICO claim should be denied as futile. See Oakley, 2016 WL 1117596, at *5 (denying motion for leave to amend because RICO claims were time-barred).

Public Nuisance Statute of Limitations. In Alabama, public-nuisance claims are subject to a two-year limitations period. Leeds City's public-nuisance claim against the PBMs is therefore time-barred because Leeds City sought leave to amend its complaint on July 29, 2024—over four years after filing its original complaint on February 14, 2020—and the proposed amendment does not relate back to the original filing for purposes of the applicable statute of limitations. See Zakora, 44 F.4th at 480 ("This court has repeatedly held that an amendment which adds a new party creates a new cause of action and there is no relation back to the original filing for purposes of limitations." (cleaned up)).

Plaintiff Lacks Standing. Leeds City, a municipality in Alabama, lacks standing to state a claim for relief under any of the New York laws referenced in the City of Rochester's complaint. See Section III.B.6, above.

1625. Fairfield, City of, Alabama v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45089-DAP: Plaintiff Fairfield City, Alabama

Fairfield City's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Fairfield City failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Fairfield City also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to implement a litigation hold, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Fairfield City's motion should be denied due to futility, as Fairfield City does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its proposed public nuisance claim is barred by the statute of limitations, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

OptumRx's home-delivery pharmacy years after the amendment deadline. See Section III.A.2, above.

1626. Sugar Notch Borough, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45090-DAP: Plaintiff Sugar Notch Borough, Pennsylvania

Sugar Notch Borough's untimely motion for leave to amend should be denied for several reasons. Sugar Notch Borough failed to provide notice of its proposed amendments through a proposed complaint. Sugar Notch Borough also lacks good cause under Rule 15 or Rule 16 due to a lack of diligence, failure to submit a complete plaintiff fact sheet, and because its untimely motion would unduly prejudice the PBMs. Moreover, Sugar Notch Borough's motion should be denied due to futility, as Sugar Notch Borough does not assert any allegations tying the PBMs to its alleged harm, its RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations, and it lacks standing to assert claims under New York state law.

Lack of Diligence. Sugar Notch Borough was on notice of its claims against the PBMs for years but failed to exercise due diligence by moving to amend earlier. See Section II.A, above. Moreover, Sugar Notch Borough amended its complaint on June 3, 2020, after transfer to the MDL on March 4, 2020. See Sugar Notch Borough, Pennsylvania v. Amerisourcebergen Drug Corporation et al., Case No. 1:20-op-45090-DAP, ECF No. 5. Unlike many other plaintiffs, Sugar Notch Borough declined to add claims against the PBMs in its amended complaint. See Section II.A.1, above. Sugar Notch Borough's deadline to amend was in 2020. Sugar Notch Borough waited four years after its deadline to amend to seek leave to assert claims against the PBMs. Sugar Notch Borough's lack of diligence in pursuing its claims negates any finding of good cause. See Garza, 972 F.3d at 879 (affirming denial of motion to amend nine months after the scheduling order's deadline because plaintiff "had all the information [she] needed" to bring claims before the deadline); Glazer, 704 F.3d at 459 (affirming denial of motion to amend because plaintiff took a "wait-and-see approach" instead of timely moving to amend).

Prior Notice Through Counsel. Sugar Notch Borough cannot meet the Rule 16 good cause standard because it is represented by the same counsel—Greene, Ketchum, Farrell, Bailey & Tweel, LLP; Powell & Majestro; Baron & Budd, P.C.; Levin, Papantonio, Thomas, Mitchell, Rafferty & Proctor, P.A.; and McHugh Fuller Law Group, PLLC—that filed claims against the PBMs in 2019. See MDL ECF No. 2582. Sugar Notch Borough, through its counsel, was on notice of potential claims against the PBMs and could readily have amended its complaint to add the PBMs much earlier. Sugar Notch Borough fails to explain why it was unable to assert claims against the PBMs in 2019 when its own attorneys were already asserting those claims on behalf of other clients. See, e.g., Duggins, 195 F.3d at 834 (affirming denial of leave to amend after the close of discovery when the “plaintiff was obviously aware of the basis of the claim for many months, especially since some underlying facts were made a part of the complaint”); Thurmond, 649 F. App’x at 1006 (affirming denial of leave to amend for undue delay in part because plaintiff’s counsel had access to discovery in related cases and was previously aware of the proposed new defendants’ conduct).

OptumRx’s Home-Delivery Pharmacy Had Zero Dispenses. OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy did not dispense a single opioid prescription to Sugar Notch Borough’s geographic jurisdiction over the period for which OptumRx has data (2010 to 2019). See Gustafson Decl.. Because OptumRx’s home-delivery pharmacy “ha[s] no market share, they shouldn’t be in the case, period.” ECF No. 3685 at 6:9–14; see Section III.A.2, above. Thus, Sugar Notch Borough cannot show good cause to add claims against OptumRx in its capacity as a home delivery pharmacy.

units shipped to Sugar Notch Borough's geographic jurisdiction during 2009 to 2019. See DeCarlo Decl., Exhibit C (0.02% market share). That insignificant dispensing volume is much too low to support a finding of good cause for Sugar Notch Borough to add dispensing claims against Express Scripts' mail order pharmacy entities. See Section III.A.2, above.

Failure to Prosecute. In its Plaintiff Fact Sheet, Sugar Notch Borough failed to provide complete answers to Questions I.B.8 and I.B.9, relating to Sugar Notch Borough's health plans, carriers, third party administrators, and pharmacy benefit managers throughout the relevant time period. The PBMs notified Sugar Notch Borough of this deficiency on September 16, 2024 (see Exhibit B), but Sugar Notch Borough refused to amend or supplement its Fact Sheet. Under this Court's orders, Sugar Notch Borough's case is therefore subject to "dismiss[al] with prejudice" for failure to prosecute. ECF No. 4985 at 1 (emphasis in original); see Section III.A.5, above. Sugar Notch Borough's refusal to provide basic information related to its health care plans prejudices the PBMs' ability to defend against Sugar Notch Borough's potential claims against them. Sugar Notch Borough's failure to diligently prosecute its case, coupled with the prejudice against the PBMs, negates any finding of good cause and leave to amend should be denied. See Final Amendment Order, ECF No. 5455 at 2 (directing counsel to dismiss, not seek leave to amend, in any case that "plaintiffs' counsel does not intend to zealously pursue in litigation"); Range, 2017 WL 9477693, at *4 n.6 (denying motion for leave to amend as moot because claims were dismissed for failure to prosecute).
